There are more school buses than any other kind of bus on the road: The 432,813 school buses registered in 1981 were 80 per cent of the total number of buses (543,894) in the nation, according to federal highway administration statistics.

In the 1980-1981 school year, 56 per cent of the 38 million American public-school children took buses, up from 46 per cent a decade before. Although enrollment in public schools and the number of schools are dwindling, the percentage of children riding buses is increasing. Among the reasons are neighborhood school closings, caused by declining enrollments and the accompanying consolidation of children in more distant schools; busing to achieve racial equality in schools, and busing to transport children across highways and congested suburban and urban streets.

The Smithsonian's 1939 vehicle is significant, Roger White of the museum's division of transportation says, because it is typical of the early all-steel buses with shatterproof glass first introduced in the 1930s. The 36-passenger bus, painted "Omaha" orange (the modern equivalent of the older double-deep) and now restored to running condition, has its original Dodge chassis and body built by Carpenter Body Works Inc., of Mitchell, Ind.

For nine years it was owned by Russell Bishop, a farmer who contracted with the Washington County, Ind., school district to transport children to and from the Martinsburg grade school. In the late 1940s, it was sold to a local grocer, Lester Jones, who used it for 14 years as a peddler's wagon, serving houses for 50 miles around.

Jones converted his bus into a rolling grocery store by removing the seats and adding shelves. Many a farmer-driver of that period would simply replace the body of a bus with a wooden platform when the school year ended to haul hay and other materials all summer. In September, it would, like Cinderalla's pumpkin, become a coach once again.

Jones became ill in 1962 and the bus, still loaded with groceries, was related to his backyard. There it sat until 1980, when Carpenter Body repurchased the bus and began to restore it before donating it to the Smithsonian. The year-long restoration depended on the memories of the employees who built the original because company records of the 1930s had been destroyed in a fire.

The steel bus, which revolutionized public school transport, came about because school boards and parents began demanding safer vehicles than the wood and later wood-and-metal bus that easily smashed or caught fire in collisions. The manufacturers' response was an all-steel vehicle with sturdier body, emergency doors and, later, hydraulic brakes, spring cushion seats and larger windows for better visibility.

"Of course, school buses, made of whatever materials, had already made their mark on the American educational system," the Smithsonian's White says, beginning with the first day children left their farmhouses and, rather than walking to a one-room school, boarded horse-drawn wagons that took them to a larger school with better facilities.

Logically enough, school transportation originated in Midwestern and New England states where road-building materials such as gravel were plentiful, and, consequently, primary and secondary road systems able to accommodate large vehicles were developed. The first motorized school "truck," a Model T wooden truck with rows of benches inside, was built about 1909. Like earlier school wagons, the factory-made buses had rear doors which the driver opened with a pull cord. Most carried 24 to 30 students, about twice as many as the wagons.

Paved roads and motorized school buses inevitably led to the construction of many consolidated elementary and high schools. By the early 1920s, school districts had their own bus systems, and farm families were proud to send their children to schools with more teachers and better equipment.

At the same time, White points out, "school buses were breaking up the sense of community in rural America by taking children away from the small, neighborhood schools."

However, the idea of transporting children from their neighborhood schools became a volatile issue with the introduction of busing to achieve school integration. For years, in some areas buses had been used exclusively to transport white students to white schools. In some southern school districts, buses occasionally were used to perpetuate segregation by transporting black students as far as 50 miles so that they could attend all-black schools.

In 1970, in Charlotte, N.D., and Richmond, Va., after 16 years of slow desegregation following the U.S. Supreme Court's Brown vs. Topeka Board of Education (separate is not equal) decision, court-ordered busing began. Violence, sometimes directed at the bus passengers and the vehicles themselves, broke out in Boston, in Pontiac, Mich., and in other cities around the country.

The demonstrations are as much a part of American history as the buses themselves, and so White set out to collect a "memento" from that turbulent era. He called three companies in Boston with contracts for school bus service in the '70s and found one firm, Auto Bus Inc., that still has some broken windows from the company's 1974 fleet of '56 General Motors' buses. The rear window of one bus, damaged in South Boston by white students protesting the enrollment of blacks at their high school, is now part of the Museum of American History collections.

In the years since the busing controversy peaked, the demand for buses has increased about 19 per cent and the buses themselves have changed dramatically. Federal safety standards that went into effect in 1977 required new buses to meet stricter standards in eight areas: emergency exits, interior protection, floor systems, seating, crash worthiness, vehicle operating systems, windows and fuel systems.

The greatest change, says pupil transportation specialists David H. Soule at the National highway traffic safety administration, involves the seats. "They are more heavily padded and taller than public bus seats," Soule says, "and their frames are energy-absorbing so they will bend but not collapse on impact."

Riding to school is safer in these new buses, Soule adds, but there's still work to be done to make it safer in the '80s. "I'd like to see a nationwide school bus stop law and more student-rider and driver-training programs," he says.

Yet riding a school bus is a lot safer than other kinds of road travel. The fatality rate for school buses in 1981, for example, was .4 deaths per 100 million miles, compared with 27.1 for motorcycles, 2.4 for passenger cars and .9 for other buses.

There are some who would say that a school bus is only as good as its driver. Driver error, in fact, has been cited by many states as the major cause of school-bus accidents, accounting in recent years, for 79 per cent of school-bus accidents in Iowa to 56 per cent in New Mexico to 55 per cent in Maryland. Extracurricular activity buses, often driven by substitute drivers unfamiliar with vehicle, routes and regulations, tend to be involved in a disproportionate number of the accidents resulting in deaths, the statistics say. Standards for hiring and training drivers still vary from one state to another, but the driver selection process has come a long way since the 1950s, when untrained farmers and high school students supplemented their income by driving school buses part time.

One driver who took his job very seriously is Paul Boehmer of the Sauk Prairie School District in Wisconsin. He started his first route in 1936 with a 24-seat bus that cost him $2,000, making his final 80-mile run in June 1983 with a $24,000 bus. In his 46 years of school bus driving he never had an accident. While he's looking forward to some well-earned leisure time, Boehmer admits that "missing the children will be the hardest part of my retirement."

RETIRING CITY EMPLOYEES, with a total of 107 years of service to the community, were honored with a banquet and party at the Eagles Club on Friday evening. In addition to these plaques of appreciation from the city, each received a number of gifts from their fellow employees. From left to right are: parks and recreation department employee Clarence Breiland, with 31 years; and utilities department employees, Harry Jasperson, 31 years; Hazel Cloutier, 14 years; and Paul Bedard, 31 years.

Retirement Of City Workers Is Celebrated

Fellow employees, family members, friends and city council members gathered to honor four Thief River Falls city employees with a total of 107 years of service between them, at a retirement party held Friday evening at the Eagles Club.

Those honored were utilities department employees Hazel Cloutier, with 14 years; Harry Jasperson, with 31 years; and Paul Bedard, with 31 years; and Parks department employee Clarence Breiland, with 31 years.

Following social hour from 6 to 7 p.m. and a banquet from 7 to 8 p.m. an informal program was held with John T. Anderson, superintendent of utilities as master of ceremonies. Each of the individuals was presented with a plaque expressing appreciation for their years of service to the city. Alderman Bill Penning, senior member of the utilities committee, presented the plaques to the three employees from that department, and Dale Wennberg, vice chairman of the park board presented the plaque to Breiland.

In addition, fellow employees presented each of the retirees with more personal gifts, including humorous booklets. Hazel Cloutier was presented a diamond ring by Marian Ellingson; Harry Jasperson received an assortment of yard tools from Ray Halvorson, Boyce Lee and Henry Hastad; Paul Bedard received a set of gold plated climbing spikes and an assortment of power tools by Madeline Vigen, Don Laidley, Orrin Joppru, Howard Nelson, Tony Brennan, Dale Narlock, Roger Golby, Larry Kron and Darryl Tveitbakk; and Clarence Breiland was presented a scope hunting rifle by Mike Mongoven.

DMH Corporation Having Good Year

Following article by editor Marc E. Parenteau appeared in a recent edition of the Red Lake Falls Gazette:

"We've been here awhile and we plan to be here for awhile yet."

That statement was made by Dean Lampe, general manager of Diversified Manufactured Housing (DMH), Inc. of Red Lake Falls. Mobile home manufacturing began in Red Lake Falls in 1959. DMH began operation in 1960. The company produces Detroiter mobile homes.

Lampe said from 1962 to about 1973 were good years for the company. National Gypsum Company purchased DMH in 1973. In 1981 a group of management employees purchased the DMH division from National Gypsum.

"We've been plugging away for 23 years with a positive impact on the community," said Lampe.

During the summer months, over 100 people are employed at the Red Lake Falls plant. Presently, there are 60 production line workers, 10 support laborers (i.e. supervisors, forklift operators, etc.) and 10 to 15 people in management, sales and clerical.

Lampe estimated the company has an annual payroll of almost $2 million.

He explained the company is experiencing a period of growth. During the first quarter of 1983 there were only 40 production line workers. This had been the case for the past couple of years. During that time, the plant produced one to one and a half mobile homes per day. Since May the company has been putting out three homes a day.

"Hopefully, that will continue through October," said Lampe.

He added, "The only bad part of our business is it's seasonal. During the winter people don't buy mobile homes. If we can hold our down time to one week in December and one week in January, we'd be real happy."

He explained that when the plant is shut down the company doesn't make any money. And when employees are laid off they aren't making as much money as they could be.

"So there is an incentive to keep producing," Lampe said.

Construction Advances On Black River Project

Despite frequent rains throughout the late summer, construction has gone ahead on the Black River flood control dam located on the Donald Schirrick farm northwest of Red Lake Falls. The project was developed by the Red Lake watershed district and total cost is estimated at $1,019,000.

Agassiz Construction company of Crookston has the general contract for the earth-fill dam with earth moving work being done by Gowan Brothers of Oslo. Sorenson Construction company of Argyle has the contract for concrete work on the outlet control structure.

Tim Orthmeyer, site engineer for TKDA engineering company of St. Paul which designed the project, said that the rains had caused some delays in the work schedule, but that the contract was let on an operating day basis and therefore should have no major effect on the completion. Work will continue as long as possible this fall with completion scheduled for next summer.

Purpose of the dam is to increase flood control on the Red Lake river and Red River of the North by creating 4,700 acre feet of water storage on the Black River system. The objection is achieved by having a large enough outlet works to allow normal Black river flows to pass through and then closing the control gates when the mainstem peak flows occur.

The design concepts are several and include the following:

(1) A dam providing maximum water storage

Aerial Survey By State Will Hit This Area

During the next few months many residents of northwestern Minnesota will see a low-flying airplane methodically crossing the state on lines about a half a mile apart.

The plane is engaged in an aeromagnetic survey funded by the legislative commission on Minnesota resources and directed by the Minnesota geological survey. Area covered during this present program will include all or part of Beltrami, Clearwater, Hubbard, Cass, Wadena, Roseau, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake, Mahnomen, Becker, Kittson, Marshall, Norman and Clay counties. Counties in northeastern and east-central Minnesota were surveyed earlier in this project. It is planned that within the next few years all of the state will be covered.

The survey aircraft, which flies about 500 feet above the ground, carries a sensitive instrument in a tube or "stringer" extending from the tail, which continuously measures variations in earth's magnetic field along each line of traverse. These variations are mainly caused by differences in the composition of the bedrock geologic formations that lie under the area. Soils and glacial drift, which cover the bedrock formations in most of the state to depths of hundreds of feet, have very little influence on the magnetic field, so the airborne magnetic survey provides a means of learning something about the bedrock geology of the state in the large areas where the bedrock is concealed. Without geophysical surveying methods, such as the airborne magnetometer, it would be

Strong To Run For Mayor On Write-In Vote

Dave Strong, general manager of Forsberg's, Inc., of Thief River Falls, announced this morning that he will be a write-in candidate for the office of mayor of the city of Thief River Falls.

In his announcement, Strong said he had considered filing for the office prior to the close of filings for city office, but wasn't convinced at that time that there was sufficient interest by the electorate in having more than one candidate for the office. Mayor Bob Carlson has filed for reelection.

Since filings have closed, however, Strong said he has received additional encouragement to seek the office and therefore has agreed to be a candidate on a write-in campaign.

Senators To Air Land Ownership At Hearing Fri.

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer has announced that legislative hearings will be held in the district this week concerning the state's public land ownership policy and its effect on the private sector.

"Hearings by the public lands and water resources subcommittee of the Senate agriculture and natural resources committee will be held on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the community center in Baudette and on Friday at 1:30 p.m. in the civic building in Argyle.

"I see this subcommittee as examining the whole range of questions surrounding public lands, such as: How much land should the state own? What land should it own and how can we efficiently dispose of some of it?" Stumpf added.

At the direction of the state legislative auditor and the legislature, the Minnesota department of natural resources (DNR) presently is developing a long-range, comprehensive plan for the acquisition and disposal of state-owned lands. Last spring, the auditor suggested in a special report on the issue that the DNR — which is responsible for administering the state's 5.3 million acres of public lands — place more emphasis on alternatives to future state land purchases.

"For example," Stumpf noted, "the auditor pointed out that, in many cases, the state would come out better in terms of cost and public satisfaction if the DNR secured easements, negotiated leases or worked through zoning changes instead of simply acquiring titles to land."

Stumpf explained that finding alternatives to state purchases of public lands is important given the recent declines in available public money for purchasing land for parks, wildlife areas and access sites.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Lynn Marie Mosbeck And Robin LaCoursiere Wed

Marriage vows were exchanged recently at the Black River Lutheran church, rural St. Hilaire, by Lynn Marie Mosbeck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Mosbeck, rural Red Lake Falls, and Robin James LaCoursiere, son of Jim LaCoursiere of Red Lake Falls and Sharon LaCoursiere, Thief River Falls.

Rev. Don Knudson officiated at the double ring ceremony. At the organ was the groom's sister, Christie LaCoursiere. For the processional, she played "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," and the traditional wedding march. She also served as vocalist, as did Bud Fontes, a friend of the couple. Selections sung were "Just You and I," "If," "Beginning Today," and "Always and Forever," as the couple lit the unity candle. During the ceremony, the couple read the poem, "To the One I Love," and presented long-stemmed red roses to their mothers. Terry LaCoursiere a brother of the groom, distributed the wedding programs.

Blue carnations in a mist of babies' breath graced the altar for the mid-afternoon ceremony. The pews were marked with white satin bows. On the organ was a single red rose and babies' breath.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her parents. She was attired in a white gown of crystal organza and Chantilly lace styled with a chapel-length train. The gown featured a Schiffli embroidered sheet yoke, high neckline, and Chantilly lace bishop sleeves. A wide band of Chantilly lace bordered the full skirt. Her walking length veil of bridal illusion, trimmed in Schiffli lace, was held by a corresponding headpiece. She carried a cascade of light blue roses, feathered carnations, white geraniums, babies' breath and blue and white ribbon streamers. Her pearl earrings were a gift from the groom.

Carol Sorvig, Grand Forks, N.D., a friend of the couple, was maid of honor. Other attendants were Judy Heaton, Bemidji, Joni Mosbeck, rural Red Lake Falls, sisters of the bride; and Marilyn Stavenes, rural Red Lake Falls, a friend of the bride. They wore floor-length gowns of a light blue jacquard satin with full sleeves gathered at the elbow, and jewel necklines complemented by lace collars. Their pearl earrings were gifts from the bride; and their bouquets corresponded with the one carried by the bride.

Carrying a basket filled with matching flowers, was the flower girl, Shannon Heaton, Bemidji, a niece of the bride. Her floor-length gown with a white lace collar, was also of light blue jacquared satin.

The rings were carried on a heart-shaped pillow by Brandon Heaton, Bemidji, a nephew of the bride. He wore gray vest and trousers and a white shirt.

Best man was Dave Meyerhofer, Bourbonnais, Ill., a friend of the couple. Groomsmen were Marlon Knutson, Colorado, a friend of the groom; Brian Jacobson, a friend of the couple, and Gene Mosbeck, rural Red Lake Falls, a brother of the bride. Ushers were Gary Mosbeck, St. Hilaire, brother of the bride; Gary Heaton, Bemidji, brother-in-law of the bride; and Kevin Schoenborn, Mahnomen, a friend of the groom. All wore silver tuxedos with a light blue roses and babies' breath pinned on their lapels.

A similar boutonniere complemented the all white attire worn by the groom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Mosbeck wore a royal blue street length dress and silver earrings. The groom's mother wore a wine colored, street-length dress. Their corsages were of light blue rose and carnations, made by the mother of the bride, and Linda Helgeland. They made all the flowers at the wedding.

Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Peterson and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Mosbeck, grandparents of the bride; Mabel Mosbeck, great-aunt of the bride; Ray Mosbeck, the bride's godfather; Mrs. Marriett Liggett, grandmother of the groom; and Carol Molskness, the bride's personal attendant.

Unable to attend were Mr. and Mrs. E.H. LaCoursiere, grandparents of the groom; Mrs. Ray Mosbeck, the bride's godmother, Rolland LaCoursiere and Mrs. Rose LaCoursiere, the groom's godparents.

Hosts and hostesses at the reception given in the church parlors by the bride's parents were Mr. and Mrs. Verl Mosbeck and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Mosbeck, uncles and aunts of the bride. Julie Peterson, a cousin of the bride, was at the guest book. Punch was served by Lorae Johnson and Lisa Wagner, friends of the couple.

The three-tiered wedding cake with a flowing blue water fountain at the base, was surrounded by three round cakes connected with ribbons and bows, and decorated with blue roses. The cake was baked by Ruthie Mosbeck and cut by Joyce Sang, aunt of the bride, and Sue Froiland, cousin of the groom. Carol DeLap, aunt of the bride, and Gladys Liden, great-aunt of the bride, poured the coffee.

Candy kisses were distributed by Shannon and Kirk LaCoursiere, sister and brother of the groom. Connie Molskness and Julie Konickson, friends of the bride, and Sue Peterson, a cousin, arranged the gifts. The flowers were pinned by Laurie McGauvran. Waitresses were Marcie Mosbeck, a cousin of the bride, and Paulette and Faye Casavant, and Jodi Jagol, friends of the bride.

Prior to the rehearsal, the groom's parents hosted a supper at the church for the wedding party and their families.

Following a wedding trip to Winnipeg, the couple is at home in Thief River Falls, where the groom is employed by Bridgeman's as an accountant.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and prior to her marriage was employed at Hillcrest Nursing home in Red Lake Falls. The groom is a graduate of Lincoln high school and the Thief River Falls AVTI school of accounting. Photo, Alice Hofstad, Plummer

Campanula Club Continues Bible Plant Study

Campanula garden club's study of the year, "a plant mentioned in the Bible," continued at the meeting held October 12 at the home of Eleanor Tornes. The plant studied was the pine tree with Marie Fischer as leader.

Mrs. Fischer also led the topic "How to dry flowers for arrangements." To add to the study, she had on display flowers and foliage which were drying, as well as several dried arrangements.

Geneva Overum reported on the luncheon hosted by the Pennington county 4-H council, in observance of National 4-H week.

President Ruth Holmes presided at the meeting attended by nine members. She also led the members in reading the creed and the October poem. Members answered roll call by reporting on the success of this year's gardens. Eleanor Tornes gave the secretary's report, Olga Johnson, the financial report, and Bernice Knutson, the good cheer activities. Olga Johnson and Ellen Peterson volunteered to remove the flowers on the court house lawn.

During the social hour, lunch was served by the hostess and the birthday song was sung for Olga Johnson.

Moccasin Club Will Meet At Anenson Home

Moccasin garden club will meet Tuesday at 2:00 p.m., at the Henry Anenson home.

Roll call will be naming a plant requiring little light.

Members are reminded to bring a plant or white elephant for the good-will fund raising project.

Activities Vary For Residents At Oakland Park

Numerous groups, both local and from out-of-town visited with the residents at Oakland Park during the month of September and presented a variety of programs.

Coming from the greatest distance were John and Sena Bunken of Titonka, Iowa, who presented a program of piano and violin music for the residents.

Other musical programs were presented by the Happy Seniors Rhythm band, Lois Beier, who played the piano for the group, and the Floyd Dalzells, who in addition to playing the piano, autoharp, accordion and the musical saw, presented a devotional message.

Church groups visited with the residents were the Mary circle of Trinity Lutheran church, who served a variety of sweet breads; the Eunice circle of Zion Lutheran church, who led a Bible study, and hosted the monthly birthday party serving ice cream and cake; and members of the Sarah circle of Zion, who held their Bible study at the Home while the residents babysat their children, entertaining them with finger painting, playing with toys and making fall decorations.

The monthly report, submitted by the Home, also noted that Oakland Park participated in the Nursing home pageant held at the Lutheran Memorial home at Halstad. Representing Oakland Park were Queen Florence Kinney and her escort Leonard Feregan. Selected as queen was Clara Olson, 98, of the Viking nursing home, Ulen. Her escort was Peder Winden.

Local BPW Club Presents Woman Of Year Awards

In observance of National Business and Professional Women's week, October 16-22, the local BPW club named two recipients of the Woman of the Year award at the club's monthly dinner-meeting held Tuesday at the Best Western.

Named were Mrs. Gunder (Ruth) Legvold, who has been very active in community service for over 50 years, and club member Lydia Dahlen, retired director of nurses at Northwestern hospital.

Mrs. Legvold, in accepting the award, thanked the group and challenged the members to continue studying and learning. She said that since new fields are constantly opening for women, they must be prepared to accept new responsibilities when challenged. She also reminisced briefly about her work with the Girl Scouts, the "Make it with wool" program, and as judge at style shows, county fairs and in open class judging in foods, clothing, and fancy work departments at Hallock, Roseau, Warren, Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls.

Lovanell Kraemer, chairman of the program committee, introduced Mrs. Legvold and stated that Miss Dahlen, who was unable to attend the meeting, will receive her award at the November meeting of the club.

Several guests attended the meeting and introduced themselves. They were Mildred Hoppe of Wayzata, Ruth Olson and Mrs. H.G. Rasmussen, all friends of Mrs. Legvold; Marlean Ohlhauser, secretary at PCA; Geri Howe, student at Northland community college; Rhonda Frei, student at UND; Betty Fitzgerald, employed at Norwestern bank; Violet McKeever, realtor for the Great Northwest agency; Myrna Lane and IvaDell Hoppe, both employed by the Falls Clinic, and Kathryn Staffens, funeral director at the Green Funeral home.

For the benefit of the guests, the members also introduced themselves and told where they were employed.

Information on the BPW Foundation was given by Foundation chairman Ellen Spray. She stated that the Foundation administers scholarships which provide financial assistance to mature women for education and training, enabling them to enter, re-enter or advance in the workforce. Awards range from $200 to $1000 and are good for one year. Funds may be used to cover tuition, books, child care of other school-related expenses.

To be eligible for scholarships, women must be 25 years of age or older and a citizen of the United States; must complete the program of study within 24 months of the award date; must be officially accepted into a program of study at an accredited United States institution; demonstrate need for financial assistance; and have a definite plan to use the desired training to improve chances for advancement, to train for a new career field or to enter or re-enter the job market.

Scholarships are awarded for full-time or part-time study. They may cover academic, vocational or technical training. Not covered are studies at the doctoral level (this does not apply to law or medical students); correspondence courses or post-doctoral studies.

There are two scholarship application deadlines a year: April 15 and September 15. The selection committee meet in June and December. Application forms can be obtained between February 1 and April 1, and July 1 to September 1, by sending a business-size, self-addressed, stamped (40 cent) envelope to Scholarships Department, BPW Foundation, 2012 Massachusetts avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Mrs. Spray concluded by saying that applicants need not be BPW members and they do not require endorsement of a BPW club.

President Edie Brandli presided at the meeting and invited the guests to attend the next meeting set for November 15. She also expressed her appreciation to Pat Thompson for her work in recruiting new members.

PARTICIPATING in the Ms. Nursing Home pageant held recently at the Lutheran Memorial home in Halstad were Queen Florence Kinney and her escort Leonard Feregan. Both are residents at Oakland Park Nursing home.

Whole Wheat Rye Bread

2 cups whole wheat flour
2 cups rye flour
3 to 3½ cups all purpose flour
3 tablespoons sugar
3 teaspoons salt
2 packages active dry yeast
2¼ cups milk
One-third cup butter or margarine
One-third cup molasses

Method: In a large bowl, combine 1 cup of rye flour and whole wheat flour, 1 cup all purpose flour, sugar, salt and yeast. In medium saucepan over low heat, warm milk, butter or margarine and molasses until very warm (120 to 130 degrees, shortening doesn't need to melt). With mixer at low speed, gradually pour liquid into dry ingredients. Increase speed to medium and beat two minutes, occasionaly scraping bowl with rubber spatula. Beat in ½ cup whole wheat flour, ½ cup rye flour and ½ cup all purpose flour, or enough to make a thick batter. Continue beating two minutes, scraping bowl occasionally.

With a spoon, stir in the remaining dark flours and about 1¼ cups all purpose flour to make a soft dough. Turn onto lightly floured surface and knead until smooth and elastic, about 10 minutes. Shape into ball and place in a greased large bowl, turning dough to great top. Cover with towel and let rise in warm, draft-free place (80 to 90 degrees) until double in bulk, (about one hour). Punch down, turn onto lightly floured surface, cut in half, cover with bowl for 15 minutes. Place in two greased 9x5 inch pans, let rise until double and bake for 30-35 minutes in a 400 degree oven.

State House Adopts Sparby Resolution

Minnesota House agriculture committee has adopted a resolution sponsored by State Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls, which urges the federal government to render disaster assistance to farmers in northwestern Minnesota.

Speaking before the committee, Sparby told the members that four years of poor weather and low farm prices for farmers in Beltrami, Red Lake, Pennington, Polk and Marshall counties had brought farmers to their knees.

"This resolution will emphasize to the Minnesota Congressional delegation the high level of distress of farmers in northwestern Minnesota," he said.

Sparby said he also attempted to reach President Reagan earlier in the day but was unsuccessful. "However, I did speak to a White House staff member, and urged her to relay to the Secretary of Agriculture how important it is for the federal government to quickly institute a disaster relief program," he said.

The resolution recommended an 11-point package of loan and grant programs to assist farmers. It also recommended basing loan eligibility on four of the last five years, and on 20 per cent loss of one crop rather than 30 per cent loss of all crops.

After the resolution was adopted, Sparby said, "I think a strong statement like this will exert pressure on officials in the federal government to get the wheels rolling in government agencies which are responsible for disaster aid."

Aerial Survey By State Will Hit This Area

virtually impossible to map the fundamental bedrock of a large part of Minnesota.

Magnetic data obtained from the survey are reduced by computer processing to contour maps showing variation in total magnetic intensity caused by variations in underlying geology. Contour maps of magnetic intensity for each of the 7.5 minute quadrangle sheets in the counties already covered may be obtained from the Minnesota geological survey. These sheets at a scale of one inch to 2,000 feet correspond to the U.S. Geological Survey topographic quadrangle sheets. County maps of magnetic intensity are available in color at the scale of 1 to 250,000, or about four miles to the inch, and a synthetic shaded-relief photo image of the "magnetic topography" of northwestern Minnesota has also been prepared by computer processing of the variations in magnetic intensity as though they were variations in surface elevations. It is expected that maps from the new survey of northwestern Minnesota will be available for public sale in about a year.

Flight operations and computer processing are being performed by Airborne systems of Cypress (CA), specialists in airborne geophysical mapping. Geologic interpretation of the maps is carried out by the Minnesota geological survey. Department of natural resources uses the maps to aid in evaluating the mineral potential of state lands.

Questions about the survey should be directed to Val Chandler or Matt Walton at the Minnesota geological survey, 2642 University Ave., University of Minnesota, St. Paul, MN 55114; (612) 373-3372.

He is the first Vietnam conflict veteran to rise through the ranks of the Veterans of Foreign Wars organization to the post of national commander which he will assume next year.

DMH Company Having Good Year In RLF

And produce they have. DMH has increased its customer base by 15 per cent over last year. When you increase the number of potential buyers, you also increase your sales, according to Lampe.

As proof, Lampe said August, 1983, was the biggest sales month of the year. It was also the best August since 1978. The company also had its best September since 1979.

Lampe blamed the recent recession for the decline in his company's sales. He added, however, "What's happened in the past two or three years was our industry lost sight of what our product was supposed to do."

He said all mobile home manufacturers started building fancier homes. Because of the recession people couldn't afford them. DMH's customers are primarily the first-time buyers. They don't have $500 to $600 a month for a site-built house, according to Lampe.

"We've reassessed our niche in the home business," he said. "Seventy-five per cent of our models will fit into the $350-per-month price range."

Lampe said two of his biggest concerns are the state's high workmen's compensation rates and high unemployment rates.

"It's a cost of doing business and it raises the cost of our product," he said.

He added, it becomes a competitive situation when dealing with producers from other states.

"Our workmen's comp and unemployment insurance rates are probably a third higher than our two plants in Kansas," said Lampe.

DMH's Red Lake Falls plant is one of three divisions that make up the corporation. There are two plants in Kansas and the corporate offices are in Michigan.

Lampe said he tries to get out once a month to meet with his dealers and scout the competition. He stressed the importance of staying one jump ahead of the competition. And when that's not possible, at least stay even.

"When a customer comes in he has to see more value in our home than in our competitors'," he said. "That's how you stay successful in business."

Red Lake Falls had the first mobile home manufacturing plant in Minnesota. Not only has the plant seen good years, it has gone through two severe recessions.

"I think it's a feather in our cap to say we weathered them," said Lampe. "One of the reasons is, we're known as a manufacturer of a quality product."

Lampe gives all the credit to his employees on the production line. About two-thirds of the work force at DMH has 10 or more years experience.

"There are many people who started back in 1962 who are still on the production line," he said. "It shows me they take pride in what they do."

While Lampe said he believes the company has always put out a quality product, one problem in the past has been Detroiter homes didn't have as much eye appeal as some of their competitors. He now says DMH has achieved that eye appeal as well as maintaining its high standards of quality.

Lampe said the demand for mobile homes has built up over the past couple of years. He bases this on data from the U.S. census department and his own marketing research. That data said DMH should have been producing more than it ever has. However, because of the recession, people weren't buying mobile homes.

"I would look for big things to happen in 1984 and '85," he said.

He said all the indicators point to shelter builders to have good years in the near future. However, "It all depends on interest rates," said Lampe.

He explained, "we're in the monthly-payment business. People don't care how much an item costs, but whether it will fit into their monthly budget."

Lampe said, if interest rates stay down, the shelter business can look forward to "banner years."

Senators Air Public Land Questions Fri.

"Over the past six years, Minnesota has acquired 117,000 acres of land but has sold only 21,000 acres," Stumpf continued. "A major problem in this whole area is not having a mechanism which allows the state to identify and conveniently dispose of surplus land."

According to the chairman of the subcommittee examining the issue, Senator Randy Peterson of Wyoming, MN, the main focus of the subcommittee's study is to carefully examine each recommendation made by the auditor, as well as monitor the ongoing project by the DNR, to see if state policy could be improved through state legislation.

"As a subcommittee, and as a Legislature, I am convinced that it is in the best interest of the state to follow this process so that the problems of public land management and sales can be defined and alternatives to land purchases or holdings be discussed," Sen. Stumpf added.

Construction Continues At Black River

capability at least cost, consistent with all dam safety requirements;

(2) A normally open gated outlet works capable of passing all reasonably expected stream flows without using more than a minimal amount of the available storage capacity;

(3) A reliable gate closing mechanism that can be worked during infrequent flood emergency situations;

(4) An operations plan under which gate closing and opening decisions are tied to flood flows on the Red Lake and Red Rivers;

(5) A spillway system that can safely pass flood flows once the storage capacity has filled.

The enbankment of the dam is about 1,000 feet north of Red Lake county road 13 where the river valley is about 1,000 feet wide and has a maximum depth of 38 feet. With a proposed 100-yard flood pool elevation of 988 feet, the inundated area would be 400 areas. The small permanent pool, however, would have an area of only about 12 acres with a typical depth of six feet. This includes the channel to be constructed upstream from the control structure to divert the river flow eastward from the present channel.

The dam itself is constructed of local materials and the side slopes will be three-to-one grade seeded to grass. Top of the enbankment will be crowned 16 feet wide and the emergency spillway 660 feet in length will be located west of the main embankment.

The gated outlet is designed to pass 2,500 cubic feet of waster per second with an 11-foot increase in pool elevation, which corresponds to a 900 acre feet reduction in available storage capacity. The intake has stoplog bays to adjust the pool level and the two 6x14 foot gates were installed downstream of the intake weir. Conduit through the embankment is now being constructed and consists of a 12-foot square box culvert. A tower spillway with 120 feet of weir also discharges through the conduit, entering downstream of the control gates.

Funding for the project includes $450,000 from the Minnesota legislative commission on Minnesota resources (LCMR), $335,000 from the lower Red River watershed management board and $234,000 from the Red Lake watershed district.

Actual construction costs are estimated at $706,500 with $97,000 for land rights and highway costs, $215,500 for engineering, administration, legal and contingencies expenses.

Projected to be used in the contract are 700 cubic yards of concrete, 1,200 square feet of deck, 300 cubic yards of riprap, 300 cubic yards of gravel drain, a footbridge and two gates and lifts. Also involved is 5,000 cubic yards of core trench excavation and 150,000 cubic yards of embankment fill at three different levels.

Drainage area for the dam is 108 square miles. The 12-acre permanent pool would have about 70 acre-feet of water and the gated pool would cover 320 acres with storage for 3,500 acre-feet of water. Emergency spillway level would cause water to cover 380 acres behind the dam with 4,400 acre-feet in storage while a freeboard flood would inundate 510 acres and have storage of 6,100 acre-feet of water.

Property owners most greatly affected are the Don Shirricks who have 113 acres of cropland and 103 acres of woods and pasture involved in the project. Other property owners affected to a much lesser degree are Reuben Lehrer, Margaret Haave, Henry Melin, Mosbeck Brothers, Raymond Mosbeck, Axel Naplin, Melvin Melin, Ira and Deb Cota, Walter Wieland, Russell Coenen, Willard Boutain, Danny Schmitz, Louis Zutz, Harvey Casavan, Zeno Casavan and Ann Marie Barth.

Donald Schirrick's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Schirrick, live on the property near the dam site and are upset by the construction work going on virtually in their back yard. Peter Schirrick has lived all of his 90 years on the farm where he was born and worries about the affect the dam will have on his son's cattle operation. They also wonder at the naming of the project the Black River dam rather than the Shirrick dam, since other flood control projects in the area have been named for principal land owners where the dams are located.

CHECKING THE FIT of some new equipment, this ghoulish trio has been assisting the Thief River Falls Jaycees in preparing their "Haunted House", which will be open for public inspection from 6:45 to 10:30 p.m. Friday through Monday, in Barnick's warehouse, behind the Big A auto parts store on Highway 59 South. Project cochairmen Dave Cariveau and Dick Zeman say that this year's gallery of horrors will be the best ever, "If you like being frightened!" With 13 (isn't that an unlucky number?) extremely dark and creppy hallways, through which visitors will have to feel their way if they ever hope to escape, the Jaycees don't recommend that people go in alone. "Unless they're really brave, most people should bring a group of friends along to provide moral support," they say. Those hallways are nearly twice as long as last year, and lead the unsuspecting visitor through about a dozen horrible displays featuring instruments of torture, strange and ugly creatures, and all kinds of surprises along the way. To assist those who would like to put a show of bravery, the Jaycees will be offering refreshments, including chewy treats to keep the teeth from chattering, and hot chocolate to reduce those shivers of fear. As a special incentive to lure the timid, who might let fear overcome their sense of adventure and curiosity, the Jaycees will offer special treats, free to the first 75 customers each night. Anyone still unsure of whether they want to risk 75 cents and the ability to sleep without nightmares for a while, might consider the fact that the Jaycees will be donating a share of the proceeds from this year's ahunted house to the Thief River Falls United Way, and that's working for all of us.

Congressman Concerned On Dairy Voting

Congressman Arlan Stangeland says he is very concerned about Tuesday's defeat in the House of compromise legislation for dairy families.

The House voted 180-200 against a move to push the dairy compromise directly into a joint House-Senate conference committee. The legislation had been passed by the House ag committee and the full Senate earlier.

"Virtually every dairy co-op and organization in America recognizes that this is the only paid diversion program that has any chance of becoming law," Congressman Stangeland said.

"It is not ideal, but the plan we tried to pass yesterday will certainly be better than any program hammered out on the House floor," the four-term House veteran said. "Now we will have to bring the dairy legislation to the floor for a full debate.

"When urban congressman who have absolutely no understanding of the dairy program get their hands on dairy legislation on the floor, no one knows what damage they will do to farm families," Congressman Stangeland said.

Congressman Stangeland noted that it has taken a year to hammer out a dairy compromise that was acceptable to the dairy organizations, the Congress and the administration.

"We tried to pass this bill without amendments because it seemed the compromise was unravelling," he said. "Now we hope it won't fall apart on the House floor."

Congressman Stangeland said some farm state Congressmen voted against the compromise, hoping to get a better bill.

"They were only hurting dairy farmers," he said. "I guarantee that any bill created during a floor debate will be less effective than the bill passed by the Senate and the House agriculture committee.

Norwest Notes Increase In Net Income

Norwest Corporation had net income of $31,172,000 for the third quarter, up 15.1 per cent from $27,072,000 for the third quarter of 1982.

On a per share basis, net income was $1 per common share, up 9.9 per cent from 91 cents in the third quarter of 1982. On a fully diluted basis, net income per share was 96 cents, compared with 86 cents a year ago.

For the nine months, net income was $100,999,000, a 27.1 per cent increase from $79,449,000 in 1982. On a per share basis, net income was $3.32 per common share, up 15.3 per cent from $2.88 in the same period a year ago. Fully diluted net income per share was $3.18, compared with $2.75 after nine months in 1982.

Stangeland: Democrats Stop Aid To Farmers

Democrats on the full House agriculture committee unanimously opposed an amendment which Congressman Arlan Stangeland offered last week that would have provided crucial relief to farmers in Pennington and Red Lake counties. Stangeland said his amendment was rejected by 11-6 vote Wednesday.

The amendment would have provided special loans for farmers in counties which have been declared disaster areas for at least three consecutive years. The two Minnesota counties are among only 11 counties nation-wide that would have qualified directly for this relief.

Qualified farmers would have had all farm-related debts consolidated into one 15 to 40 year loan at five per cent interest under the Stangeland amendment. Some of those farmers would also have received a five-year moratorium on payments of interest and principal of these loans.

Polk, Beltrami, Clearwater and Marshall county farmers also could have qualified for the relief on a case-by-case basis. "Storms and natural disasters don't stop at the county line," Congressman Stangeland said.

The Stangeland amendment was supported by 11 of the 12 Republicans on the committee, but all 15 Democrats opposed this relief measure.

"This is not a final defeat," Congressman Stangeland said. "I will attempt to add this amendment to the 1983 drought relief act when it goes to the House floor. But today was a clear-cut case of House agriculture committed Democrats showing a lack of concern for farmers that have suffered successions of disasters."

Rep. Stangeland noted that he had been willing to cross party lines to support the 1982 farm crisis act and was the only Republican to do so.

Hospitals And Schools Given Energy Grants

Based on recommendations by the Minnesota department of energy and economic development, the U.S. department of energy this month awarded $3.5 million to 127 schools and hospitals in Minnesota to improve the energy efficiency of their buildings. These federal grants were matched by $3.5 million from the schools and hospitals.

Grants for energy conservation measures were received by 76 public school districts, five private schools, six colleges of universities, and 20 hospitals in 50 counties. These grants will be used for such projects as conversion to fluorescent lighting; modification of heating and ventilation systems to improve efficiency, and conversions to wood burning boilers.

Average school project will repay its cost through fuel savings in five years; the average hospital project — eight years.

Technical assistance grants were also awarded to 15 schools and five hospitals for buildings audits to determine the cost and potential energy savings of energy conservation measures.

Many In State Choose To Be Organ Donors

Many more Minnesotans are choosing to designate themselves on their drivers licenses as possible transplant organ donors.

According to the Minnesota department of public safety, a total of 229,625 people including 100,813 men and 128,812 women made designations during 1982. That is a record number for one year. Number signed up for the donor program during its first seven years through the end of 1981 was 136,000.

Why has there been such a dramatic increase in the numbers? Public safety and health officials believe the continuing stream of positive publicity from places like the University of Minnesota and other centers where transplant surgery is being done has helped increase the visibility of the donor program. One case, that involving Jamie Fiske., recently generated a nearly daily example of so-called "good news."

Donor designation is legal permission for a hospital to utilize organs from the individual's body for transplants if an accident should cause death but leave portions of the body otherwise salvagable for transplant. Nevertheless, most hospitals in Minnesota still consider it good medical practice to require family consent before they will remove any organs for transplant.

In practice, the donor designation on a license actually acts only to alert a hospital that the deceased is a likely provider of organs. Rarely will a family go against the wishes of the deceased by preventing the organ transplant donations.

TIC Board Of Directors Holds Meeting

The international coalition (TIC) for land and water stewardship in the Red River drainage basin had a board of directors meeting on Tuesday, October 11 at the Hillsboro (ND) County Hearth conference room. Present were members of the board from Minnesota and North Dakota, of the American contingent of TIC.

Meeting had a twofold focus. First was to update plans on the December 8 and 9 Red River valley international water summit conference to be held at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks. Second focus was to work in conjunction with the Red River valley mayor's association to follow up on and generate mayoral interest in the conference.

Next board of directors meeting will be November 1 at Hillsboro county hearth at 7:30 a.m.

The Job Training Partnership Act, implemented Oct. 1, will provide new opportunities for workers of all ages, the U.S. Department of Labor reported.

Ask The News Council

For a number of years now The Times has been a contributor to the Minnesota News Council, along with a large number of other Minnesota newspapers and other media and private contributors. We have done this because we believe the council serves a worthwhile purpose in building understanding between the public and the press, provides a basis for helping the press understand its responsibilities and need for sensitivity, and adds to the integrity of the news media in general.

The council serves to mediate differences between the news media and the people with whom it deals — either as news sources or as people in the news. People who believe they have been improperly treated are encouraged to contact the council with their complaint, and it will be given an impartial airing if it can not be resolved directly with the news media itself.

Procedure to be followed is set out in this summary from the council's annual report:

The first step is to contact the management of the news organization and make a good faith attempt to resolve the matter through discussion. Many complaints are settled at this level. If discussion fails to resolve the problem, contact the News Council.

Any individual, group or organization may bring a complaint to the Council. There are no fees required, only a little time.

The Council will contact the newspaper or broadcast station to seek a response. Before the Council proceeds further, however, the complainant must sign a waiver agreeing to forego legal or governmental actions against the news organization. The Council is an alternative, not a supplement, to other kinds of intervention.

After contacting the news medium, the Council may schedule a public hearing, where both sides will discuss the issue. The Council will review all testimony thoroughly and make a determination.

The Council cannot penalize news organizations or impose sanctions to enforce its determinations. Instead, the Council depends on the public airing of the dispute for its impact. Council findings are reported by newspapers and broadcast stations throughout the state, regardless of the outcome.

For further information, or to initiate a complaint, contact: Minnesota News Council, P.O. Box 14147, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55414. Telephone (612) 376-7102.

Informing The Public

Importance of public bodies keeping their constituency informed about what they are doing is emphasized in the following editorial which appeared recently in the Warren Sheaf:

Despite almost total federal funding approved for the cleaning and snagging of the Snake River from Warren for 52 miles to the Red River, the project has been abandoned by the Middle River-Snake River Watershed Board. At a hearing May 24 in Alvarado, which was poorly attended, the only testimony was against the project.

The federal government was to pick up $647,200 of the estimated $697,200 cost of the project with the local share of about $50,000 for easements on 900 acres of river channel and 50 acres of shelterbelts was to be assessed owners of some 78,000 acres involved.

Just because the federal government waves dollars in front of you does not make a project acceptable but the watershed board had been working on this clearing and snagging project for some 10 years. Now the funds designated for this watershed are probably irretrievable but perhaps this clearing project could be coupled with a water retention project upstream from Warren.

The Middle River-Snake River Watershed covers 922 square miles, 768 square miles in Marshall County, or almost half of Marshall County, 22 square miles in Pennington County and 132 square miles in Polk County. The runoff from this area would constitute a meaningful addition to the Red River at problem time. The project to hold up flood waters in the back reaches of the river for a short time is what should be the high priority item.

The snagging of the Snake River may not have been all that important but if the watershed board is going to proceed and do only the projects which it feels have overwhelming community support it must get off its duff and do a better job of public relations to let the community know what it is attempting to do. Long range planning also needs long range public relations to achieve public understanding and support for projects which may be 10 years or more in the making.

MPIRG Doesn't Speak For The Public

Following editorial is from the Morris Sun:

When does a special interest group most resemble a special interest group? When it calls itself a public interest group.

The above statement by James J. Kilpatrick came to mind as we read the September issue of Statewatch, a publication of the Minnesota Public Interest Research Group. The issue contains MPIRG's "1983 Legislative Report Card," which assigns each Minnesota legislator "A" through "F" grades based on voting records.

"The public interest legislation for this year's voting record survey was selected by MPIRG's lobbying staff," Statewatch says. "Once the final bills were selected, the correct public interest position was determined."

Minnesotans might be surprised to learn what MPIRG regards as "public interest legislation." Many would be even more surprised to learn what the "correct" positions on these issues were.

For example, how many of you had a burning interest in HF 474? MPIRG describes the measure as "a bill to prohibit the expenditure of state and local government funds for the sole purpose of preparing plans for the evacuation of the civilian population in the event of a nuclear attack." This bill and a proposed amendment to it made up two of the 19 issues which MPIRG selected as vital public interest legislation. (MPIRG's "correct" vote was in support of the bill.)

Legislators who supported a bill prohibiting the imposition of rent control on private, residential property were judged by MPIRG to have voted incorrectly. "Elimination of the threat of rent control removes one major deterrent to rent gouging," MPIRG asserts. Most of us believe that government has no more business setting rents than it does determining wages or prices. The DFL-controlled House, for example, voted overwhelmingly to prohibit rent control.

MPIRG favored a bill creating a state workers compensation insurance fund; it opposed a bill requiring draft-age male students receiving financial aid to comply with draft registration laws. We doubt that such positions would be considered "correct" by most memebers of the public.

It is significant that, in selecting its 19 crucial issues, MPIRG ignored the major tax and spending bills voted on in the last session. Over half of the issues the group selected would be regarded as obscure by most members of the public.

When the votes from these 19 issues were tallied, MPIRG gave 79 "A" grades — all of them to DFLers. Thirty DFLers had grades ranging from "B" to "D" and nine DFLers received an "F". MPIRG gave two Independent-Republicans a "C"; three I-Rs received a "D." The remaining 76 Independent-Republicans were given an "f" by MPIRG's lobbyists.

Lobbying by special interest groups is an established feature of the American system. And MPIRG has as much right to lobby the legislature as any other special interest group. But those who champion "truth in labeling" should practice what they preach. A group with such narrow, partisan views has no right to claim that it speaks for the public interest.

Teaching Conservation

Following editorial is from the St. Cloud Daily Times:

A new statewide elementary curriculum on soil conservation is refreshing in its approach and unique in its application.

The innovative pilot program is sponsored by the Governor's Council on Rural Development. It will be used with students as young as five years old, who will study erosion, urban encroachment, composting, zoning council actions and other aspects of land use. The curriculum is the first of its kind in the nation for elementary students.

By teaching elementary children about wise use of the land, the curriculum offers the promise of a generation better educated in the stewardship of our state's most valuable resource.

Perhaps the curriculum's greatest strength is its basic premise: that soil conservation is not a topic to be left solely to environmental specialists.

Crime Reports Show Decrease In Percentage

The FBI's uniform crime report figures for the first six months of 1983 show a five per cent decline in the amount of reported crime. Decreases in the crime index were noted in all population groups, rural and suburban areas, and geographical regions.

FBI director William H. Webster noted that each of the individual crimes in the crime index registered decreases for this semiannual period. In the violent crime category, murder fell 12 per cent; forcible rape, four per cent; robbery, eight per cent; and aggravated assault, three per cent. In the crimes related to property loss, there was an eight per cent decline in burglary, three per cent in larceny-theft, and six per cent in reported motor vehicle thefts.

Director Webster pointed out that these decreases in reported crime for the first half of 1983 continue the experience evidenced in 1982. There was an overall decline of three per cent in that year as compared to 1981. In the first quarter of 1983, there was a two per cent decline followed by an eight per cent decline in the second quarter, resulting in the overall five per cent decrease.

Geographically, the northeastern and southern states each recorded overall six per cent declines; the western states, a decrease of five per cent; and the north central states, a three per cent drop. While violent and property crime as a whole fell in all regions, two individual offenses showed regional increases. Forcible rape was up seven per cent in the north central states and one per cent in the northeastern states; aggravated assault increased one per cent in both the northeast and the west.

Like the nation as a whole, serious crime decreased five per cent in cities over 50,000 in population. For these larger cities, downward trends were evident in all crime categories except aggravated assault, which increased two per cent in cities with over one million residents. Both the surburban and rural areas experienced downturns in the number of reported index offenses, six and four per cent, respectively. In cities outside of metropolitan areas, the decline was two per cent.

Arson, the eighth index offense, fell 15 per cent in volume during the first half of 1983. When arson was considered in the crime index total, the overall per cent change was the same, a five per cent decline.

Tips Given For Having A Safe Halloween

Halloween can be fun, exciting and scary for both children and their parents. The holiday falls on Monday, October 31 this year, and will draw children to outdoor areas, crossing streets during evening hours, as they go house to house on their quest for goodies.

Here are some suggestions from the Minnesota department of public safety to enhance their safety:

— Remind children to cross streets at corners only and to walk not run on sidewalks as far off the road as possible, facing traffic.

— Have children stay in their immediate neighborhood and remind them to stay away from stray animals and strangers.

— Travel in groups with at least one parent accompanying the children.

— Have children wear light colored costumes or costumes accented by reflectorized tape. A flashlight, light stick or battery powered lantern can also make the difference between being seen and not being seen.

— Have children try on their costumes before Halloween night. Avoid loose, flowing costumes that might tangle and cause a child to fall while crossing a street. Make certain that masks do not interfere with visition.

— Before buying a costume, beard, wig or mask, check to make sure that it is fire resistant. If the costume is homemade and you wish to make sure that it is flameproof, soak the garment in a solution of seven ounces of borax, three ounces of boric acid and two quarts of warm water.

— Caution children against eating their treats until they return home so parents have a chance to inspect everything.

— If you should be driving your motor vehicle on Halloween night, drive with special caution and watch out for all those little ghosts and goblins.

MCC System Notes Increase In Enrollment

Dr. Gerald Christenson, chancellor of the Minnesota community college system, announced recently that enrollment for fall quarter, 1983-84, for the 18 college system has reached an all-time high of 38,412.

This represents an increase of 2.6 per cent over last year's enrollment, Christenson announced these numbers based on tenth day enrollment figures, the standard bench mark for recording fall quarter college enrollment.

System has maintained a steady increase in its student body population. Ten years ago, stated Christenson, the system had registered 23,763 students during the fall quarter. Five years ago enrollment figures has climbed to 32,863 during the same period.

This fall, Normandale community college in Bloomington, with a total enrollment of 6,591, recorded the largest increase in students of all colleges. This figure represents an increase of 316 students compared to fall quarter last year.

Worthington community college reported the largest per cent increase in student population for the system. With a present total head count of 700, this figure represents a 36 per cent increase over their enrollment of last fall.

Enrollment figure for Northland community college, Thief River Falls, for fall of 1983 was 710 showing an increase of 87 students enrolled, or 14 per cent, over the 1982 fall figure of 623.

Christenson added that the most dramatic change in the compostion of the student body during this ten-year period has been an increase in women attending Minnesota community colleges. Today the number of women currently enrolled in the system has reached a high of 22,146, which is more than double what it was ten years ago. Women now constitute 58 per cent of the system's total enrollment.

Defense Dept. And SBA To Aid Minorities

President Reagan's call for creative use of federal programs to assist disadvantaged minorities has resulted in a new initiative by the U.S. small business administration (SBA) and the department of defense(DOD).

SBA Administrator James C. Sanders and Deputy Secretary of Defense Paul D. Thayer met recently and signed an interdevelopmental memorandum of understanding which can lead to more business and more jobs for Indian-owned and tribal-owned businesses.

Agreement provides that the department of defense will strive to increase its use of SBA designated firms owned by American Indians or tribes in the department's purchase of goods and services from the private sector.

"This is certainly the most significant agreement of its type that we have negotiated with other federal agencies," Sanders said. "Just the size and breadth of the DOD procurement program can offer opportunities for these small firms that no other federal department of agency can offer."

Firms designated by SBA for consideration for increased business will be certified under the agency's 8(a) program, which provides that firms owned and operated by socially and economically disadvantaged persons may be awarded non-competitive contracts for goods and services.

Department of defense said through the agreement it would include such firms on appropriate lists of prospective contractors, provide education in the techniques of doing business with the government, encourage major prime contractors to consider the firms for subcontracts and offer other support service.

Sanders noted that SBA's procurement automated source system, a computerized list of small businesses offering services and products for federal purchase, already includes more than 2,300 firms owned and operated by American Indians and Indian tribal groups.

"This agreement will offer new opportunities for some of the firms on this list and other small businesses that join this group," Sanders said, noting that the agreement recognized a "unique and special relationship" with Indian tribal governments and with tribal members.

Soo Revenues Up Sharply In Third Quarter

Revenues and net income of the Soo Line railroad company were up sharply in the third quarter of 1983, but results for the first nine months of the year remain below 1982, according to Thomas M. Beckley, chairman of the board.

In the third quarter, net income was $4.7 million or 62 cents per share, up 67 per cent over net income of $2.8 million or 37 cents per share in the third quarter of 1982. Revenues for the period amounted to $81.7 million, up 18 per cent from revenues of $69.3 million last year. Operations in the third quarter of 1982 were affected by a three day strike in September which halted rail traffic.

During the first nine months Soo Line had net income of $7.1 million or 93 cents per share, 45 per cent below net income of $12.9 million or $1.70 per share in the prior year. Revenues for the nine month period were $214.9 million, slightly below 1982 nine month revenues of $216.5 million.

Total carloads handled were up 19 per cent in the third quarter of 1983 and 3 per cent for the first nine months.

Stress Research Centers On Study Of Some Children

by Lynette Lamb
'U'M News Service

A brave and resourceful Richfield girl who escaped the trunk of her abductor's car by disassembling and crawling out the taillight helped to inspire some University of Minnesota research that continues today.

Norman Garmezy, a professor of psychology, included the newspaper account of that 11-year-old girl's January 1978 escape in his grant application to study stress-resistant children — those who remain healthy and competent in the face of stress.

That grant helped to fund several research projects coordinated by Garmezy, all of which are still in progress. Each of the three projects — one studying regular public schoolchildren, one studying handicapped schoolchildren and one studying children who had undergone major heart surgery — is now being analyzed after three years of collecting data.

What the researchers are looking for is what they call protective factors — attributes or situations that serve as potential inoculants against the damaging effects of stress, deprivation and disadvantage.

"Protective factors research is a fairly barren area," said Garmezy, adding that more research has been done on risk factors for mental illness. Both, he said, "will be of central importance in the decades ahead because we cannot have programs of prevention and intervention in mental illness if we don't know both the risk and protective factors involved."

Determining what those protective factors are is anything but easy, Garmezy said. Previous research has suggested three broad categories of variables that seem to influence how resistant to stress children will be: the child's disposition; the nature of the home life; and the presence of some outside support system that encourages and reinforces the child's efforts to cope.

Beyond these broad categories, which aren't terribly revealing, Garmezy and his colleagues think that they may have teased out some more specific personal attributes that could be crucial.

"The cognitive resourcefulness of the child is very important, but IQ is only the beginning of the search to understand the child's use of intellect," Garmezy said. Effectiveness in problem solving, reflectiveness, quality of divergent thinking, flexibility and social understanding are among the other possible stress-resistant attributes the researchers have studied. Garmezy also mentioned an additional quality, one often cited as helping adults cope: humor. "The ability of kids to generate humor might be an important element," said Garmezy. A researcher working with Garmezy is looking at the quality of humor and wit in children under stress.

But the Minnesota researchers are still unsure which of these factors is the most important, or how family and other external supports figure in. "We do have some insights," Garmezy said. "But we are only beginning our study of protective factors, which is still an area of tremendous neglect in the psychological sciences and in those biological sciences basic to understanding mental health and disorders."

In an effort to correct that neglect, one of the four recently established John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur mental health research networks will be devoted to studying the risk and protective factors in the major mental disorders. Garmezy is chair of this network, which will attempt to isolate the biological, psychological and social factors that act as either risk or protective factors in schizophrenia, affective disorders — especially depression — and antisocial personality disorders, of which crime is one major expression.

Attempting to meet this challenge will be a broadly interdisciplinary group made up of psychiatrists, psychologists, psychopathologists, epidemiologists, sociologists, geneticists, and biochemists who are the members of five research groups in the United States and England.

Collaborative work across disciplines is one of Garmezy's main concerns. "The psychological and biological sciences must be integrated," he said. "The growth of the biological disciplines in understanding mental illness will be a central factor in figuring this all out, but not without an accompanying psychology. We must bring the best of both to bear on the issue."

Implications of actually determining the risk and protective factors of mental illness are enormous. "Mental illness is the number one public health problem in American today," Garmezy said. "Millions of people suffer from depression every year, antisocial disorders have a huge impact on our cities in terms of crime, and schizophrenia has remained an unsolved mystery for centuries.

"The United States has lagged very badly in studying the epidemiology of mental disorders, and yet only when we have information about who gets sick, where it occures, what the rates of different mental disorders are and what factors influence these rates will we begin to understand the risk factors that operate in psychopathology."

But Garmezy keeps coming back to emphasizing the protective as well as the risk factors. "We've been so devoted to the study of maladaptation that we've failed to recognize the struggle of all humans, sick and well alike, to make it," he said. "Asking what a person's strengths are is a very different orientation for us, but it's an important one."

Children who have lived through war, terrorism, accidents, natural disasters and concentration camps — Garmezy has studied and written about all of these survivors and he remains convinced of the importance of paying attention to them. "I've found so many children who were supposed to be at risk and were successfully making it as adults; in fact, there were many more who were succeeding than there were who were doing poorly," Garmezy said. "The phenomenon of stress resistance is a reality. The major scientific task is to learn what these factors are, and — which — underlying processes influence the development of competence despite the presence of risk."

"All things begin with a single case," Garmezy said, referring to the Richfield girl. "I never cease to marvel at the resilience and magnificence of the human spirit."

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

"Dear Jim: In last week's letter, I said that I believed there is a Santa Claus, and that he has demonstrated his presence by giving us freedom and opportunity, as well as a free will... that we have much to be thankful for... that our free enterprise system shares well (76 cents out of every sales dollar ending up as employee compensation, allowing us to have so many of the better things of life). I also pointed out that no company has complete security. . . we live in a competitive world and a competitive society.

Competition is something you should understand, Jim. Here in our free enterprise system you make the decisions on what you need and what you will buy. Frankly, I'll bet that you are a good shopper, that you compare quality, style and price, and make your decision, quality and style being comparable, based on price.

That's why we have been having so many problems in the United States. We are competing with other nations where wages are much lower and where productivity may be much higher.

In your letter, Jim, you discussed the automobile industry. You wondered why Chrysler paid off $400,000,000 in loans, costing it some $50,000,000 annually in interest, instead of giving its workers a raise. You felt that the workers had given up a portion of their earned wages to help Chrysler, and Chrysler was being indifferent toward its employees.

Well, Jim, the $400,000,000 was amassed, in large part, from the sale of Chrysler's more successful operating businesses, not from profits. The recently reported $310,000,000 in profits, after billions in losses, is really overstated... in normal terms it would have been $155,000,000 after federal and state taxes. . . and Chrysler still has plenty of debts to pay. Beyond that, American auto workers, with all applicable benefits, earn about $22 per hour, while Japanese auto workers, with all benefits, earn about $10.50 per hour. The Japanese earn variable wages, part basic salary and part profit sharing, so that in bad times wages automatically go down, and not just a small percentage of the basic wage or a capping of cost of living adjustments.

There's something more, Jim. The Japanese car takes about 50 manhours to build versus 110 manhours for the American car. That's why American cars are not selling in other countries. . . they cost too much to build. Just visit your car dealer and get shocked reading sticker prices.

So, Jim, there were no givebacks by Chrysler workers. They just weren't earning what they were being paid, and they still are too high, cost-wise. Chrysler and other American car firms are now enjoying the benefit of trade restrictions on Japanese auto manufacturers, limiting imports. There is a serious question as to whether our auto companies will be able to compete unless we get our labor costs down and our productivity up.

And that's where those profits being made this year, after years of billions in losses, come into the picture. Instead of being paid to employees in higher costs that will further push our cars out of competition, that money should be spent on automation, new plants and new equipment, and the development of cars with so much innovation that everyone will once again want to "Buy American."

Jim, inflation is down right now. One of the basic reasons is that wage increases are not being provided to people who aren't earning what they are presently being paid. If we start, again, giving people more than they earn, all we really will be doing is giving them more paper, not more purchasing power or value, killing their current jobs, and creating more unemployment and inflation.

Let me indicate one of the weaknesses in your thinking. You said that if profits double, wages should double. Well, profits could be between one and four cents of the sales dollar in bad times, while wages are between 70 and 80 cents of the sales dollar. If the profit were to double, to two to eight cents, how could you double the wages to $1.40 to $1.60 when all you had was one sales dollar? Just remember that those profits are needed for investments in equipment, plants and research so that better and more competitive cars can be produced that will sell. If business improves, part of those profits will have to be invested in financing receivables and inventory too.

I hope that you are getting a better understanding of the business system, Jim. More in my next letter."

Prowlers Play Role of Spoilers

Thief River Falls will be cast in the role of the spoiler Thursday when the Prowlers host Crookston in a season-ending 7:30 p.m. high school football game.

Crookston, 5-3, needs a win over Thief River Falls, 3-5, to earn a berth in the 1983 post-season football playoffs. A loss to the Prowlers this week ends the Pirates' season. Thief River Falls will be done Thursday regardless of the outcome.

As area Class A independents, Thief River Falls, Crookston and East Grand Forks must finish with better than .500 records and have the best record in match-ups among the three northwestern Minnesota rivals. A Thief River Falls win Thursday would make the Prowlers 2-0 and the winner of the unofficial conference-like arrangement while leaving the Pirates 1-1 and the already-finished Green Wave 0-2.

A crookston victory, though, extends the Pirates' season at least one more week, putting them in the first-round playoffs against Mid-State champion Park Rapids. The unbeaten Panthers beat the Pirates 20-6 back on Sept. 16. The playoff game would be held at Park Rapids.

In the other first-round match-up in the Class A playoffs, it'll be Seaway Conference champion Cloquet playing at Mesabi Range Conference champion International Falls. Winners meet in the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) Class A state playoff quarterfinals.

Extra incentive for the long-time athletic rivalry isn't really needed, but the Pirates' playoff bid does spice it up a bit. Thief River Falls will also be trying to end a five-game losing streak at the hands of Crookston. The Prowlers haven't beaten the Pirates since registering a 22-6 decision in 1976. Since then Crookston has triumphed 26-6 in 1977; 21-0 in 1978; 28-8 in 1979; 46-0 in 1980 when the unbeaten Pirates went on to win the Class A state title; and 15-8 a year ago. In 1981 both sides were assessed 2-0 forfeit losses by the MSHSL because of teacher strikes in both communities.

Thief River Falls will also by trying to end the 1983 season on a possitive note. The Prowlers ridded themselves of a 22-game losing streak earlier this fall, and after some inconsistent football at mid-season, they've taken strides to shed a losing image by two of their last three games. They would like to make it three-out-of-four to wrap it up.

Northland, UMC Meet Saturday

Another Thief River Falls-Crookston football rivalry will be renewed Saturday when Northland community college closes out its 1983 season at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

And again, the Thief River Falls team will be trying to spoil the playoff hopes of the Crookston squad.

Highly ranked and unbeaten University of Minnesota-Crookston was jolted by Brainerd 9-7 Saturday, the same day Fergus Falls handled Northland 41-7. That gives the Red Raiders a one-point edge over the Trojans going into the final week of the regular season Northwest Division schedule when the Northland-UMC game will be complemented by a Brainerd trip to Fergus Falls.

In the Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC), four season-opening games for Northwest Division members Northland, Brainerd, Fergus Falls and UMC against Northeast Division opponents Vermilion, Itasca, Mesabi and Hibbing were worth one point in the divisional standings. Three season-ending games against divisional rivals are valued at two points each. UMC completed its Northeast Division assignments unscathed while Brainerd stumbled against Vermilion 16-15, but the Trojans and Red Raiders traded places Saturday with the results of the two-pointer.

Brainerd can wrap up the division title with a win at Fergus Falls, but the Spartans' passing game will give anybody trouble. UMC, meanwhile, has to combine a win over Northland with a Fergus Falls decision over Brainerd to pass the Red Raiders in the standings.

Northwest and Northeast Division winners meet in the MCCC state football playoff semifinals Sat., Nov. 5.

THIEF RIVER FALLS runningback Tim Bottem (43) picked up a block from fullback Scott Fowler (34), who knocked down East Grand Forks defensive end Lloyd Schneider and wound up with a six-yard gain in the first half of Wednesday's high school football game played at East Grand Forks. Other Thief River Falls blockers on the play included Jeff Hamerlinck (78), Gary Cornell (63) and Shannon Kezar (74). Bottem carried 20 times for 184 yards and three touchdowns.

Prowlers, Bottom Run Over EGF In One-Sided 46-6 Football Game

Beaten by Fergus Falls 41-8 just five days earlier, Thief River Falls turned the tables on East Grand Forks Wednesday when the Prowlers routed the host Green Wave 46-6 in a one-sided MEA-week high school football game.

Senior halfback-flanker Tim Bottem carried the ball 20 times for 184 yards and three touchdowns in the Prowlers' biggest offensive output since a 47-12 win over the same Green Wave back in 1974. And nearly all of Bottem's production came in the first half as he staked Thief River Falls to a 26-0 lead. He carried just once for six yards on the first series of the second half before taking the rest of the night off.

If he had known that Bottem was that close to a 200-yard game, Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz would have let him go for it, he said afterwards. As it was, that's the most yards gained by a Thief River Falls runningback since Jeff Kosel's 189-yard effort against Staples in 1977.

Among other things it was also the Prowlers' first road win since a 33-21 victory at Moorhead Sept. 26, 1980. The seven touchdowns and 46 points surpassed the Prowlers' totals of all of last year when they mustered just six touchdowns and 40 points in an 0-9 campaign.

With the win Thief River Falls improved its record to 3-5. The Prowlers finish the 1983 season Thursday when they host rival Crookston at 7:30 p.m. East Grand Forks, last year's Class A state playoff runner-up finisher, ended a disappointing 1-6 season. The Green Wave went 9-3 the year before.

"They beat us off the ball and their backs ran hard," pointed out East Grand Forks coach Gary Berg, whose team had an open date before meeting Thief River Falls and has another one this week.

It was a reversal from the previous Friday for the Prowlers when they found themselves constantly beat by Fergus Falls' quickness on a dry field. East Grand Forks didn't have that quickness and a slick playing surface made the Prowlers feel right at home.

"We're back to our kind of field," quipped Schmitz. "This is our cup of tea. But it's the same old thing, if we get out-quicked in the line we're in trouble. Tonight the kids did a good job up front and Bots (Bottem) had a fine game for himself."

Thief River Falls scored almost at will at the start, reaching the end zone on four of six first-half possessions, and actually they weren't trying all that hard to score on their final possession in the dying seconds when they were content to run out the clock.

Starting from their own 36-yard line with the game's opening kickoff, the Prowlers covered those 64 yards in eight plays and 3:34 when Bottem swept to the right, put a neat move on a final East Grand Forks defender at the 5-yard line and scored on a 13-yard run. He carried the ball on six of the eight plays for 53 yards.

Only Thief River Falls punt of the night came on the following Thief River Falls possession, but the Prowlers got the ball right back on the first of six East Grand Forks turnovers — an interception by safety Scott Jorstad, who picked off Matt Holmes' tipped pass at the East Grand Forks 42-yard line. For the night, Jorstad and cornerback Mark Bondy had two interceptions each, while linebackers Scott Fowler and Steve Wiskow came up with fumble recoveries.

Seven plays after Jorstad's first interception, Fowler dived over the top for a 1-yard touchdown plunge on the second play of the second quarter. Bottem had a 31-yard scamper in there to key the drive.

Bondy came up with his first interception on the next East Grand Forks series, catching the ball at the Thief River Falls 36-yard line and returning it 36 yards to the East Grand Forks 28. On the very next play Bottem weaved his way through blockers and would-be tacklers for a 20-0 bulge with 8:05 still left in the first half.

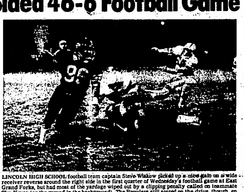
East Grand Forks came up short on a fake punt try the next time the Green Wave touched the ball, and Thief River Falls went 45 yards in seven plays to make it 26-0 with three minutes to go. Fowler had a big 14-yard run from his fullback position during the drive, but it was Bottem again who reached the end zone as he battled his way through tacklers from ten yards out.

It turned into a rout when Mitch Semanko scored two touchdowns spaced just 1:56 apart in the third quarter. The first one, a 7-yarder on a sneak, came just four plays after a Fowler fumble recovery at the East Grand Forks 20-yard line. That was with 4:27 left in the quarter. East Grand Forks fumbled the ball away on its very next snap and Wiskow recovered at the Green Wave 32. Four plays later Semanko reached the corner of the end zone from the 12 on an option play to the right with 2:31 on the clock, making it 39-0.

Final Thief River Falls touchdown came on the Prowlers' first possession of the fourth quarter, making them 7-for-11 (seven touchdowns on 11 possessions) for the night. Take away the final possession of the first half and a one-play stab at the end of the game and the Prowlers were 7-for-9.

Back-up fullback Scott Jorstad scored the last touchdown with a determined 41-yard run through the middle when he simply ran over East Grand Forks defenders with 8:18 left to play. That gave him 77 yards on just six carries for the night, a fat 12.8-yard average. The Prowlers as a team averaged a remarkable 7.3 yards every time they carried the football.

Only Thief River Falls turnover of the night, a fumble at the East Grand Forks 43-yard line, led to the Green Wave touchdown against Prowler reserves. Steve Ristau capped an 11-play drive with a third down 2-yard plunge off right tackle with just 25 seconds left.



LINCOLN HIGH SCHOOL football team captain Steve Wiskow picked up a nice gain on a wide receiver reverse around the right side in the first quarter of Wednesday's football game at East Grand Forks, but had most of the yardage wiped out by a clipping penalty called on teammate Tim Kruse (on the ground in the background). The Prowlers still scored on the drive, though, en route to a one-sided 46-6 win over the rival Green Wave. Thief River Falls will complete its 1983 schedule Thursday at home against Crookston.

Football Teams Finish Seasons

Area high school football teams will once again abandon the traditional Friday playing date this week to accommodate the upcoming post-season playoff schedules. Last week teams played early because of the annual MEA break at the schools.

This week Tuesday games will once again for in vogue for the Nine-Man teams in the North Tri-County and Top of the State conferences.

In the North Tri-County Conference, Gonvick-Trail plays Grygla-Goodridge at 3 p.m. in Grygla; Middle River will be at Fisher for 3:15 p.m. game; Oklee plays Erskine-Mentor at 4 p.m. in Mentor; and Clearbrook will be at Plummer for a 7:30 p.m. game.

Only one Top of the State Conference game is on tap this week, with Stephen playing Marshall County Central at 7:30 p.m. in Newfolden.

In nonconference play, McIntosh-Winger of the North Tri-County Conference will be at Hallock of the Top of the State Conference for a 7:30 p.m. game.

Top of the State Conference members Argyle, Greenbush and Tri-County have already completed their 1983 regular season schedules.

Class A independents Thief River Falls and Crookston close out their schedules Thursday with a 7:30 p.m. meeting at Prowler Field here. East Grand Forks, the other area Class A independent, wrapped up its season last Wednesday with a 46-6 drubbing at the hands of Thief River Falls.

A Crookston win at Thief River Falls Thursday would qualify the Pirates for post-season play. A loss ends the year for the Pirates. The Prowlers will be done that night regardless of the outcome.

Argyle has won the Top of the State Conference pennant and will be facing Agassiz Valley North winner Norman County West in first-round playoff action. The 8-0 Eagles were ranked No. 3 in the latest Associated Press state Nine-Man rankings and the 8-0 Panthers were ranked No. 4.

Plummer meanwhile, is assured of at least a title tie in the North Tri-County Conference and will be the league's post-season representative. The 7-0 Cardinals will be trying to complete a perfect regular season record Tuesday against Clearbrook before they tackle the Northern Lights Conference champion in the first round of post-season play Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in Plummer. Kennedy, 7-1, will be the Northern Lights Conference representative providing the Rockets beat 1-7 Midway Tuesday.

Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) Nine-Man state football quarterfinals will match the winners of those first-round playoff games, with the Plummer-Kennedy (probable) winner playing at the home site of the Argyle-Norman County West winner. Norman County West includes players from Climax, Halstad and Hendrum.

Grygla-Goodridge could become a North Tri-County Conference co-champion by combining a win over Gonvick-Trail with a Plummer loss to Clearbrook. But even if that occurs, the Cardinals move into the playoff by virtue of their early-season 14-6 win over the Blue Devils.

DESPITE A DIVING attempt to catch the ball by Fergus Falls receiver Jason DuBois, the pass fell incomplete as Northland defensive back James Jonasson came up to cover the second quarter play during Saturday's community college football game played in Thief River Falls. The pass-happy Spartans were 33-for-67 through the air for 333 yards in their 41-13 Northwest Division victory over the Northmen. Northland closes out its 1983 season Saturday at Crookston.

Fergus Falls Passing Game Is Winner Over Northland, 41-13

Billed as a pass-happy outfit before the contest, Fergus Falls lived up to the pre-game advertising by putting the ball in the air a whopping 67 times Saturday, and the Spartans completed more than enough of them to collect a 41-13 Northwest Division community college football win over Northland on muddy Prowler Field here.

Fergus Falls finished the day 33-for-67 for 333 yards passing. Brett Schmidt, a six-foot sophomore but first-year starter from Herman, was 26-for-53 for 249 yards and two touchdowns in about 2½ quarters of work. He left the game with a comfortable 34-13 third quarter lead. His back-up picked up where he left off as 6-1 freshman Jeff Olson of Glenwood went 7-for-14 for 84 yards and a touchdown.

And of the 28 Fergus Falls running plays, eight of them were quarterback sacks and a couple more were cases where the quarterbacks scrambled out of the pocket.

While it wasn't unexpected, Fergus Falls' aerial bombardment was nevertheless highly successful against a pourous Northland secondary.

"They didn't surprise us with the passing game," admitted Northland coach John Helley, "but we just didn't play very good defense at all in the secondary." He was quick, though, to give the Spartans their deserved praise. "They have about as good a passing attack as I've seen in four years of coaching," he said.

Northland didn't hesitate to throw the ball, either, putting it up 36 times. That's normally a pretty hefty amount for this part of the country, but it still looked pale in comparison to Fergus Falls' numbers. And while the Spartans looked good when they threw the ball, the Northmen didn't. In contrast to Fergus Falls' very disciplined short-yardage passing game, Northland went with a wide-open run-as-deep-as-you-can-and-I'll-get-the-ball - to - you attack that resulted in just seven completions and five interceptions. Steve Blanc, a strong-armed 6-3, 194-pound freshman from Columbia Heights, was 6-for-30 for 113 yards, and he threw all five interceptions.

"Blanc has the arm for the long patterns, but our receivers aren't used to running that far," explained Helley. "They stop running and Blanc over-throws them."

Fergus Falls' success throwing the ball is even more remarkable when you take into consideration that Lloyd Danzelsen wasn't named head coach of the Spartans until just before the start of preseason practice drills this fall. Doesn't it take a while to implement a passing attack like that?

"It does and that's probably why we lost our first four games," acknowledged Danzelsen. "The last three weeks we've really started to jell."

Passing game used by Fergus Falls utilizes the talents available, mentioned Danzeisen, including the throwing ability of Schmidt, the pass-catching skills of a bevy of receivers, along with the lack of a running game.

"We just don't have the offensive line to run," he admitted. "You can take a lesser athlete with less size and pass block more effectively than you can block for the run."

Scoring started after the first Northland interception near midfield early in the first quarter. Five passing plays got the Spartans to the Northland 1-yard line, and Brian Balken fell into the end zone on second down with 8:28 left.

A blocked put Fergus Falls back in business again near midfield. Ten plays later the fifth pass play of the drive found Monte Frederickson wide open on the right side in the end zone on a first-down snap from the Northland 2-yard line.

Pass interception by Northland freshman linebacker Todd Stokke at the Fergus Falls 25-yard line set up a second quarter Northland touchdown, with Kent Kainz going in untouched from the Fergus Falls 3-yard line on the drive's fifth play.

Schmidt found Bruce Donarski on the goal line for a 3-yard touchdown pass with 30 seconds left in the first half, capping a 13-play 83-yard drive — every one a pass play — for a 22-6 gap.

Northland went into halftime on a high note, however, on an unlikely half-ending touchdown play. Blanc put the ball some 60 yards in the air on a desperation last-snap play. The ball bounced out of the hands of tight end Brian Lundgren at about the Fergus Falls 10-yard line and Kainz, the flanker, picked it up in mid-air and stepped into the end zone to complete a 63-yard touchdown play with no time left to make it 22-13.

But that's as close as Northland got. Steve Olson kicked a 32-yard field goal; Blanc was sacked in the end zone for a safety; and Balken scored on an 11-yard run with a draw play as Fergus Falls widened the margin to 34-13 in the third quarter.

A fourth quarter pass interception set up the final touchdown, with Jeff Olson throwing a 13-yard scoring strike to Greg Schmidt over the middle with 5:05 left, finishing a 16-play, 60-yard drive.

We, the players, cheerleaders, managers, coaches and fans of the Grygla-Goodridge Blue Devils would like to congratulate coaches Gary Branil and Rick Koivisto and the Plummer Cardinals on their fine season in winning the North Tri-County Football Conference. We are sure that they will represent the conference in a very fine fashion in the upcoming playoffs.

The Cardinals showed a great deal of class and the true sense of the word character in winning the conference coming from behind to win in three straight key conference match-ups.

We hope that the fans and parents of Plummer show their true appreciation to the excellent coaching job both Coaches Branil and Koivisto did this season. Once again, congratulations!

At midday, when the sun is overhead, a fish can see objects perhaps 15 to 20 feet away in clear, shallow water, says "International Wildlife" magazine. When the sun is not directly overhead, little light passes through to illuminate the underwater scene, and fish must relay on their excellent senses of small, hearing and touch.

NORTHLAND SAFETY Pat Burke nearly came up with an interception on this third quarter play, but he was tripped up by Fergus Falls' intended receiver, and the Spartans' Mike Mielke (not in the picture) came by to grab the ball in mid-air for an 11-yard gain. Fergus Falls used the passing game almost exclusively in beating host Northland 41-13. Todd Stokke (25) of the Northmen watched the action.

DNR NEWS

Water Bank Payments

Landowners who have been denied a permit from the Department of Natural Resources to drain certain wetlands may be compensated financially under a program administered by the DNR's Division of Waters.

Called the "state water bank program," it offers annual state payments to the wetland owner to compensate for the income that might otherwise have been realized by draining the wetland and coverting it to agricultural uses.

In order for an area to qualify for state water bank program payments, it must be classified as a "wetland" in the inventory of protected waters and wetlands that is currently underway.

Landowners must have been denied permission to drain the wetland by the DNR and must show that drainage of the area would not violate any property agreements, that outlet rights can be obtained, that the proposed drainage would be profitable and that the area, if drained, would make high quality cropland.

If the area is eligible the DNR if obligated to offer the qualifying landowner the following choices within 60 days after receipt of a drainage permit application:

1. An offer of a state water bank agreement; 2. An offer to acquire an easement to the area; 3. An offer to acquire a conservation restriction on the area; 4. An offer to lease the area; or 5. If the owner insists, an offer to purchase the area, with access to the public provided.

If within 60 days of receipt of a complete permit application the DNR does not offer the landowner the compensating choices outlined above, the landowner is legally entitled to drain the wetland without a permit. If the area is not eligible for compensation, the DNR must inform the landowner of this and provide notice of the owner's right to demand a hearing.

Upon receipt of an offer of compensation, the landowner informs the DNR of the acreage (if any) and location of adjacent land that should be considered in any agreement, and what methods of compensation are desired.

Department then has 60 days in which to complete an appraisal of the property and to send the appraisal to the Minnesota Department of Administration for certification.

When the appraisal is certified, the Department of Natural Resources will inform the landowner of the offer. If the landowner chooses to sell the area, a resolution from the county board of commissioners must be acquired by the landowner before the offer is legally binding. Drainage of the wetland is prohibited should be landowner accept none of the compensation offers.

Payment rates for the various methods of compensation depend on the offer selected and the specified terms.

Purchase, easement and conservation restriction payments are based on standard and accepted land appraisal methods as applied to drainable wetland conditions. The yearly payment rate to the landowner for the state water bank agreement is equal to five per cent of the difference between the potential value of the wetland as agricultural cropland minus the cost of drainage.

Annual lease payments will be based on a fair market rental rate for wild hay or other existing land use. Other program payment rates are determined through an appraisal and negotiation process.

Terms for all water bank program options, except leases, restrict the use of the area from all agricultural purposes. Leases provide for agricultural use as climatic conditions allow.

If the landowner chooses to sell the area, it will be established as a wildlife management area and it will be open to public use and hunting.

Water bank agreement, lease, easement and conservation restriction options do not grant any right of public access to the area, unless the landowner agrees.

Application forms and brochure explaining this program in more detail are available from the DNR Regional Offices in Bemidji, Grand Rapids, Brainerd, St. Paul, New Ulm, Rochester and from the DNR, Division of Waters, Box 32 Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Record Salmon

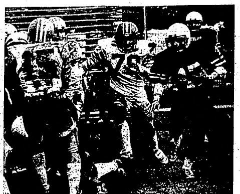
Two Duluth anglers set new state records for Chinook and pink salmon last month, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

John Hendrickson was casting from shore into Lake Superior not far from town when he hooked and landed a 25-pound, 8-ounce Chinook on Sept. 28.

Earlier in the month, on Sept. 13, Steven LaRatte caught a 3-pound, 14-ounce pink (humpback) salmon while casting a spinner at the point where the Poplar river enters the lake.

Chinook salmon beats the previous record by two pounds, two ounces while the pink salom is one pound larger than the former state record.

DNR said that shorecasting is becoming very popular with anglers on the North Shore of Lake Superior and is particularly enfective when lake temperatures cool down.



FERGUS FALLS defenders closed in on Northland runningback Mark Hagl, dropping him for a three-yard loss in the third quarter of Saturday's community college football game played in Thief River Falls. The Spartans beat the Northmen 41-13 in the final Northland home appearance on Prowler Field this fall.

DNR hotline

1. What is the policy of the DNR in notifying adjacent property owners before the application of herbicides?

There is no uniform DNR wide policy regarding property owner contacts. However, the Division of Forestry, which is involved with most of the herbicide use in the department, does have an unwritten policy that all adjacent landowners be contacted before herbicide application. Landowner contact may be made in person, by mail or by phone. In addition, a newspaper article announcing the practice of herbicide applications in particular counties is made prior to herbicide application. District, area and regional offices are always open for concerned landowners to discuss herbicide applications in their particular area. Also non-treated buffer strips of at least 100 feet are established between private ownerships and the state land being treated. Alan Jones, plant health specialist.

2. How close to lakes and streams does the Department of Natural Resources use aerial application of herbicides. And of ground applications?

Buffer strip policy for the Division of Forestry for aerial application of herbicides is a minimum of 100 feet. If the terrain is hilly or conditions such as soil type and herbicide properties dictate a wider buffer strip, a buffer strip greater than 100 feet will be used. If a herbicide label recommends a buffer strip wider than 100 feet, the label is followed. If there are trees left standing on the site to be sprayed thereby preventing the helicopter from getting close to the ground, then a wider buffer strip is used. Buffer strips on directed sprays or spot applications can be reduced to 50 feet wide as long as chemical or site characteristics are not conducive to overland movements. Alan Jones, plant health specialist.

3. Got a question, a complaint, or a suggestion regarding how your natural resources are managed.

DNR Hotline is your direct channel to a representative who will answer you, whether it concerns parks, fish, wildlife, forests, waters or minterals. Write: DNR Hotline, 2115 Birchmont Beach Road NE, Bemidji, MN 56601; telephone 755-3976.

History Society Exhibits Items That It Accepts

What objects should Minnesotans collect and preserve, Grandma's black rubber galoshes? How about Uncle John's vintage union suit?

Families face these decisions on a private scale. Minnesota historical society, since receiving its charter in 1849, has been officially responsible for deciding what objects will be preserved to chronicle Minnesota's collective past.

"Minnesota Collects," a new exhibition opening October 25 at the Minnesota historical society across from the state capitol in downtown St. Paul, will feature items from the society's holdings that demonstrate both the collecting process and choices made in deciding what to collect.

Limited resources of the society require the staff to ask of each proposed acquisition the difficult quiestions: Can we afford to care for it: Can we afford to store it and maintain records about it?

Many of the objects in the upcoming exhibition are recent acquisitions, and this will be their debut. Two show-stopping items are the Minnesota postcard quilt created by artist Theresa Nomura in 1961 and the splendid silver bowl and ladle presented to James J. Hill by the people of St. Paul in 1893 to celebrate the completion of the Great Northern railway.

Over the past eight years the society has purchased copies of proposed territorial legislation from antiquarian book dealers and auction houses. Five of these bills reveal that the state's name, now taken entirely for granted, might have turned out to be Minasota, Mincesota or even Itaska.

Household goods from the estate of Byrdie Kraft, acquired in 1982, will be a special feature of the exhibition. A particularly remarkable item is a china cabinet with a leaded glass front, made by Byrdie herself in a North high school manual arts class in about 1915.

"Minnesota collects" borrows its name from the theme of the historical society's 1983 annual meeting and conference scheduled for November 4 and 5. Like the conference, the exhibition highlights strengths of the society's collection and focuses on how the society goes about its collecting work.

For example, using a family photograph album loaned for copying by Patty Breidel of St. Paul, the exhibition points out the photos the society added to its collection and those it did not, explaining the reasons behind its choices.

Decisions about what to collect and how to arrange and preserve it have changed with new ideas about history and with new technology. Formerly, the Society passively accepted the rate, precious, beautiful or educational items donated to it, without question.

Today these attributes alone would not admit objects to the society's collection. Items must also have a "Minnesota connection," shedding light on the state's own history.

Exhibition demonstrates the society's continuing efforts to pursue traditional areas of intensive collecting, such as material related to Indian people in Minnesota. In 1981, the society purchased photo albums, negatives and films about Ojibwe and Dakota activities made by the award-winning photographer, Monroe Killy, a purchase made possible by funding from the Bush foundation of St. Paul.

Over the last several years, the society has also been adding the papers of contemporary writer and Indian activist Gerald Vizenor to its manuscript collection. Vizenor's ongoing donation of his papers is creating a systematic record of his activities for future researchers.

Exhibition focuses on collecting areas that have received special emphasis recently, such as materials related to outdoor recreation, tourism, and the conservation movement in Minnesota. Items displayed in the exhibition range from beautifully illustrated boat manufacturers' catalogs of the 1920s to well-thumbed files documenting the state tourism bureau's efforts to promote Minnesota as vacationland.

Project is the result of collaboration by the historical society's staff responsible for collecting and those who work in the exhibits department. Several displays in the exhibition demonstrate how collections in one society department complement those in another.

Minnesota artists reveal themselves through their published writings as well as through their paintings and self-portraits. New Ulm artist Wanda Gag is represented by a group of sketched self-portraits and by the diary she kept during her teenage years, published as "Growing Pains" in 1940.

Rare maps document Europeans' understanding of the geography of the upper midwest, and rare books contain the first-hand accounts of explorers who traveled the regions before settlement. Many of the books were acquired with funds from a bequest by Herschel V. Jones, publisher of the "Minneapolis Journal" and rare book collector.

Some collecting directions have been maintained by the society throughout its 134-year history. For example, the society has persistently sought out political campaign memorabilia and now boasts a collection spanning the years from Abraham Lincoln to the most recent contests.

Items that are "larger than a bread box" pose special challenges in collecting and displaying. Some, however, cannot be passed up, because of their uniqueness, and among these are the pieces of furniture made by Byrdie Kraft.

Her oak bed, plant stand, dressing table, secretary, and china cabinet were described by her teacher as "the best furniture ever turned out of the school shop." They are as notable as their creator, who refused to be channeled into the "domestic science" classes then earmarked for girls, instead choosing woodworking for its dramatic results.

Like the majority of items in the exhibition, they have become more imposing than ever, with the passage of time.

EARTH MOVING EQUIPMENT has been operating steadily in construction of the Black River dam on the Don Schirrick farm northwest of Red Lake Falls although the work has been hampered by frequent rains. The scrapers frequently need a boost from the crawler tractors to scoop up their loads and the clay forms into large slippery slabs when it is pushed by the tractor and blade. Work will continue until frost prevents it and will resume again in the spring.

cancer answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Q: How is the research with interferon progressing? Will it be available to treat all types of cancer soon?

A: Unfortunately interferon is not proving to be as promising as researchers originally hoped. Clinical trials (carefully controlled studies of new drugs in cancer patients who have not been helped by standard treatments) have been going on for two years. Research doctors who are conducting these clinical trials have found interferon has only limited effects against some types of cancer and no effect at all against several others.

A few patients with malignant melanoma or kidney cancer have shown some improvement with interferon. Other types of cancer tested have included multiple myeloma, breast cancer, colon cancer and a variety of lung cancer. Interferon has so far not been helpful for these patients.

A major problem research doctors have found is the severe side effects interferon causes in most patients. They become very sick. A few have died as a result of complications of their cancer caused by the interferon side effects.

There are, however, other forms of interferon that have not yet been tested. A form may be found that does not cause such severe side effects. Doctors also are trying other ways of giving the drug that may improve its ability to fight cancer.

Whether interferon will ever be used commonly for all types of cancer is impossible to predict. Much more research needs to be done.

Q.: I'm an American Cancer society volunteer in Duluth. Would you please remind your readers about Minnesota D-Day?

A.: Thursday, Nov. 17 is D-Day. It's an annual promotional event sponsored by the American Cancer society, Minnesota division and the American Lung Association of Minnesota to encourage smokers to quit.

Recent surveys show that an increasing number of Americans are quitting, but one-third still smoke. If you're one of the one-third, here are some good reasons to quit on November 17.

+ By November 18 your body will begin to heal itself. The carbon monoxide level in your system will decline rapidly, and your heart and lungs will begin to repair the damage caused by cigarette smoking.

+ By mid-December you will notice remarkable changes in the way you feel. Your sense of taste and smell will return, that hacking cough will be gone, and your digestive system will return to normal. You'll breathe more easily and your lung capacity will begin to increase.

+ You're likely to have fewer colds this winter. So will your children. Children of smoking parents are sick more often and have more respiratory problems than children of non-smokers.

+ If you now smoke a pack a day, you will save about $350 to $400 by next November.

+ You could also save your life; 300,000 Americans die prematurely each year from the effects of smoking. Millions more live on with crippled lungs and over-strained hearts.

+ You'll set a great example for your kids. Children are affected and influenced by adults and parents who smoke. Recent studies have shown that most children and teenagers who smoke come from families in which one or more parents smoke.

The cancer information service can send you some helpful information on how to quit smoking. The toll-free number is 1-800-4-CANCER.

A: My mother is having chemotherapy and is having a lot of trouble eating. She's nauseated a lot of time, and she says food tastes different to her. Many days she's just too tired to think about cooking anything. Can you give us any suggestions to help her eat more?

A: Many people having chemotherapy for cancer have problems eating. Nausea, loss of appetite, taste changes, fatigue and worry can cause people to eat less. Some forms of chemotherapy can cause any or all of these.

It's especially important for people who have cancer to keep eating well. Doctors and researchers have been finding that patients who eat well during their treatment periods — especially those who eat diets high in protein and calories — are better able to stand the side effects of treatment. This is true whether they're having chemotherapy, radiation therapy or surgery.

A balanced diet can help cancer patients maintain their strength, can prevent body tissues from breaking down and can help rebuild the normal tissues that have been affected by treatment.

Your mother should talk to her doctor about her eating problems. She can also ask to talk to a dietitian who can give her specific advice on what she should try to eat.

Here are some general suggestions that may also help.

— Eat small meals more often. Keep nutritious snacks around.

— Chew foods slowly and swallow small amounts at a time.

[illegible] appetite. Foods that sound unappealing one day may seem good the next.

— Eat whenever you feel like it, even if it isn't meal time.

— Take advantage of time and effort-saving foods and appliances. It doesn't have to be "made from scratch" to be good for you.

— Tempt yourself with foods you especially like on days when you're not feeling hungry.

— Make sure that the liquids you drink have nutritional content — such as fruit juices, milk shakes or milk.

— If meat doesn't taste right, try chicken, turkey, fish, eggs or dairy products instead.

These and many other helpful tips along with recipes and substitutions for special diets are included in a spiral bound paperback book called Eating Hints published by the National Cancer Institute. You can get a free copy by calling the cancer information service, 1-800-4-CANCER. There's no charge for the call.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Once Bitten, Twice Shy

If someone is cheated by a con man, he or she deserves and receives our sympathy. However, if one year later, the same person falls prey to the same flim-flam artist — using the same scam — the reservoir of pity and understanding gives way to disdain.

Well, at present, the administration and the conservative members of Congress might still deserve our understanding. One year ago they were tricked into supporting the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of TEFRA, a tax hike package totalling $99 billion in new and higher taxes over a three-year period or some $228 billion over a five-year span. Now, how did an administration committed to supply-side economics, which calls for lower tax rates to stimulate economic activity and create new jobs, get tricked into what is perhaps the largest tax increase in our nation's history. Here's how the deception worked.

The big governments politicians who spent the last two decades creating the economic mess that the Reagan administration inherited — remember 21.5 per cent interest rates and double-digit inflation — proclaimed their newfound concern about deficit spending and offered the following deal: We will cut spending $3 for every $1 of tax increase in TEFRA. That worked out to a three-year reduction in federal spending of $280 billion in exchange for the three year tax hike of $99 billion. Congress even went so far as to pass a budget resolution committing itself to those cuts in spending levels.

Everything appeared to be on the up and up, but then came the sting!

The tax and spend majority in the House and Senate not only refused to come through the promised $280 billion in spending restraint; they increased spending further. What was billed as three dollars of spending cuts for every dollar of tax increase ended up as $1.14 of spending increase for every dollar of tax increase.

We were taken for a ride.

Adding insult to injury, a key leader in the House of Representatives, is recently reported to have told a group of businessmen at a closed door session that the liberals in Congress never promised to reduce spending. That budget resolution, we are told, wasn't worth the paper it was written on.

Having had their fun with the taxpayers last year, they wasn't to repeat last year's fleecing of middle-class taxpayers. If only the president will allow them to raise taxes, again, or perhaps close enough "loopholes" to rake in some $17 - $50 billion, then this time they will cut spending in return. No fooling. For real!

Now it would be a personal tragedy if a congressman or senator spent his or her life savings in buying the Brooklyn Bridge or swampland in Florida. But if Congress and the administration buy this latest fraud and increase taxes yet again, with the phoney promise of spending cuts in the future, they will be playing with the taxpayers' monies; not their own.

It is up to American taxpayers to say no to this constant drumbeat for higher taxes. Cruel experience has shown us that higher taxes do not reduce deficits, but rather give politicians the green light for higher spending.

We should not be fooled again.

FOUNDATIONS FOR GROWTH

By Michael Whittaker

Bearing Down

There are more than 1,643,000 Cub Scouts in the United States. They range in age from eight to ten, with the key age being nine.

"This is when boys are at their most curious stage," said W. Boyd Giles, associate director of Cub Scouting for the Boy Scouts of America. "We wanted to tap that sense of learning and make Cub Scouts a more meaningful experience for the boys. We think we have come up with the answer."

It's called Bear Enrichment.

What that means is that the nine-year-old boy is going to be challenged more to achieve. Some boys had complained there were not enough options to select from in Cub Scouting.

It was a simple enough idea, but how does it work?

"Many boys are interested in video games; we take them one step further. We introduce them to computers. Lucky ones will actually get 'hands on' experience at the key board of some of the simpler machines," Giles said.

Giles also said that research had been done into what a nine-year-old is interested in. "We found that they still seek close ties to their families. They want to be active, but not to stray too far away from what is familiar. That's why we have promoted family camping as part of our program."

Giles said, at nine, a boy is probably not ready to spend the night out in the woods with other boys, but the whole situation changes if he is accompanied by family members.

"Family presents a feeling of security during the dark hours. They can either spend the night in a tent or in one of the motor vehicles made for camping."

Another point of interest to the nine-year-old is the freedom that riding a bike can bring. But, Giles said, boys need to be given a sense of responsibility. Cub Scouts provide this by teaching bike safety and how to keep their bike in good shape — even going as far as to teach them how to change tires.

In all, there are 24 subjects a Cub Scout can pursue in the Bear Enrichment program. It is not expected that he will do all of them between his ninth and tenth year, but he can plan on doing at least half. Some of the requirements have been in Cub Scouting for years. Such items as learning about computers are new.

Giles said these program themes will relate to more Bear achievements. "It livens up den meetings."

The new programs are now going into their second year. Word from the 418 Boy Scout councils around the country is that the Cub Scouts are happy about the changes. They like the new sense of challenge that the enrichment program has added," Giles said.

Hypothermia Poses Threat To The Elderly

Hypothermia — an abnormally low internal body temperature caused by exposure to the cold — kills thousands of people each year who are unaware of its lethal effects. Temperatures do not have to be below freezing for hypothermia to occur. Anyone with a body temperature of 95 degrees Fahrenheit or below is hypothermic.

Most hypothermia victims are persons aged 65 or older. Federal emergency management agency and the national oceanic and atmospheric administration, as part of their "survice winter" campaign, offers the following information on hypothermia prevention and treatment which is of particular importance to the elderly.

National institute on aging estimates that more than 2.5 million older Americans are especially vulnerable to hypothermia, although infants also are particularly susceptible.

Each year nearly 20,000 elderly citizens die from hypothermia. Thousands of these victims die in their own homes. Many hypothermia deaths are a result of cool temperatures indoors rather than exposure to extremely cold weather outdoors. Many persons, faced with costly heating expenses, may find it difficult to keep themselves or their homes warm in cool temperatures. They simply may not realize they are becoming cold and their bodies may not adjust well to temperature change.

Elderly persons with a poor diet or malnutrition, other illnesses, limited physical activity, or those using alcohol or certain types of prescription drugs (such as antidepressants, sedatives and tranquilizers) face a higher risk of developing hypothermia. Added hunger and fatigue can also increase its chances.

Hypothermia also can worsen pre-existing conditions and diseases in older adults. Many deaths are initiated by hypothermia even though another disease is ultimately listed as the cause of death.

Many myths exist regarding treatment of hypothermia victims (and others severely affected by the cold). Exercise, hot foods and hot drinks, body massage or alcoholic drinks do not heat a cold person. In fact, these actually speed up the rate of body cooling.

Hypothermia is caused by a loss of body heat (primarily through the skin and through breathing). Body maintains its heat by narrowing the blood vessels in the skin which reduces the flow of warm blood near the body's surface. As the skin's blood flow is increased, more heat is released from the body's "inner core," which cools off the body and lowers its internal temperature.

It's difficult to recognize hypothermia. As the body temperature drops, the victim becomes progressively more physically and mentally confused. Memory is affected and logical thinking becomes impossible. Person may become too confused to recognize the danger and seek help. Many victims die at home because their condition is often overlooked as simple disorientation.

Prevention and treatment of hypothermia at home is different from actions that should be taken outdoors. For your safety at home:

— Make sure your home is as efficiently heated and insulated as possible.

Be careful not to overload fireplaces or use charcoal stoves to heat rooms — they emit poisonous carbon monoxide fumes. Using the gas range to heat the kitchen is also very dangerous without proper ventilation, especially when the top burners are used. If heating bills are a problem, arrange to heat only one or two rooms of your home.

Low income families can get financial help on energy costs through state government programs. (Contact your state energy assistance program for more information.)

Local utility companies may offer various home energy adults to help reduce fuel costs. Contact your power company for assistance.

— Sleep warmly. Home temperatures cool at night. Make sure your bed is warm because hypothermia can begin in your sleep. Extra blankets (wool or electric) and hot water bottles can help keep the body warm. Make sure night clothing is kept dry.

— Dry wet hair immediately, preferably with a warm air blow dryer. Damp or wet hair can cause rapid heat loss.

—Do not wear plastic bags over clothes for "additional insulation." Clothing will become damp from trapped moisture. Plastic bags also pose a threat to infants and small children.

— Check with your doctor about medications you use — see if they affect control of body temperature.

In all outdoor cold weather activities (or col ones indoors), several steps can be taken to prevent hypothermia:

— Dress warmly. Clothing is the best defense against hypothermia — it insulates by trapping warm air between layers. Loose clothing traps more air than tight garments and allows greater freedom of movement.

— Keep clothes dry. Clothing moist or wet from rain, melting snow or perspiration reduces insulation and speeds the loss of body heat.

— Avoid overheating and sweating. Remove excess clothing before the body overheats.

— Keep hands and feet warm and dry. They are the first parts of the body to become cold. Avoid damp or wet socks, and avoid tight jewelry or clothing which can restrict the flow of blood to the hands and feet.

Hypothermia victims exhibit many symptoms. If you suspect someone of being hypothermic, check for:

— Confusion, disorientation or reduced mental clarity which becomes progressively worse as the body temperature falls. Person also may become apathetic and do nothing to reduce the danger, or may become irritable, hostile and aggressive.

— Cool or cold skin, particularly on the stomach, lower back, arms, legs and feet. Skin's color is usually very pale, but also may have large, irregular blue or pink spots.

— Slowed breathing and heartrate. (Both slow at low temperatures and may be very difficult to detect in severe hypothermia victims.)

— "Puffy" or swollen face.

— Unusually stiff muscles, particularly in the neck, arms and legs. Stiffness may be accompanied by a fine trembling or shivering which may be limited to one side of the body or one arm or leg. (Shivering is a sign the body is having trouble keeping warm.)

— Poor coordination and problems with blanace, including difficulty in walking and jerky movements.

Hypothermia is a serious, complicated medical condition requiring professional medical assistance. A hypothermia victim should be treated in a hospital. Do not try to rewarm the person at home — improper treatment can cause sudden death from heart failure.

While waiting for professional medical attention to arrive:

— Protect the person from the cold with extra clothes, blankets, quilts or towels. Make sure that you cover the person's head and neck.

— Do not place the person in a hot shower or bath.

— Do not give the victim hot food or hot drinks.

— Do not give the person alcoholic beverages or drugs.

— Do not raise the victim's feet — this allows cold blood to flow into the body's core and will further reduce body temperature.

Do not massage the person's arms or legs.

Never assume the hypothermia victim is dead or beyond recovery. There is a chance for recovery even though the hypothermia victim appears to have died.

Above all, keep calm and call for professional medical attention if you suspect someone of having hypothermia.

Bill Offered To Reduce Tax On First Stock

In an effort to entice venture capital investments in new job creating companies, Senator Rudy Boschwitz has joined Senate colleagues in cosponsoring the capital formation tax act of 1983.

"One of the most direct ways of solving our unemployment problems if by encouraging the growth and development of new businesses — especially small businesses," Boschwitz said.

The legislation would reduce the maximum capital gains tax rate to 10 per cent on profits derived from stock originally acquired through an initial offering and held at least five years. These measures are to encourage the flow of funds into new ventures and to create a more stable pool or capital by requiring that investors make a long-term commitment to a new company. It also should provide incentives for moving money out of the tax shelters into high technology and other rapid growth industries.

"As a businessman I've seen many new companies created. And these businesses are one of the most productive segments of the U.S economy, providing increased export earnings, new jobs, and additional tax receipts for federal, state and local governments," Boschwitz said.

"Since 1955 high technology industries alone have accounted for 75 per cent of the new increase in manufacturing jobs and they export more than they import, while our nation's overall trade balance is negative. Small business in general provides 66 per cent of all new jobs and has great potential for increased exports.".

Woman of the Year Active In Many Areas of Service

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

As 1983 Woman of the Year for the Thief River Falls Business and professional Women's club, Mrs. Gunder (Ruth) Legvold has a storied past. The stories include such diverse activities as making a school hot lunch program profitable at three cents a serving, collecting a deer with bow and arrow, shepherding a Girl Scout troop of 13 to the highest local ranking available and considering it a privilege to care for her mother-in-law and her own parents in her home.

Ruth (Fletcher) Legvold was a native of Grand Forks, ND, graduating from Central high school there and earning a degree in home economics education from the University of North Dakota. She taught in the Thief River Falls school system from 1930 to 1933, and for another three years on a regular basis beginning in 1943. In other years she taught as a substitute, serving in every subject area except boys' physical education.

"The first year I was here I taught five classes of general science and only had junior high school home economics," she said. "The junior high students walked to Lincoln from Central school which was located in the block between LaBree and Horace avenues north of Trinity Lutheran church."

And Ruth laughs at the idea that teaching home economics to boys is a new concept in education. "We always had full classes for boys," she said, noting that her second through fifth years here were as head of the home economics department.

"There wasn't any established curriculum so I made up my own," she said. "That included the program for the boys. They learned how to sew an apron, darn socks, sew on buttons, make jelly, do some cooking and coordinate colors in shirts and neckties. Cliff Bjorkman was working at Penney's then and we would take the class there and Cliff would show them how to select clothing.

"And the day that the supervisor from the home economics division of the state department of education came to visit, I was teaching the class of boys how to pick wild ducks," she recalls. One of the school's administrators had given her a good number of the ducks and she wanted to impress on the boys that they should take care of their wild game.

"Of course, every now and then someone would have to blow into a pile of down," she said. "With a classroom full of mischievous boys you can imagine the mess we made! But the supervisor seemed to think it was all right that we were teaching that sort of thing."

The hot lunch program at that time was unfettered by rules and regulations from the government. The home economics students under Ruth's direction prepared the hot lunch each day, usually only one hot item which was eaten by the students in combination with the lunches they brought from home. The

City Council Grants Wine License, Loans

Thief River Falls city council met last night in council chambers at city auditorium, issuing a wine and beer license for a new restaurant, and redirecting approximately $97,000 in loan funds to two local businesses, in addition to a number of other topics reserved for further study.

Warren Reiten, Grand Forks, announced his intent to open a Mexican style restaurant in the former Happy Joe's Pizza building, located on Highway 59 South, and requested a permit to sell 3.2 beer and win for consumption on the premises. After some questioning regarding his background and future plans, council agreed to issue the permit, with the understanding that no alcoholic beverages could be sold on Sundays. Operating under the name Casa Del Taco, the business will be open seven days a week, offering both in-house and carry-out service. Reiten said he expects to move two families here from Grand Forks to manage the restaurant, with additional employees hired locally.

Recommendation of the community development advisory board was approved which would redistribute approximate $97,000 in low interest loans released by the withdrawal of Hydra-Mac Inc. from the community development block grant program. City Planner Jack Quinlivan reported that the advisory board had reviewed applications from 18 firms before eventually narrowing the field down to three potential recipients of the funds. Withdrawal of one of the finalists resulted in a

NW Hospital, Glenmore Ink Service Agreement

Robert Wittenstrom, administrator of the Glenmore foundation in Crookston and Dr. Steve Levinson, director of the day-night unit at Northwestern hospital services in Thief River Falls have jointly announced the provision of outpatient chemical dependency services at Northwestern hospital services.

According to Dr. Levinson, a community attitude survey conducted one year ago indicated a need for chemical dependency counseling in the Thief River Falls area.

"We investigated developing our own outpatient chemical dependency program but it became apparent that we could provide a high quality, cost effective program by cooperating with Glenmore," Dr. Levinson said.

Glenmore foundation is a 35-bed inpatient, 10-bed detoxification treatment facility with an outpatient service located in Crookston. Glenmore has been in existence since 1973 and has satellite services in the communities of Roseau and Warroad.

Commenting on the new relationship, Wittenstrom said. "We believe that the provision of chemical dependency counseling in Thief River Falls will reduce the hardship on patients who otherwise would have to travel great distances for this service. In the past we have had an excellent relationship with the day-night unit and this service will enhance that relationship."

Wittenstrom said he believes that alcohol and drug abuse is a widespread problem which needs to be addressed with innovative programs aimed at preventive education as well as inpatient and outpatient programs for people who already have become dependent.

Referrals for chemical dependency counseling come from many sources including family members, friends, clergy, physicians and law enforcement agencies. Most insurance policies cover this type of treatment. Services are currently provided on Wednesdays and appointments can be made by calling Northwestern hospital services at 681-4240, extension 351.

Negotiations At Goodridge Find No Settlement

Negotiating representatives from the Goodridge school board in Goodridge Education association are somewhat closer to an agreement after one mediation session and four negotiations meetings in October, but still a substantial way from settlement, according to Supt. Don Langan, spokesman for the Goodridge school board.

Supt. Langan said a mediation session with Dick Apringer of the state board of mediation was held October 4, followed by negotiation meetings on October 6, 14, 17 and 19. The board presented its final offer on October 17 and it was rejected by the Goodridge Education association (GEA) at the October 19 meeting.

At the latter session the GEA requested another mediation session or arbitration. The board committee rejected the idea of arbitration but consented to further mediation, Dr. Langan said.

The board's final salary proposal for 1983-84 would provide starting salary for bachelor's degree teachers of $15,160, increasing to $20,310 in 16 steps and for master's degree teachers of $17,410, increasing to $22,760 in 16 steps.

For 1984-85 the bachelor's degree starting salary of $16,020 would increase in 16 steps to $21,370 and the master's degree salary of $18,270 would rise to $23,620 in 16 steps. Supt. Langan said the offer would provide an average raise per teacher of $1,225 for 1983-84 and $1,138 for 1984-85.

The board's offer also includes raising the family health benefit from $97 to $110 per month in 1983-84 and to $120 per month in 1984-85.

The GEA's last request is for a beginning salary of $15,700 at the bachelor's degree level in 1983-84, increasing to $20,920 in 16 steps. The master's degree request is for a $17,600 to $22,820 salary range. For 1984-85 the GEA proposes a bachelor's degree range of $17,200 to $22,320 and master's degree range from $19,100 to $24,320.

The requested schedule would provide an average raise per teacher of $1,498 in 1983-84 and $1,747 for 1984-85, Dr. Langan said. He added that the GEA is requesting $113 per month for family health insurance in 1983-84 and $130 per month in 1984-85.

According to Dr. Langan's calculations, the difference between the board's offer and the GEA request would be $5,287 in salary budget dollars in 1983-84 and $17,106 Total salary dollar difference of $22,393 would be an additional $1,155 average per teacher over the two-year contract.

The October 19 meeting showed no movement in either language or salary items, Supt. Langan said. While economics will always be an issue in reaching a settlement, he added, the more than 20 language items still on the table in October is a most

School Board Has Meeting Monday

Presentation of the audit report for the year ending June 30, 1983 and approval of continued funding to assist Jobs Incorporated were among business items of the Thief River Falls board of education Monday evening in the school district service center.

Russ Christianson of the Moser and Christianson accounting firm presented the audit report which showed a significant drop in the district's fund balance and a substantial change in the district's cash flow picture due to a property tax shift adopted by the state legislature. Approval was given to a resolution transferring $24,931 from the general fund to the food service fund to balance that account.

The board authorized expenditure of $10,000 from the unappropriated balance of the community education fund to assist in the operation of Jobs Incorporated for calendar year 1984. The expenditure was recommended by the community education advisory committee and the school district's position is that Jobs Incorporated can assist by bringing more students into the district and provide industry which could relate to AVTI job retraining.

Board members were reminded to submit recommendations for membership on the district's building committee and information on the proposed three-class system for athletics in the state high school league was distributed.

A number of people attended to support a request for permission to offer the boys' swimming program for the 1983-84 school year. The board

Cindy Kezar And James Wright Wed At St. John

Mr. and Mrs. James Wright are at home in Duluth following an exchange of marriage vows at St. John Lutheran church, Thief River Falls, and a two-week wedding trip to Hawaii.

The bride is the former Cindy Rose Kezar, a daughter of Mrs. Elaine Gust of East Grand Forks, and Everett Jasmer, Fairview, Mont. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Milton Wright of Duluth.

Rev. Roger E. Raebel officiated at the double ring ceremony attended by approximately 300 relatives and friends. At the organ was Mrs. Elaine Idso, a friend of the couple. She played "We've Only Just Begun," as the bride proceeded to the altar, met half-ways by the groom. Like the men of the wedding party, he wore a charcoal gray vested tuxedo with white shirt and a boutonniere featuring the flowers in the bride's bouquet. All the flowers were made and arranged by Georgia Jasmer, East Grand Forks, an aunt of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a floor-length fuchsia gown featuring a floor-length flared skirt and a sheer overtop with V-neckline and slit sleeves. The groom's mother was attired in a light green knit gown with a sheer green and yellow over gown.

Honor guests were Mrs. Emil Drevecky, Adams, N.D., grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Kezar, Thief River Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Jasmer, East Grand Forks, Mr. and Mrs. John Dahlgren, Grand Forks, N.D., and Francis Lamkay, Florida. Jasmer, Jr., Fern Melbye, a friend of the couple, was at the guest book. The punch was served by Rick and Marsha Quigley as Jessica and Rochelle Hagenah arranged the gifts. All are friends of the couple.

The three-tiered wedding cake, supported by Grecian pillars, featured a flowing water fountain at the base. A miniature bride and groom graced the lower tier connected to heart shaped cakes by ornate stairways. A miniature bridal party graced the steps. Flowers matching those carried by the bride, topped the cake, baked and decorated by Edna Hyde, Plummer, a friend of the couple. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Brad Nelson and Mrs. Orlando Chervestad of Oklee, friends of the couple. Pouring coffee were Janice Semanko and June Swanson, also friends of the couple. Waitresses were Susie and Angie Wright, Duluth, sisters of the groom. Ernie Burns, Nashwauk, video recorded the ceremony.

At Monday night's meeting, Andy Broten, Shirley Peters and Renae Timm were honored at a KOPS graduation ceremony after completing 13 weeks as in KIW. They also received flowers and gifts.

At Monday's meeting, plans were made for club representation at the TOPS fall rally to be held in Wadena.

Luckow And Courneya Vows Said In Mahnomen

Cynthia Luckow, daughter of Mrs. Norman Luckow of Mahnomen and the late Norman Lickow, became the bride of Joseph Courneya, son of Mr. and Mrs. Terrance Cournya of Thief River Falls at a double ring ceremony at the First Lutheran church in Mahnomen. Officiating were Rev. Ivan Wambheim and Rev. David Super.

Mrs. Diane Kochmann, Mahnomen, was the organist and pianist. Patty Longtin, Mahnomen, sang "Time For Joy," "God A Woman, and A Man;" and "It Seems I've Always Loved You." "The Wedding Song," was sung by Jim White, Thief River Falls.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Daryl, was attired in a white organza gown with a Schiffli lace yoke accented with pearls. Schiffli lace trimmed the leg-o-mutton sleeves and Venice lace motifs were appliqued on the fitted bodice, styled with a high neckline. The draped skirt with chapel length train edged with Schiffli lace was nipped at the waistline by an organza cummerbund. Matching lace edged her fingertip veil held by a wreath of lavender and white silk flowers accented with babies' breath. She carried a cascading bouquet of silk, lavender, pink, purple and white roses, white miniature carnations, babies' breath and stephanotis. Her opal necklace was a gift from the groom.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Debbie Maanum, Park Rapids. Bridesmaids were Mary Courneya, Thief River Falls, a sister of the groom; Laurie McCollum, Thief River Falls and Chris Kaiser, Grand Forks, friends of the bride. They wore lavender floor-length gowns with leg-o-mutton sleeves and illusion net sweetheart necklines accented with Schiffli lace. Their bouquets were similar to the bride's.

Carrie Maanum, Park Rapids, a niece of the bride, was flower girl. She was attired in a white floor-length gown with an organza overlay, featuring a white net yoke, elbow length sleeves trimmed with lace, and a flounced skirt edged in lace. Her cummerbund matched the bride's; and like the bride, she wore a floral wreath on her head. She carried a lace basket filled with flowers, matching those in the bride's bouquet.

Lori Wallis, Virginia, was the bride's personal attendant.

The ring bearer, Scott Maanum, Park Rapids, a nephew of the bride, was attired like the groom in a black tuxedo with a pink, silk rosebud pinned on his lapel.

Jim Courneya, Thief River Falls, a brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Todd Telken, Cheroke, Iowa, a cousin of the groom; Tom Brosseau and Russ Sparby, Thief River Falls, friends of the groom. The ushers were Curtis and Kevin Luckow and Doug Courneya, brothers of the bride and groom. All were attired in silver tuxedos.

The mothers of the couple wore street-length dresses with the bride's mother in carnation pink and the groom's mother in turquoise.

A reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony. Later a wedding dance was held in the Lower Deck of the Red Apple Cafe in Mahnomen.

Mr. and Mrs. Courneya are now at home in Fargo, N.D.

Zehlian Club Asked To Assist Various Projects

Project Awareness, a program to raise funds for multiple sclerosis, was discussed at the meeting of the Zehlian book club, General Federation of Women's clubs, held recently at the home of Dee Wendt.

The book, "When Bad Things Happen to Good People," was discussed.

Woman Of The Year Active In Many Interests

school lunches were served from Thanksgiving to Easter.

"We charge three cents for the lunch and we made money," Ruth remembers. "I had to learn how to use a kerosene stove, which I had never seen before in my life, but we got new stoves the next year. We found a dead mouse in the cupboard nearly every day (nobody seemed to wonder what they died from) and the janitor refused to sweep out the home economics room because he said home ec students should learn how to do that themselves."

Ruth served as advisor to the junior class, and says she suspects the students elected her because her name was Fletcher, the most popular band in the area was the Fletcher Brothers, and the students thought she could help get the band to play for the prom. That is her own modest assessment, of course, and probably has nothing to do with the students' choice. She wasn't related to the Fletcher Brothers and they never played for the prom.

She met Gunder Legvold while she was teaching here and in 1935 they were married in her home church in Grand Forks. They have made their home here ever since and Gunder has retired from a career in the postal service.

Mrs. L.B. (Harriet) Hartz introduced her to Girl Scout work in the mid-1940's when she completed her second stint of full-time teaching. She took a troop of 13 girls and remained as their leader as they advanced through the ranks and all earned the top rank available in the local Girl Scout program.

Ruth directed the girls' activities as they raised money for a trip to Yellowstone national park. They sponsored teen dances, sold hotdogs at football games and peddled greeting cards door-to-door to earn $50 each for expenses of the trip. A bus was chartered and the trip was made between the girls' junior and senior years in high school.

She later had two other troops of scouts, served as president of the area organization and attended the national convention in Philadelphia, PA. One troop wanted a canoe trip in the Ely area and Ruth secured the services of Morris Owen and Ted Mills to assist because she had never been in a canoe before. "The girls all had their water safety badges," Ruth said, "and they were responsible kids and good swimmers. We had a great time."

When her interest in Girl Scouting waned, she became interested in the Make It Yourself With Wool program. A friend, Mrs. Evelyn Peterson of Crookston, convinced her to be Pennington county chairman. When Mrs. Peterson became state chairman, Ruth replaced her as district chairman and served for seven years. She was later succeeded by Mrs. Wilbur (Gladys) Hallstrom who served as district and later as state director.

Ruth is a member of a drama group which has its origins as part of the Federated Women's clubs but has not been affiliated for some time. This group has been in existence for over 50 years, and still meets informally on a regular basis with about a dozen members. Ruth is also a past president of the ladies aid at Trinity Lutheran church and a past matron of the Order of Eastern Star.

Active in archery for about 20 years, she made a number of trips to Wisconsin with her husband to hunt deer during the fall season. She finally collected a deer with bow and arrow and Gunder bagged seven during his bow hunting career. They also participated in archery tournaments which were popular throughout the area and conducted nearly every weekend.

Ruth has also been active in the local home economists in homemaking club, the Thief River golf club and bridge club. She and Gunder were volunteers working with patients on the third floor of Northwestern hospital services on a weekly basis for three years. She has served as a judge of 4-H club and open class foods and clothing divisions at many local and area county fairs and other competitions.

In 1980 she received a "Friend of 4-H" award from the Pennington county 4-H leaders' council and in 1970 was also winner of the BPW Woman of the Year award.

THIS LITTLE CLOWN (Trisha Swanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Swanson) is given a trial run on costume and make-up in preparation for the Jaycee Women carnival scheduled for Friday from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Thief River Falls city auditorium. Assisting are Sue Scultborp (left) and Pat Mannie, who co-chair the project, and note that the carnival is open to all pre-school and elementary school children. Many games will be provided with a 20-cent ticket for each event. Balloons will be on sale and lunch will be served throughout the evening. Children are encouraged to wear costumes because prizes will be awarded for the best costumes of the night. Proceeds of the carnival are used by the Jaycee Women for community projects.

approved the program after receiving a letter establishing a line of credit with a local bank to insure payment to the district for costs incurred in operating the program.

Bid of Schools Insurance Fund at a rate of $.00595 was accepted for LTD coverage effective Nov. 1, 1983 through Oct. 31, 1984. Bid of $19,000 from Home Lumber company for an IBM Systems 34 computer for the AVTI was accepted. Authorization was given for the AVTI to enter into a lease-purchase agreement with IBM for additional equipment and a bid of $37,735 from Hewlett Packard company for AVTI electronics equipment was accepted.

Approval was also given for the district to engage in a cooperative planning effort with the Northwest Regional Interdistrict council (NWRIC) for development of appropriate educational programs for students with behavioral and emotional problems. Final plan will be submitted to the board for consideration by next April.

Extra-curricular assignments approved included the following: Cal Lindberg, ninth grade class advisor; James Goldesberry, 10th grade class advisor; Darwin Boutlette, 11th grade class advisor; James Kolz, 12th grade class advisor; Cal Lindberg, photography club advisor; Everett Marshall, stage manager; Doug Engstrom, pep band; Julie Jossund and Kathy Olson, cheerleading advisors; Lynda Jochims, yearbook advisor and Usherettes; and Kenton Kainz, eighth grade boys basketball coach.

Because of an open house scheduled at Lincoln high school at 7 p.m. on November 14, the next regular meeting of the board will be at 6 p.m. on that date in the Lincoln auditorium. The 6 p.m. start will permit board members to attend part of the open house activities.

Mayor Supports Series About Chemical Abuse

Mayor Bob Carlson of Thief River Falls has added his support to the local participation in Chemical People-Minnesota and the three-evening series on alcohol and chemical abuse November 1, 2 and 3.

The public television series at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday may be viewed by individuals in their homes, but people interested in further discussion are encouraged to view the showings at a town meeting at Franklin middle school. Television sets will be located in the school and discussion groups will be formed.

In his proclamation, Mayor Carlson noted that the prevalence of alcohol and drug abuse is of serious concern to all Minnesotans and is especially sad when it occurs among young people. Abuse problems can be averted by promoting chemical health, he said, and the responsibility belongs to the entire community.

He encouraged people to attend the public viewing and discussion and to work together in chemical abuse prevention efforts in the future.

Plan Survey To Study Needs Of Community

Plans for a Thief River Falls school community education survey in School District 564 this winter have been announced by Terry Courneya, chairman of the community education advisory committee.

The survey will seek information on the needs, resources and interests of school district residents and is being conducted to help in planning programs and activities. Individual answers will be confidential but the returns will be tabulated by computer and the composite results made public during March of 1984.

An early preparatory phase will be to seek information from community organizations as to what they see as community needs, Courneya said. Letters seeking this information and soliciting survey questions the organizations may like to have included on the survey form are being sent out this month.

Courneya said the survey itself is to be developed during November and approved by the advisory committee in December. The survey would be conducted in January with returns to be analyzed in February and the public report of findings made in March.

Community education has been in existence in the Thief River Falls school district for a number of years and funded by local special tax levy since 1976. Other funds come from the state of Minnesota and from fees and charges. Provision of programs and services in the community has resulted from a joint effort of the community education advisory committee and the professional staffs of various educational, governmental and service organizations.

Previous surveys by the committee have dealt with services, resources and the needs of handicapped and with course offerings.

City Council Grants Wine License, Loans

decision to divide funds between the other two, with Polar Research Inc. to receive $22,930 and Northern Outerwear to receive $71,070. Loans would be granted at six per cent interest.

In other business the council:

— Instructed Quinlivan to set up a meeting with representatives of Nash Finch Inc. to discuss possible sale of the Fourth Street parking lot for relocation of the Piggly Wiggly store. Since the lot is smaller than the 30,000 square feet which the company desires as operating space, Alderman Bill Penning suggested that the company should be allowed to negotiate "in the unencumbered marketplace" for additional space.

— Reviewed a request from Daryl Norberg for a variance to build an oversize garage at 214 North State Avenue, and returned the request to the board of zoning appeals, with instructions that they attempt to reach a compromise plan. Norberg desired to build a 26 by 45 foot building with 12 foot sidewalls, in order to house his motorhome, boat and seven antique cars. Board of zoning appeals had denied the request on grounds that the large pole structure would impair aesthetics of the residential neighborhood.

— Returned to the finance committee, a request from Architect Gerald Mundt, for an option on purchase of the Carnegie Library building until June 30, for a fee of $1. Alderman Penning suggested that Mundt's proposal renovate the building for use as a restaurant and office building was unrealistic, and recommended that the fee for the option be raised to $500 before city allowed the building to be tied up for that long.

— Approved a change order for modifications to the water treatment plant, involving a $6,534.12 increase in costs paid to R and E Nelsen Inc.

— Approved a park board recommendation granting a progression raise to $1,471 per month for Curt Howe.

— Granted an extension from October 31 to November 15, for completion of the downtown alley project by Molstad Construction.

— Heard a report from Alderman Ken Murphy, who noted that the sanitation committee had negotiated sale of a bulldozer to Roseau county for $14,952. He also noted that attempts to negotiate location of a landfill site with Marshall county had been unsuccessful, and recommended that serious consideration be given to construction of an incinerator unit and locating a landfill in Pennington county.

— Noted receipt of letters from St. Hilaire Co-op Elevator and the Eagles Club in opposition to closing of Red Lake Boulevard by the Minnesota department of transportation as part of the Third Street renovation.

— Voted to utilize paper ballots instead of the punch card system for the city election on November 8. City Clerk Gerald Wigness stated that since they already had the paper ballots for absentee use, it would save money, since there are not that many contests for election judges to keep track of. Move was opposed by Mayor Bob Carlson and Alderman Murphy, with Aldermen Womack, Penning, and Restad voting for paper ballots. Aldermen Amborse Wysoski, Milan Borsheim and Don Goodrich were absent.

— Noted that a hearing is scheduled for November 1 on 1984 block grant applications; next council meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. November 8, with a hearing on alley improvements; and revenue sharing budget hearing is scheduled for November 22.

Agriculture Today

by Ed Curran
U.S. Department of Agriculture

While the over-all number of farms in the United States has declined, numbers of large and medium-sized farms have increased, according to a recent U.S. Department of Agriculture survey.

That survey shows that farm numbers continued to decline this year—a decline that has been present every year except 1981 for nearly 50 years. The total of 2,370,000 farms currently in operation, is down 1 percent from the June 1982 total of 2,400,000.

But a further breakdown shows that the nation's largest farms—those with annual sales of farm products of $100,000 or more—now account for 13.2 percent of all farms. This compared to 12.9 percent in 1982. That means they now number 312,840, compared to 309,600 a year ago. That's a 1 percent increase.

By the same token, medium-sized farms—those with sales of farm products above $10,000 but below $99,999 annually— make up 36.6 percent of all farms, compared to 35.8 percent a year ago. Those medium-sized farms now number 867,420, compared to 859,200 a year ago. That's also a 1 percent increase.

On the other hand, the nation's smallest farms—those with annual sales of above $1,000 but below $10,000 annually—still account for 50.2 percent of all farms, compared to 51.3 percent a year ago. They now number 1,189,740, compared to 1,231,200 a year ago. That's a 3 1/2 percent decrease.

In terms of land in farms, the current survey shows we still have 1.025 billion acres, down from 1.038 billion acres a year ago. In terms of controlling that land, the largest farms have 47.2 percent of the nation's land in farms, compared to 44.6 percent a year ago. The medium-sized farms have 41.7 percent, compared to 43.3 percent a year ago. And the small farms have 11.1 percent, compared to 12.1 percent a year ago.

What it adds up to is this: The nation's largest farms account for only 13 percent of all farms, but have 47 percent of all acreage in farms. The large and medium-sized farms make up just under 50 percent of all farms—but control 89 percent of the acreage. All of which means the small farms, though they still account for over 50 percent of all farms, have only 11 percent of the acreage in farms.

Beltrami Soil Survey Study Nearing Finish

Majority of the field work on the Beltrami county soil survey program is completed in northwestern Beltrami county, according to Ralph E. Rundell, soil conservation technician at the district office in Grygla.

Field checking and soil correlation remains to be done to complete the work, Rundell said, with the map compilation and manuscript writing to follow. When published, the survey results will show potential or problems for each soil for uses as such things as farm production, building sites, wood production, road construction or material for construction and other uses. It will also provide information on drainage and irrigation possibilities.

Rundell notes that with the Beltrami county survey nearly complete and Polk county having a soil survey contract, Marshall county will have surveys completed on all sides except the Roseau county portion.

"There is still time for Marshall county to approve and sign a soil survey contract," Rundell said. "Maybe we should be looking at getting it going before there are no funds left for assistance."

Subcommittee On Ag Exports To Meet Here

State Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls has invited the House agriculture exports and marketing subcommittee to Thief River Falls on November 3 to discuss legislation on minimum pricing for agricultural commodities.

The hearing will be held at 1 p.m. in the basement meeting room of the city auditorium, the last of a series of meetings scheduled by the subcommittee in rural areas of the state.

Session Trains Young People on Drunk Driving

In order to help combat drinking and driving among young people, the Minnesota department of education in cooperation with St. Cloud state university's (SCSU) center for driver education and safety will conduct a day-long program for high school student leaders, Thursday in Thief River Falls.

It is considered to be fact that one out of every two Americans will be involved in a drunk driving crash sometime in his or her lifetime and that many drunk drivers are under the age of 20.

Scheduled for the Best Western motel, the sessions here will be conducted by Dr. John Palmer, SCSU assistant professor of driver education and safety, as part of a statewide program he directs called "The Control Factor." A similar session is being held today in Eveleth.

"The records show that teenagers today start drinking at about the age of 13. By age 15, even before they are old enough for a driver's license, they have already made a choice: either they are drinkers or non-drinkers," Palmer said.

To help Minnesota's young people make well-founded decisions regarding alcohol and driving, Palmer developed "The Control Factor," a federally-funded program which is the only one of its kind in the nation.

Now entering its third year, "The Control Factor" has reached more than 8,000 high school teenagers, providing them with information on the legal, social and cultural implications of drinking and driving via a multi-media presentation.

The Eveleth and Thief River Falls sessions represent the first phase of the program — training a small group of carefully-selected high school students who will, in turn, present "The Control Factor" to their peers, often in driver education or health classes.

"National studies have shown that the greatest potential for reaching teenagers is through positive peer pressure. That is what 'The Congrol Factor' is all about," Palmer said.

Students selected as peer educators who will be attending the session in Thief River Falls tomorrow include the following: Matthew Wilke, Liz Holz and Tracy Lisell, Alvarado; Carl Dorr, Shelia Hoeft and Shawn Grinolds, Erskine; Mary Peterson, Patti Rutherford and Scott Knutson, Fisher; Jamie Foster and Brian Berg, Greenbush; Tiffany Benson, Mike Parent and Sue Schow, McIntosh; Lori Jorgensen, Tonie Swanson, Cindy Solem or Kris Kjos, Thief River Falls;

Also Charlene Lofton, Theresa Wensloff and Kim Haugen, Roseau; Dianne Gorski, Nancy Levenhagen and Shannon Locken, Lancaster; Denise Engelstad, Roxanne Holcomb and Dale Moran, Mentor; Camille Burggraf, Becky Killian and Danny Paulson, Fosston.

USDA Credit For Oilseed Export Drops

Because of the short supply of the U.S. produced oilseeds, USDA is apparently not providing credit guarantees for the export of soybean, sunflower or cottonseed. The USDA credit program guarantees repayment to a commercial lender in the event of a country's payment default.

According to Larry Kleingartner of the National Sunflower association, "the credit guarantee program has been a very important mechanism for the export of both seed and oil."

Kleingartner said, "it appears the decision was made by USDA in response to a limited budget for the guarantee program and the limited size of the U.S. oilseed crops. However, one can speculate that the administration is concerned about the consumer price index in relation to higher food prices."

"Of course, any country is free to buy what it wants with cash, but most of our customers are short of hard currency and are dependent on some type of credit," Kleingartner said.

According to Kleingartner, this move comes at the same time that the crushing plants are full of seed. The price for seed has dropped over a dollar in the last three days due to harvest pressure and a lack of export demand at Duluth. This situation should be short lived and stronger market prices should continue into the new year.

Kleingartner stated that the association has indicated its concern to USDA regarding this credit situation. "We are presently surveying the major customers to get their reaction and what alternatives they might be considering. We have been told that credit guarantees may be available for vegetable oil on a case by case basis," Kleingartner said.

Legislative Commission To Meet Here

Thief River Falls is among the sites of 17 regional meetings throughout the state at which the legislative commission on public education "will seek direct input from citizens, parents, teachers and students regarding the role of public education". The meetings will be November 10 at Lincoln high school.

Rep. Bob McEachern is chairman on the commission and Sen. Jim Pehler is vice chairman. Two hearings will be held at each of the locations, one in the afternoon for individuals directly involved in education and another in the evening for parents, concerned citizens and the public. No specific times were listed.

Sen. Pehler said the two meetings are being scheduled to allow adequate time for testimony, suggestions and comments by interested individuals. "The discussion of the meetings will focus on graduation, public education, system improvement, strength of public education and a mission statement," Rep. McEachern added.

The five items mentioned are not exclusive discussion topics but are a starting discussion point for the commission. The 17 meetings are scheduled to ensure that all regions of the state have an opportunity for input to help ensure educational leadership in Minnesota in the years ahead.

Other communities which will be hosting meetings include Slayton, Mankato, Cambridge, Hibbing, Staples, Morris, Bemidji, Rochester, Duluth, Willmar, Detroit Lakes, Eden Prairie, Roseville, St. Paul, St. Cloud and Minneapolis.

Further information is available from Rep. Bob McEachern at 170 State Office Building (612-296-4237) or Sen. Jim Pehler, 306 Capitol (612-296-4241), both at St. Paul, MN 55155.

Minnesota Has 240,000 Cattle On Feed Oct. 1

Minnesota feedlots contained 240,000 cattle on October 1, down 23 per cent from a year ago, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Placements during the third quarter of 1983 decreased 15 per cent from the same quarter a year ago. Marketings during July-September decreased one per cent from a year earlier.

Farmers expect to market 160,000 cattle during the next three months (October-December), 11 per cent less than the actual marketings for the same period last year.

Cattle and calves on feed October 1 for slaughter market in the 13 quarterly states, totaled 8.47 million head, four per cent less than last year but three per cent above 1981.

Placements of cattle and calves on feed during July-September 1983 quarter totaled 5.59 million, four per cent less than the same quarter last year but six per cent more than the same quarter of 1981. Other disappearance of 298, leaves net placements for the third quarter of 1983 at 5.29 million.

Marketings of fed cattle for slaughter during the July-September quarter totaled 5.89 million, up two per cent from last year and eight per cent more than the comparable 1981 quarter.

During the October-December quarter of 1983, 5.32 million head of fed cattle are expected to come to market. This would be a one per cent decrease from the actual fourth quarter marketings in 1982 but five per cent above 1981.

$80,000 In Emergency Aid Available Here

Plans were recently activated to make over $80,000 in special energy, food, shelter and crisis assistance immediately available to low income families in this area, according to Barbara Beerhalmer, commissioner of the Minnesota department of economic security.

Assistance is part of a special $4 million allocation which helps qualifying low-income families meet emergency needs including help in avoiding heat shut-offs. Beerhalter said that households not faced with immediate shut-off of utility service but which may need help paying energy bills should wait and apply for assistance under the department of economic security's energy assistance program, which begins taking applications on November 1.

She also said that the public service department and the public utilities commission have made arrangements with regulated utilities (excluding Ottertail Power Company) to use the special funds to help households pay a portion of their past due bills and seek protection from utility shut-offs this winter.

According to Beerhalter, the special $4 million allocation also will be used for food shelves and emergency shelters, crisis intervention, surplus commodity distribution, development of food bank networks and administration of weatherization programs. She said that local agencies hope to reserve some resources for emergency needs throughout the winter and into next spring.

Funds are being allocated throughout Minnesota to 39 agencies including 27 community action programs, 11 Indian reservations, and the Minnesota migrant council. Resources were transferred from the 1982-83 federal energy assistance block grant to the community services block grant.

Residents of Pennington, East Polk, Clearwater and Red Lake counties may obtain more information on the $42,611 available to that area by contacting the inter-county community council on Oklee; Residents of Kittson, east Marshall, Roseau and Lake of the Woods counties may obtain further information on the $38,785 available to that area by contacting the Northwest community action agency in Badger.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

As an interested citizen I attended both the Senate and House Agriculture meetings held at Northland community college recently. I thought both meetings were helpful in drawing attention to the plight of our farmers. If the rhetoric could have been limited to the problem our area farmers are experiencing, I say hats off to Wally Sparby and LeRoy Stumpf for bringing these delegations here.

At the Senate Agriculture meeting many statements were made about how Congressman Stangeland had not represented the farmer. Stangeland's office was not notified of the meeting which was held the eve of the state Republican convention. I made personal contacts the next day with Congressman Stangeland's office personnel and as a result both Congressman Stangeland's and Seantor Boschwitz's offices had representatives at the House hearing.

Congressman Stangeland has been very much concerned about the problems we face in Pennington, Red Lake, Marshall, Polk, Beltrami and Clearwater counties. He has been successful in getting another Farmer Home administration office opened in Crookston to relieve the pressures on the Warren and Thief River Falls offices.

At the hearings there was an attempt to make it look like the problem was lack of attention to processing loans. I thought our state director handled the questions very well, and I'm convinced that they are doing everything possible under the law to help us.

Mr. Stumpf hit the nail on the head when he stated, "The loans could be processed with the speed of light and yet many of our farmers would not get the help needed because they don't qualify."

The testimony indicated that what is needed is some long term low interest loans for farmers that have had disasters for the last three years.

Stangeland, who is a farmer himself, and serves on the House Agriculture committee, offered an amendment to the Farm Crisis Act that would provide 15 to 40 year loans at five per cent interest. This amendment also provided a five-year moratorium on payments for some farmers. Under this measure Polk, Beltrami, Clearwater and Marshall county farmers would also be included for relief on a case-by-case basis.

The Stangeland amendment was supported by 11 of 12 Republicans on the committee, but all 15 Democrats voted against this relief measure. I don't feel anyone should be playing politics with what should be a bipartisan concern for the aid of our local family farmer.

Allen Nichols, Seventh District DFL chairman, should not be so critical of Arlan Stangeland who has always done his best to represent the farmer. Nichols should instead ask why the DFL members of the House Agriculture committee refused to help our farmers.

Congressman Stangeland will still attempt to add this amendment to the 1983 drought relief act when it is introduced on the House floor. Please! Let's get some help from our DFL friends to get some much-needed relief for our farmers who have seen three years or more of disaster.

Engelstad Farm Is Conservation Award Winner

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Engelstad, Grygla, have been named "Conservation Farmer of the Year" award winners for 1983-84 by the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district.

Ronnie and Linda Engelstad started farming in 1973. Located in Veldt township, their farm consists of 1,320 acres with 1,270 acres of cropland. Main crop is wheat in a cash crop and grass-legume rotation with a winter feeding operation. Livestock consists of about 300 to 350 feeders.

Conservation practices on the Engelstad farm include about 18 miles of field drainage, a mound type feedlot, a feedlot waste holding pond and a farmstead windbreak which borders their well-kept farmstead. All buildings on the farm have been built in the last 10 years. About 400 acres of land have been cleared to improve their farming operation.

The Engelstads have two children, Derel and Reed, who attend Grygla high school. They are members of United Lutheran church of Gatzke, where Ronnie is a trustee and Linda is treasurer for the A.L.C.W. Ronnie is a supervisor for Veldt township, a director of American State Bank, a member of the Lions and a past school board member. Linda is also treasurer for Veldt township.

Other interests include snowmobiling for Ronnie and painting and sewing for Linda.

Interested persons should attend the first rehearsal at 2:30 p.m. this Sunday, at the church. Additional rehearsals will be held at the same time on the following two Sundays.

MCCL Holds Convention In Minneapolis

Legal expert James Bopp encouraged over 500 participants in the 12th annual state convention of Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life (MCCL) to work for legislation and other measures to "halt the fatal discrimination against handicapped newborns" he says is taking place in hospitals across the country.

Bopp was closely involved in litigation over the death of a child known only as "Infant Doe" in Indiana in 1982. The baby was born with a physical problem that could have been corrected, but because he also suffered from Down's Syndrome which involves mental retardation, the baby's parents took the advice of a physician and refused to authorize the needed surgery, "allowing" him to die of starvation and dehydration.

Bopp said the physician and legal system failed the child. "Empowered by the Indiana legislature to protect the young and helpless, the courts ordered that no medical treatment or care be given to this helpless baby," he said. "Intended to be the ultimate protectors of the neglected and abused, they instead refused to act."

Speaking at the Saturday luncheon was the Rev. Edward Bryce, director of pro-life activities for the national conference of Catholic Bishops. Father Bryce said pro-lifers must help mothers to see that they are the "first line of defense for their children in a world where many want to take the lives of those children.

Sunday luncheon speaker was Dr. Wanda Franz, professor of family resources at the University of West Virginia. She told conventioneers that "women prepared to abort their unborn children today will become more inclined to abuse their born children at a later time, and doctors who participate in the abortion mentality today will be more inclined to recommend infanticide and euthanasia tomorrow."

During the weekend conventioneers participated in 19 seminars and workshops on a wide variety of additional topics, including supportive services for women with crisis pregnancies, legislating a definition of death, and child abuse. Participants came from all areas of the state and will take information learned at the convention back to their local communities and MCCL's 150 chapters.

CHAMBER AMBASSADORS Dave Strong, left, and Jane Mackenroth, right, acknowledged the renovation of the former Red Owl building on Main Avenue as more progress for Thief River Falls recently. Signs denoting the progress were presented to new owners Walt and Elinor Wiskow, who plan to open a 6,000 square foot Ben Franklin variety store on the site, with seven or eight employees, around the middle of November.

Noteworthy Ideas

If you're the kind of person who likes to take your music with you—and loves entertaining others—a new portable keyboard may hit just the right note with you. This portable electronic keyboard is filled with a variety of sounds, rhythms and effects enabling the player to achieve full musical expression. At the same time, its easy-to-use features ensure complete playability.

This amazing keyboard, the PS-55 from Yamaha, features two sound groups: 16 synthesized solo voices and 16 polyphonic orchestra voices. With the PCM (Pulse Code Modulation) tone generator, you can back your playing with a rhythm section originally recorded from an actual drum performance. The PS-55 from Yamaha also has an easy-to-use Multi-Memory Music Programmer System that can memorize and play back chord accompaniment plus two melodies played independently using the solo and orchestra sections. It's just like a recording studio's multi-track system.

The automatic melody harmonizing feature adds one or two notes to each melody you play. Instant "capo" lets you quickly change the key of the entire keyboard. Pitch control is included for tuning with other instruments in an ensemble. Also included are two high-performance speakers and Stereo Symphonic control which combine for powerful stereo reproduction. The versatile keyboard can even be connected to a home stereo or PA system.

SEWER VENTS on the roofs of homes along Robin Hood Drive displayed plumes of light gray smoke within seconds after it was introduced into the manholes on the street by city employees. Four columns indicated the Arve Moser home was more thoroughly ventilated than most. If all sewer connections were correctly made, the roof vents were the only places where smoke should have appeared. Wastewater department supervisor Bud Enge and building inspector Bob Bregler were kept busy as they inspected two blocks at a time, looking for signs of smoke around foundations and other areas which would indicate drainage systems connected into the sanitary sewer systems, or broken sewer pipes. Although no major problems were encountered, some homeowners discovered smoke coming out around improperly seated toilets and uncapped drain pipes which were also allowing potentially hazardous sewer gases to enter their houses.

Senator Laments Defeat Of Dairy Compromise Bill

Senator Rudy Boschwitz said he was "extremely disappointed" that the House of Representatives narrowly turned back his dairy compromise and predicted that those who voted against the plan will "have some serious explaining to do to their farmers."

Boschwitz lauded the Minnesota delegation for giving his plan almost unanimous bipartisan support. He noted that the only member of the Minnesota delegation to vote against the dairy plan was Congressman Jim Oberstar.

"It was really the last hope for the dairy farmer to pull himself out of the present surplus difficulties," Boschwitz said. "If my plan fails — and prospect for passage doesn't look good — the next logical step would be for Congress to deal with the program in the 1985 farm bill. And if CCC purchases of dairy products continue to skyrocket, the dairy farmer will be in big trouble. I really mean it. Let's face it, this is an urban-oriented Congress."

The dairy price support program this year (FY 1984) is projected to purchase 15.5 billion pounds of product if the two 50-cent assessments are left in place. Under the compromise, purchases would be only 1.7 billion pounds. (The purchases under the assessment program would be over 900 per cent larger.)

If the dairy surpluses are not eliminated quickly, Boschwitz predicted that Congress would be "more likely than ever to cut the legs out from underneath the price support program."

Faced with that prospect, Boschwitz said he forged a compromise that would have cut the surplus in a way that gave family-operated dairy farms a good chance to compete. Concerns of beef and pork producers that their markets might be adversely impacted by culled dairy cows were mitigated by amendments Boschwitz cosponsored on the Senate floor.

The plan would work like this:

(1) On Jan. 1, 1984 a paid diversion program ($10 per cwt) would be implemented. It would last for 15 months and be partially funded by a 50 cent "self-help" fee on all milk marketed. Farmers would contract to reduce their production by 5 to 30 per cent from their base. The base period would be either the 1982 marketing year (Oct. 1, 1981 to Sept. 30, 1982) or an average of 1981 and 1982 if that's more favorable to the producer. (The secretary of agriculture could proportionately adjust the amount of each farmer's contracted reduction if (due to too many farmers signing up; a milk shortage would result.)

(2) On Jan. 1, 1984 the price support level would be reduced from the present $13.10 to $12.60 per cwt. The farmer's check would be reduced by the 50 cent fee and so be $12.10.

(3) On Feb. 28, 1985 the paid diversion program would end. The 50 cent fee would also end.

(4) On April 1, 1985 if the secretary of agriculture projects CCC dairy removals to be in excess of 6 billion pounds in 1985, the price would go to $12.10. Since the fee would end, the farmer's check would remain the same. If production is down and removals are projected to be under 6 billion pounds, then the price stays at $12.60 (with no fee) or higher if the Secretary chooses.

(5) On Oct. 1, 1985 if production still isn't down and CCC removals are still projected to be more than five billion pounds in the next 12 months, the secretary would have the discretion to lower the price to $11.60 (with no fee). The secretary could raise the price as well if conditions warranted it.

(6) There would be a mandatory 15 cent checkoff for promotion. If there is already a checkoff within a state, it would be credited against the 15 cents — but no matter how much the state promotion checkoff is, the federal checkoff for promotion would be at least a nickel.

(7) The USDA would state by separate letter (it would not be part of the law) that it is its intention to increase the "make allowance" if CCC purchases go down.

"Frankly, I'm not sure where we go next," Boschwitz said. "It didn't take a particularly deep thinker to realize all along that my dairy plan was the most fragile of compromises.

"It took almost six months to balance all the varying factions; to get it even considered by the Senate was quite an accomplishment," Boschwitz said. "And as we proved in the Senate debate, it was the only thing that had a ghost of a chance of passing.

"I suppose I feel like an artist who is looking at a favorite painting, damaged by thieves, who wanted the frame," Boschwitz said. "If they are successful, those who brought down the dairy bill did so at great expense to the future of the family-owned dairy farm. I hope they realize what they have done."

"Move or Improve"

Improving Your Home Can Be A Lifetime Investment

Your home is probably the single largest investment you'll ever make. Guaranteeing an excellent return on that investment, both while you're living there and if you decide to sell, requires smart improvement planning.

When asked about home improvements, most people think of remodeling the kitchen or adding a bathroom. But there are other, less expensive improvements you can make which will make a real difference in the quality and longevity of your home.

Start from the bottom and work your way up. The basements of many homes have leaks and seepage which can be controlled easily by applying a sealant to wall and floors. Ask at a local hardware store for the best buy.

Is your clothes dryer vented to the outside? If not, it's pumping wetness into your home during the summer, causing mildew and warping of furniture, walls and woodwork. Don't delay in adding an outside vent.

On the other hand, lack of proper moisture can be equally as damaging to the structure of your home and its furnishings. Door and window frames will shrink and let in chilling drafts. Furniture will become brittle and plaster walls can dry and crack.

If you install a central humidifier on your heating system, you can control the vital humidity in your home, especially during dry winter months. There are models available for virtually every type of heating system.

A properly humidified home requires less heat to maintain a comfortable temperature. Select a unit which allows you to dial down your thermostat and save on energy bills. That's the kind of home improvement that pays off at resale time.

Another high value improvement would be the installation of a non-electronic high efficiency air cleaner. This relatively inexpensive addition to your forced air furnace will remove virtually all the dust, pollen and pollutants from the air circulating through it.

Clean air in the home is not only healthier for your family, but also for your furnishings, carpeting and walls. You'll find that you won't have to redecorate as often.

Ask your local heating and air conditioning dealer about improving the air quality in your home, or call toll free 1-800-356-9652.

These improvements are a smart investment to make in the future of your home. They will pay you back many times over by protecting the structure of the house and everything in it.

This pay-back criteria should also be used when planning major home improvements. Ask yourself, will I be able to recoup the cost of the project if I sell my house sometime in the future?

If the answer is no, make sure the project at least has "value" to you while you're living there.

A second or third bathroom, particularly off the master bedroom, is a strong selling point in a home. So is a remodeled kitchen with energy-saving appliances.

Carefully consider the other homes in your neighborhood when planning improvements. For example, family rooms are popular in the suburbs, but in the city there's more demand for versatile living space such as a third bedroom.

A built-in swimming pool would be fun for the whole family. But when it comes to resale time, will that pool place a much higher price tag on your home than others nearby?

Garages are usually worth the investment in colder climates, but even then expect only a 50 percent return for your investment.

Smart home improvements, adding both longevity and quality to your investment, are well worth the cost and effort. Not only will they make it more enjoyable for you and your family now, but they also will make your home a standout at resale time.

Dear Voters:

In the next two weeks much is going to be said by the candidates running for the position of Mayor in the upcoming election on Nov. 8, 1983. I am running for re-election and I will stand on my record in serving you these past ten years as your Mayor. It has been the most rewarding experience of my life. Defenses on both sides may have their hands full Thursday when Thief River Falls and Crookston meet in a regular season-ending high school football game at Prowler Field.

Individual runningbacks had big nights for both teams last week. In the Pirates' 28-7 Wednesday night win over Mountain Iron-Buhl, Crookston junior Mike Bang picked up the slack caused by the absence of injured runningback Rick Dahle by rushing for 190 yards on 16 carries, an 11.8-yard-per-carry average for the 5-9, 180-pounder. At the same time, Crookston quarterback Jeff Bigger collected 81 yards rushing off the Pirates' option offense.

Meanwhile, in the Prowlers' 46-6 rout of East Grand Forks that same night, Thief River Falls senior Tim Bottem rushed for 184 yards on 20 carries, a 9.2-yards-per-carry average for the 5-10, 186-pounder. Nearly all of that came in the first half, too, since he carried just once for six yards after intermission when the Prowlers were obviously on their way to an easy win.

In their last three games, which includes a 14-6 win over Bemidji, a 41-8 loss to Fergus Falls and the one-sided victory over East Grand Forks, the Prowlers' offense, sparked by Bottem, has been very effective.

It was on offense that Thief River Falls struggled during most of the 22-game losing streak the Prowlers finally broke earlier this fall. But Bottem, benefiting from some strong blocking that complements his hard running, has rushed for 405 yards in the last three games, including the 184 yards against East Grand Forks, 92 against Fergus Falls and 129 against Bemidji. He has an even 700 yards rushing for the season.

Northland, UMC Rivalry Renewed

Northland community college football team will be a decided underdog Saturday when the Northmen close out their 1983 football season with a 1:30 p.m. Northwest Division game at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC).

But while the Trojans will be prohibitive favorites to win the game, their once-invincible armor has cracked a bit over the last two weeks. UMC out-scored the opposition 171-3 in rolling to five easy season-opening wins. But the Trojans, even though they won the game 33-21, showed signs of being human when they surrendered three touchdowns in their Northwest Division opener against Fergus Falls two weeks ago, then they even tasted defeat at Brainerd.

That might not make them any more beatable for the Northmen, but maybe it'll take just a little bit of the psychological edge away from the Trojans, although they'll still be superior physically with a 50-to-60-man roster compared to the 23-or-so that will make the trip for the Northmen.

"There's no getting around it," admitted Northland coach John Helley, "they are capable of beating people by 5-6-7-8 touchdowns. And I suppose we're going to be on the receiving end of a few licks for the wounds they've suffered over the last couple of weeks. But we have a chance to make up for a disappointing (1-6) season if we could upset them. We're down to about 23 players, but they all want to play Crookston. It's my smallest squad, but it's still my best group of athletes."

Although UMC has featured one of the strongest football programs in the league in recent years while Northland has been struggling, the series between the northwestern Minnesota rivals is dead-even over the past four meets, with the visitors emerging as winners each time out.

Northland beat UMC for the first time in four encounters with a 27-7 upset at Crookston in 1979 and the Northmen spoiled the Trojans' dedication ceremonies for their new football-track complex in 1981 by stunning UMC 26-13. The Trojans, in turn, won here by a 19-14 count in 1980 and by an 18-0 margin last fall.

Miscellaneous

+ Coaches of varsity athletic teams at Fergus Falls high school voted 7-3 against joining the Central Lakes Conference in all sports when polled by athletic director Don Kostelecky, although a proposal to join the league in all sports but football and hockey was approved by a 7-3 margin. However, Central Lakes officials are opposed to having the Otters come into the conference for some sports and not for others. That's the same situation facing Moorhead, with the Spuds desiring to play for the Central Lakes football title but not in most other sports. Central Lakes teams include Brainerd, Little Falls, St. Cloud Tech, St. Cloud Apollo, Elk River, Willmar and Alexandria.

+ Region 8AA boys and girls high school cross country meet will be held Thursday at Fergus Falls, with Bemidji the heavy favorite to win top team honors in the boys' competition. The Lumberjacks were ranked No. 3 in the latest Class AA ratings behind Frank B. Kellogg-Alexander Ramsey and Mounds View. Individually, Park Rapids' Mark Lingle is the Region 8AA favorite. He's ranked No. 2 in the State Coaches Association voting behind Bob Kempainen of Hopkins. St. Cloud Tech's Pam Urbanski, No. 3 in the lasting ranking, is the favorite in the Region 8AA girls' race.

Overtime Win Gives Cardinals Unbeaten Record

Plummer completed an unbeaten North Tri-County Conference championship season Tuesday with a 20-14 overtime win over Clearbrook, and now the 8-0 Cardinals have their sights set on the post-season Nine-Man high school football playoffs.

First-ever Plummer post-season appearance will take place Saturday when the Cardinals host Northern Lights Conference champion Kennedy at 7:30 p.m. The Rockets won the title Tuesday with a 48-30 victory over Midway. Plummer clinched a playoff berth the week before.

Plummer-Kennedy winner will move into the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) state Nine-Man quarterfinals, a game tentatively set for Fri., Nov. 4. They will be playing at either Argyle or Norman County West that day. The Top of the State Conference champion Eagles and the Agassiz Valley North Conference champion Panthers meet in opening round playoff action Saturday at 7:30 p.m., with Norman County West as the host site.

While already assured of a playoff berth and at least a North-Tri-County Conference title tie coming into the game, Plummer was shooting for its first unbeaten season since 1969 — the last time the Cardinals won the conference title. Grygla-Goodridge could have shared the 1983 pennant with Plummer by combining a win over Gonvick-Trail with a Plummer loss to Clearbrook, the defending conference champion.

It wasn't easy. Clearbrook went ahead 14-8 on an 8-yard touchdown run by Byron Nelson with 4:35 left in the game. After an exchange of punts, Plummer had one last shot from its own 30-yard line with 39 seconds remaining.

A long pass play from Tim Gagner to Brian Fisher brought the ball inside the Clearbrook 10-yard line, and on a play that started with just four seconds on the clock, Clearbrook was whistled for pass interference at the Hornets' 3-yard line. There was no time left, but a game cannot end on a defensive penalty, so the Cardinals had one snap left. With Clearbrook looking for the pass, Troy Gustafson was given the ball on a draw play and he reached the end zone to tie it 14-14.

Russ Fisher's conversion kick sailed off to the left, forcing overtime.

Plummer won the coin toss to start the extra session and went on defense. Nelson, a 200-pound senior, carried four straight times for Clearbrook, but Plummer's defense stopped him twice from inside the Cardinals' 1-yard line to preserve the tie.

When the Cardinals went on offense at the Clearbrook 10-yard line, they were set back on an illegal procedure penalty, but on third down from the 13, Gene Fisher hauled in a game-winning touchdown pass from Gagner as the large Plummer Parent's Night crowd flooded the field.

"We were ecstatic," reported Plummer coach Gary Brantl. "It looked pretty grim for a while, but the kids came through again."

It was the fourth Plummer victory by a touchdown margin or less this fall. Brantl would like to see that magic continue Saturday. "It should be a good ball game," he said. "We're very enthused about it."

Prowlers Close Out Schedule On Thursday

Muddy Prowler Field will be put to use one more time this fall on Thursday when Thief River Falls and Crookston renew a long football rivalry to close out the 1983 regular season high school football schedule.

Originally scheduled to be played Friday, the 7:30 p.m. game was moved to Thursday to accommodate the Class A post-season playoff possibilities for Crookston. If the Pirates beat the Prowlers they'll face Mid-State Conference champion Park Rapids next Tuesday at Park Rapids. But if the Prowlers defeat the Pirates it's all over for both sides. Thief River Falls wraps up its season tomorrow regardless of the outcome.

Crookston is 5-3 for the year, which includes a 1-3 start but a current four-game winning streak. The Pirates lost their opener to West Fargo 37-6 and beat Grand Forks Central 11-8 the next time out before losing back-to-back games to Park Rapids 20-6 and Fergus Falls 34-23. However, over the last four weeks the Pirates have rattled off wins over Aurora-Hoyt Lakes 20-14, East Grand Forks 29-14, Barnesville 23-16 and Mountain Iron-Buhl 28-7 last Wednesday. But the Pirates must complement a winning record with wins over both East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls to gain a post-season playoff berth as a Class A independent.

East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls had the same opportunity, but the Green Wave finished a shortened 1-6 campaign last week and the Prowlers carry a 3-5 record into the season finale. The Prowlers and Pirates have met two common foes, with Thief River Falls losing to Fergus Falls 41-8 and beating East Grand Forks 46-6 in the Prowlers' last two starts.

Thief River Falls and Crookston have met every year since 1920 on the gridiron, with the exception of the 1931 and 1981 seasons, and they've squared off in the last regular season game every year since 1953, with the exception of 1981 when teacher strikes in both communities wiped out the scheduled game.

A 37-20 won-lost edge belongs to Thief River Falls in the long-time series, with four ties. But Crookston has won nine of the last ten meetings, including the last five. Only Thief River Falls win over Crookston over the last decade was a 22-6 decision at Crookston in 1976.

Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz says he expects a good match-up. "They appear to have a good football team. They've been coming on, but I think we can give them a good tussel."

Jeff Bigger, a 5-11, 174-pound senior, is the key performer for the Pirates, pointed out Schmitz. Used at both quarterback and runningback, Bigger is described as "an outstanding football player," by the Prowlers coach.

Schmitz says the Prowlers are aware of their role of spoilers in the path of Crookston's playoff hopes, but that won't be Thief River Falls' main incentive Thursday. "We're not as concerned about taking them out of the playoffs as we are about us simply winning the football game," he explained. "We're more concerned about winning for ourselves."

THIEF RIVER FALLS senior Nora Hushagen (4) wasn't able to come up with the ball on this play as the Crookston shot fell between her and teammate Missy Bondy (left) during Tuesday's volleyball match in the Lincoln high school gym. Kelli Olson of the Prowlers watched from the background. Thief River Falls won the match 18-10, 18-15.

Lincoln Volleyball Team Tops Bemidji, Crookston

Emotional back-to-back wins over Bemidji and Crookston this week have lifted the spirits of the Lincoln high school volleyball team, with the Prowlers improving their record to 5-8 in the process.

Thief River Falls outlasted Bemidji 18-12, 17-19, 21-19 Monday at Bemidji to snap a three-match losing streak and followed that up with an 18-10, 18-15 victory over Crookston Tuesday in the Prowlers' final home appearance of the 1983 season.

Regular season schedule ends Thursday at East Grand Forks. North Sub-Region 8AA tournament matches will be held at Moorhead Sat., Nov. 5.

Bemidji 1

Thief River Falls dominated play at the start, but wound up with a real battle in beating Bemidji 18-12, 17-19, 21-19 Monday.

It was all Thief River Falls in the first game as the Prowlers jumped out to an 8-1 lead and coasted to an easy win. Bemidji got the jump in the second game with a 10-2 headstart, but eight straight service points by Leslie Weigand netted the Prowlers a 10-10 tie. The game seesawed the rest of the way before Bemidji broke a 17-17 tie with the final two points in a game delayed when Thief River Falls' Pauline Lindberg bumped the ball to the ceiling and knocked down a big gymnasium light fixture.

Third game produced the real excitement. Bemidji led 10-8 in a close struggle before the Prowlers' Kristi Finney served nine straight points for a 17-10 lead. But needing just a single point to win it, the Prowlers went through three different servers and found themselves trailing 18-17. Service points by Kelli Olson and Missy Bondy, with a spike by Weigand getting one of the points, brought the Prowlers a 19-19 tie. Both sides went through three more servers before Finney closed it out at the service line.

"Everyone played and they all did an excellent job," reported Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson. "No matter who I put on the floor, they all worked very well together."

Bemidji took both preliminary matches in three games to make for a long night of volleyball. Bemidji won the junior varsity match 18-15, 10-18, 18-12 and triumphed in the C squad match 18-13, 11-18, 18-14.

Crookston 0

Thief River Falls, after winning the first game easy enough, 18-10, rallied from a 10-3 second-game deficit for an 18-15 win and a 2-0 match victory over Crookston Tuesday in front of an appreciative Parent's Night crowd.

It was head-scratching match for most of the night as the teams took turns dominating play because of the opposition's errors. Thief River Falls rolled up a 17-3 first-game lead as mistake-prone Crookston did little right. But the Prowlers lost their concentration and let the Pirates pull within 17-10 before they finally got that 18th point.

Crookston was the team that looked good at the start of the second game, with Thief River Falls making the mistakes in surrendering seven unanswered points after a 3-3 beginning. But once again the momentum swung around and Thief River Falls, behind the suddenly dominant play of Paula Bergan, came back with a flurry of good volleyball.

With Missy Bondy serving, Thief River Falls erased a 14-9 deficit when Bergan scored on a spike and a block, set up Leslie Weigand for a spike and then hit another ace herself for a 15-14 lead for the Prowlers. A spike into the corner by Kristi Finney made it 16-14, with a block by Bergan breaking Crookston servite at 16-15 in a suddenly tense match, leading to the final two points of the night for the winners.

"I'm really pleased with the win," said elated Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson afterwards. "When you're behind like we were in that second game and come back like we did, that's really something. They hung right in there. It was a good all-round team effort."

Kelli Olson led the Prowlers with eight service points, while Bondy had seven and Bergan six.

Crookston won the earlier matches, winning the junior varsity encounter 18-16, 10-18, 18-14 and winning the C squad match 18-14, 18-10.

1-6 Northland Challenges 6-1 UMC . . .

Northmen, Trojans Play Saturday At Crookston

Saturday the Northland community college football team closes out its 1983 season on the road by challenging the University of Minnesota-Crookston in a 1:30 p.m. Northwest Division game that might be labled as a Todd Graalum vs. Luther Huggins duel of statistics.

Graalum, you see, is listed as the nation's leading receiver in the latest NJCAA statistical charts. The 5-11, 179-pound sophomore split end from Fargo, N.D. has caught at least one pass in every Northland game this fall.

Meanwhile, Huggins, a sprinter from Miami, Fla., is heralded as an NCAA Division I prospect. He has rushed for 734 yards this fall, averaging about seven yards per carry. His best out-put was in the season-opener when he collected 187 yards in a 22-0 UMC victory over the Moorhead State University junior varsity.

Northland, then, with Graalum in the line-up, will lean heavily on the passing game in the UMC Sunflower Bowl, while the host Trojans, with Huggins leading the way, will be expected to rely mostly on the ground game.

UMC had a six-game unbeaten streak come to an end Saturday in a 9-7 loss at Brainerd. Earlier the Trojans racked up Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) wins over Vermilion 19-3, Hibbing 44-0, Mesabi 30-0, Itasca 56-0 and Fergus Falls 33-21.

But against Brainerd, UMC lost three fumbles and had three passes intercepted. All the scoring occurred in the first half. Brainerd's John Zbacnik kicked a 38-yard field goal, his seventh of the season, to cap a 12-play, 71-yard first quarter drive and the Red Raiders went ahead 9-0 early in the second quarter after a fumble recovery by defensive end Ted Erickson at the UMC 5-yard line. Brian Winters, who rushed for 101 yards on 26 carries to surpass the 100-yard mark for the sixth straight game, scored on the very next snap.

Only UMC score of the afternoon came on the ensuing kickoff when Huggins shocked the huge crowd by racing 97 yards for the touchdown. The Trojans had the statistical edge — 280 net yards to Brainerd's 192 — but it was irrelevant as the Red Raiders replaced the visitors as Northwest Division leaders.

Brainerd can clinch the divisional title and earn a post-season playoff berth with a win at Fergus Falls Saturday. UMC can win the pennant, though, by combining a win over Northland with a Fergus Falls upset of Brainerd. That's the way the Trojans won the 1982 Northern Division title as Fergus Falls beat Golden Valley Lutheran 28-14 to give UMC the crown after the Trojans had earlier lost to the Royals.

This year the new divisional format doesn't include Golden Valley Lutheran. The regular season Northwest and Northeast Division winners meet in the MCCC state playoff semifinals. The Northeast Division title will be on the line Friday night when first place Itasca visits second place Vermilion for a 7:30 p.m. game. The winner will be the divisional champion.

Northland coach John Helley doesn't hesitate to say the Northmen will be putting the ball in the air Saturday, and Graalum will be a key part of the attack. In seven games the Fargo North product has 29 catches for 395 yards, a 13.6-yard average per catch.

"Todd is not blessed with a great deal of speed, but he has the moves and he has tremendous concentration," explained Helley. "He has the ability to get to the ball no matter where it's thrown."

Graalum was talked into playing football at Northland by high school teammate Bob Rockwood, recognized as the team's best all-around athlete whose versatility has him playing several different positions throughout the course of a game. They both also play hockey for the Northmen.

"They're an example of what we've been talking about all along in community college athletics," pointed out Helley. "It's a chance to participate and maybe even excell when you don't really have the great ability to play at a larger school."

Northland will be trying to reach a milestone Saturday when the Northmen attempt to surpass the 1,000-yard mark in passing for the season. Freshman quarterback Steve Blanc of Columbia Heights is 62-for-194 passing this fall (32 per cent) for 810 yards. Rockwood, last year's full-time quarterback, has played there occasionally this fall and is 7-for-22 (31 per cent) for an additional 156 yards, making the Northmen 69-for-216 for 966 yards in the air. The Northmen put the ball up 37 times Saturday in a 41-13 loss to Fergus Falls that dropped their record to 1-6 — just the opposite of UMC.

Huggins was limited to 61 yards on 14 carries at Brainerd and fleet-footed sophomore quarterback Jeff Strandell of East Grand Forks was sacked five times by the tough Red Raiders defense that beat Northland 31-7 the week before. Strandell was the Trojans' leading ball carrier with 79 yards on 18 carries and he was 7-for-23 in the air — the most passes he's attempted this fall.

Volleyball Teams Ending Schedules

Grygla closed out its 1983 regular season high school volleyball schedule Monday with a loss as visiting Kennedy triumphed 19-17, 18-10.

That left the Eagles 9-7 for the year. They finished their North Border Conference schedule 9-3 and in third place behind winner Marshall County Central and runner-up Lake of the Woods.

"Overall, I'm pretty happy with that," said Grygla coach Kurt Vandermeer.

District 32 tournament play opens Tuesday at two sites, with the semifinals and finals scheduled Thursday and Saturday at sites to be determined.

MCC-Warren

A five-match Marshall County Central winning streak ended Monday at Warren when the Ponies beat the Nordics 18-14, 14-8.

"It wasn't a good performance," admitted Marshall County Central coach Julie Tunheim, whose team is 11-3 in dual meet competition going into a regular season-ending home match Thursday against Hallock. "We just couldn't get the good set-ups. We should have won the first game, but we just played poorly in the second game."

Marshall County Central had 13-9 and 14-12 leads in the opener but let it slip away.

Plummer—Fisher

Plummer improved its record to 9-4 Tuesday with a down-to-the-wire 18-15, 7-18, 18-14 victory at Fisher.

"An excellent volleyball match," reported Plummer coach Dean Miller. "We had some real good team play."

Junior Jody Pahlen and senior Sandy Duden were cited for strong play for the Cardinals, who will finish their 1983 regular season schedule Thursday with a Parent's Night match against Oslo in the Pershing high school gym. District 31 tournament play get underway the following week.

Goodridge—Sacred Heart

Goodridge defeated visiting East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 18-7, 18-6 Tuesday as the Huskies posted back-to-back wins for the first time this fall. They beat Oslo 18-10, 18-9 their last time out.

"It was a good game on our part," pointed out Goodridge coach Patti Johnson. "That's the best we've looked all year."

Juniors Melissa Iverson and Cheri Nelson were the Huskies' leading scorers with 13 and 11 points, respectively, while sophomore Kim Sjulestad was credited with a strong setting game.

Goodridge, 4-10, will end its regular season schedule Thursday at home against Gonvick-Trail.

Women's Volleyball

Because of Halloween, there will be no Monday League play next week in the Thief River Falls women's city league volleyball program.

Otters Defeat Prowlers 90-82

Lincoln high school girls swimming team closed out its 1983 regular season dual meet schedule Tuesday at Fergus Falls, with the Otters beating the visiting Prowlers 90-82.

Thief River Falls finished with a 6-2 dual meet record. The Prowlers will wait until Friday and Saturday, Nov. 11-12, to compete in the 1983 Section 3 swimming and diving competition at Bemidji State University.

"It was really a great meet," reported Thief River Falls assistant coach Jody Dallmann after the Fergus Falls outing. "We had some girls that swam some excellent times, and we were down (missing) three girls that would have made a difference."

Thief River Falls trailed the favored Otters just 73-69 with two events left, but Fergus Falls' Kersti Nelson and Christine Boyer went 1-2 in the next-to-the-last race, the 100-yard breaststroke, to clinch the win for the host team.

State Tennis Tournament Is Set This Week

Remember Mary Prebil, the St. Cloud Cathedral High player who won the singles tennis championship the first year the state tournament was held? Or maybe you recall the following years when Peggy Chutick of Anoka and Kathy Rondano of Hopkins Lindbergh won top honors.

That was before 1978, before two-class competition, and before Edina teams dominated the team scene.

But it doesn't seem that long ago when girls stroked tennis balls in the indoor comfort of the Rein Tennis Clubs in St. Paul a decade ago when the first Minnesota State High School League-sponsored state tournament was conducted.

The tournament celebrates its tenth anniversary this week when the event is held once again at the Como, Phalen and Lilydale clubs in St. Paul Wednesday through Saturday.

Team competition will be contested first in 1983 with action scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday. Singles and doubles play will take place on Friday and Saturday.

Following Wednesday's quarterfinals matches, winning teams will advance to Thursday's semifinal and championship matches. As has been the case since 1978, class competition — AA and A — will be conducted. Championship match in Class A on Thursday will begin at 1 p.m. with the Class AA title match scheduled for 3. Both matches will take place at the Lilydale Tennis Club (Highway 13 and Lexington Freeway).

In Class "AA" the Wednesday first round pairings for team play are as follows:

Upper Bracket — Region 8AA — St. Cloud Tech vs. Region 2AA — Willmar at 1 p.m. at Como, and Region 3AA — Alexander Ramsey vs. Region 7AA — Duluth East at 1 p.m. at Lilydale.

Lower Bracket — Region 1AA — Burnsville vs. Region 5AA — Osseo at 3 p.m. at Lilydale and Region 6AA — Edina vs. Region 4AA — Anoka at 3 p.m. at Phalen.

Semifinals are scheduled for 8:30 and 10:30 a.m., respectively, at Lilydale, Thursday.

Edina is the five-time defending state champion. In addition to Edina, schools returning from last year's field include Willmar, Alexander Ramsey and Duluth East.

In Class A the Wednesday first round team pairings look like this:

Upper Bracket — Region 8A — Mahnomen vs. Region 4A — St. Paul Academy at 3 p.m. at Como, and Region 3A — Madison vs. Region 1A — Rochester Lourdes at 5 p.m. at Como.

Lower Bracket — Region 5A — Blake vs. Region 7A — Pine City at 1 p.m. at Phalen, and Region 2A — Blue Earth vs. Region 6A — Staples at 5 p.m. at Lilydale.

Upper bracket winners will play at Como at 8:30 a.m. in semifinals action on Thursday and the lower bracket victors will meet at 8:30 a.m. that day at Phalen.

Blue Devils Finish First Season With 8-1 Record

Grygla-Goodridge built a 28-6 lead, then called on its defense to preserve a season-ending 28-22 North Tri-County Conference high school football win over Gonvick-Trail Tuesday afternoon at Grygla.

Having cut the deficit to 28-22, Gonvick-Trail twice had excellent fourth quarter scoring chances turned away by the Grygla-Goodridge defense. A Tony Wiseth fumble recovery stopped the Bulldogs after a first-and-10 opportunity at the Blue Devils' 11-yard line, and with three minutes left in the game a third down quarterback sack by Tim Wayne cost the Bulldogs 15 yards after they had been sitting with a first-and-goal at the Grygla-Goodridge 6-yard line.

"Our defense rose to the occasion when we had to," confirmed Grygla-Goodridge coach Rick Nelson, who praised the defensive play of Wayne Byklum, who blocked a punt forced a fumble and came up with a game-saving interception after Wayne's sack; Tony Wiseth, who recovered two fumbles; plus defensive ends Bill Neuschwander and Wayne. Two fumbles and a poor punt set up the visitor's three touchdowns.

Offensively the star was Doug Schulz, who carried the ball 29 times for 211 yards to go over the prestigious 1,000-yard mark for the season at 1,092. His yardage represented the bulk of the Blue Devils' offense as they finished with 283 yards rushing and just three yards passing on a 1-for-5 day in the air. Rodney Haugen was the principal blocker opening up holes for Schulz, pointed out Nelson.

Grygla-Goodridge finished with an enviable 8-1 record in the first year of the cooperative football program for the two schools. The Blue Devils ended with a seven-game winning streak after dropping a close 14-8 decision to Plummer back on Sept. 9. The Cardinals went on to an unbeaten campaign, forcing the Blue Devils to settle for second place in the North Tri-County Conference.

Marshall County Central Out-Scores Tigers 32-30

Marshall County Central completed its 1983 high school football season on a positive note Tuesday night with a come-from-behind 32-30 victory over Top of the State Conference runner-up finisher Stephen at Newfolden.

It was a big night for Kevin Boe, a 5-11, 140-pound junior who rushed for 146 yards, scored three touchdowns, caught 10 passes for 112 yards, added 69 yards on kick returns for 327 yards worth of total offense, then came up with 14 tackles, five of them unassisted, and an interception on defense.

Marshall County Central had lost a roughly-played 26-12 decision at Stephen earlier this year. Last night's results left the Nordics at 4-5 for the year.

"It was a good win for us," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Sam Gebhart. "It leaves us with a good taste. It's always nice to end with a big win. This was a good one for the kids, for the seniors especially. It's a good group of kids."

Stephen led the high-scoring affair 30-18 until Marshall County Central struck for two touchdowns within a two-minute span late in the fourth quarter.

A pass interception by Boe set up his own 4-yard run with about 2½ minutes left, and Randy Dahl caught the two-point conversion pass from Danni Halvorson to pull Marshall County Central within 30-26.

Bret Hanson then hauled in a 7-yard game-winning touchdown pass from Halvorson with just 25 seconds left to complete the rally.

Marshall County Central finished with 341 yards worth of offense, 202 on the ground and 139 in the air on a 14-for-22 passing performance by Halvorson, a 5-11, 155-pound freshmen.

Defensively, nose guard Ross Olson was the Nordics' leader with 21 tackles, 10 of them unassisted. Middle linebacker Ken Krohn was in on 20 tackles; Daren Stokke 15; and Boe 14. Hanson had a hand in six tackles while coming up with two fumbles and an interception, while Halvorson had eight tackles and two fumble recoveries and Brent Manger had seven tackles.

DNR NEWS

TIP Arrests

Violations of Minnesota's deer hunting and fishing regulations led to 15 of the 17 arrests recorded during September under the Turn In Poachers program administered by the Department of Natural Resources.

Under the TIP program a person who provides information to the DNR's Enforcement Division that results in the arrest of the suspected violator of state game and fish laws is entitled to a cash reward and is guaranteed anonymity.

Two special phone numbers have been established to report violations: a toll-free number 1-800-652-9093; Twin City area residents should call 297-3999.

Enforcement officials report that many persons refuse the offer of a reward. During September rewards were paid out to four individuals for a total of $450.

Funds to finance the reward part of the TIP program are provided through TIP Inc., a private non-profit citizens group which relies on contributions.

So far this year the TIP program has produced 137 arrests and has paid out rewards totalling $9,425.

Oklee Football Season Ends 2-6

A frustrating Oklee football season ended just that way Tuesday when the Bobcats failed to capitalize on a scoring opportunity in the final seconds and lost a tough 22-14 North Tri-County Conference decision at Erskine-Mentor.

Oklee finished the 1983 season with a 2-6 record, but over the final month of play four of the five losses were by a single touchdown margin or less.

"It's too bad our record doesn't show our efforts," said Oklee coach Dale Svaren. "Give us four touchdowns and we'd have a helluva year."

Yesterday afternoon Oklee, after recovering an Erskine-Mentor fumble, reached the Cougars' 12-yard line and had a first down with 85 seconds left in the game. But of four pass attempts, one was knocked down and three were incomplete in the end zone before the Bobcats surrendered the ball with just four seconds to play.

"We played 'em tough. . . again," offered Svaren.

Quarterback Kevin Enerson was 10-for-37 passing for the Bobcats for 144 yards and two touchdowns. But he was also intercepted four times. Oklee finished with 99 yards rushing, 44 of them coming from Duane Baker on nine carries.

Defensively, Baker and Darrin Tougas were once again the leading tacklers, mentioned Svaren.

THE FISH ARE BITIN' in the Red Lake river in the Thief River Falls area, as evidenced by this limit of walleyes caught by Christ Ley in less than an hour of casting from shore Tuesday evening. The largest of the six fish weighed six pounds eight ounces and the next largest was five pounds and two ounces. Ley said he caught the fish in the river "below the powerplant dam" but didn't reveal an exact location. He said fall fishing has been good throughout the season.

REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

Another mini-session has come and gone — and members of the House of Representatives have gathered a wealth of information on Minnesota issues. We met for our full committee schedule last week in St. Paul, and once again I realized how many facts we need to know about an issue before even beginning to draft legislation. As your legislator, I believe this time between regular sessions is extremely valuable. Members have so much more time to spend cutting to the very core of many of the problems the state faces, and seeking potential solutions to them.

I would like to give you just a brief overview of some of the committee business from last week. Although I do not serve on all of these committees, I think it is important for all of us to keep on top of the issues as they move through the committee system. Of course, we have to rely on staff for a lot of the information from committees on which we don't serve, but I also try to attend some of the meetings when the issues are important to our district and the state — even if it is not one of my committee assignments.

It's obvious that the subject of taxes is as important to the Legislature as it is to the general public. The House tax committee is continuing its broad review of the tax structure in Minnesota. Information is being gathered from a number of sources, including tax studies done in Minnesota and other states which show the impact of tax structure on individuals and business and point out the way in which tax law changes quite often shift tax burdens from one segment of the population to another — a factor which must be very carefully weighed when decisions are made on tax legislation.

This factor came under discussion at a meeting of the property tax system subcommittee which concentrated on presentations by the revenue department about farmland valuation for property tax purposes. The subcommittee is currently trying to determine the most equitable method for valuing farm property.

Because of rapidly escalating farm values until a couple of years ago, the legislature had previously decided that market value might not be the best method for assessing farm property taxes and had passed a law initiating the use of rental value in some cases. However, when revenue department personnel started to implement that system they found that it could lead to some rather substantial shifts of tax burdens between counties and between farms and small rural cities.

The department also discovered that it is difficult to get reliable rental data since many rental agreements between farmers involve crop share and other arrangements.

Consequently, the rent cap system was delayed by the 1983 legislature to allow time for further study, particularly the feasibility of basing assessments on the production value of land or some other equitable system.

The property tax policy and administration subcommittee held a hearing on the status of current tax policy on railroads and the corporate tax review subcommittee began a review of corporate tax studies undertaken by other states.

TEMPTATION comes in many forms. For some it might be the huge flocks of ducks which are presently feeding in the area. Federal refuge personnel and state conservation officers have been working overtime in an attempt to protect the birds from unethical hunters who would take more than their fair share. This confiscated collection of 32 mallards and two pintails cost one group of seven area hunters a total of $760 in fines. Equipment used by violators may also be confiscated. With the birds feeding over such a large area, officers cannot possibly cover it all, and ask that citizens assist them by watching for game law violators. Officers can be locally dispatched by radio, 24 hours per day, by calling 681-3741. In addition, Operation TIP (Turn In Poachers) offers cash rewards for information leading to arrest. Callers using the toll-free number, 1-800-652-9093, may remain anonymous and will be assigned a code number allowing them to pick up their reward.

FISH FACTS

Catfish Cooking

Catfish can be used in any recipe calling for firm-texture, non-oily white fish. There are no special steps required when cooking, just rinse the uncooked catfish in cool water and pat dry.

Timing is a key factor in catfish cookery. Fish does not need extended heating time to tenderize, like meat often requires. A good rule of thumb is 10 minutes cooking for each one inch thickness of catfish measured at the thickest portion. Do not overcook! Overcooking will cause the catfish to be dry and tough. To cook catfish for salads or snacking, simmer in a small amount of water, covered for 7 minutes. Catfish is done when the fish loses its translucent look and flakes easily.

Now try cooking the following stir-fry catfish recipe developed in the Test Kitchens of Country Skillet.

Catfish Oriental

1 1/2 pounds Country Skillet Catfish fingers, halved crosswise
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon peanut or vegetable oil
2 bunches green onions, sliced into 2-inch pieces (about 2 cups)
1 teaspoon ground ginger or 1 tablespoon shredded ginger root
1 1/2 teaspoons minced garlic
1/2 cup cider vinegar
3 tablespoons soy sauce
2 1/2 tablespoons sugar
3/4 cup chicked broth
Fried Chinese noodles or hot cooked rice (optional)

In shallow bowl, toss together catfish and cornstarch; set aside.

In wok or large skillet, heat oil over medium-high heat. Stir-fry onion, ginger and garlic 1 minute. Stir in vinegar, soy sauce and sugar. Heat to boiling, add catfish. Gradually add chicken broth and cook 7 minutes or until fish is flaky, stirring constantly.

Serve with Chinese noodles or rice, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

Farmers Union To Meet Thurs.

Insulation To Be Studied At AVTI Workshop

Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute (AVTI) will offer a three-hour overview of the how, why and what of super-insulation on Tuesday, November 8 from 7 to 10 p.m. at the AVTI, room A109. Tuition is $7.50 per person. Workshop will be presented by Bob Knutson and John Stewart, AVTI carpentry and architectural drafting instructors.

Topics to be covered are design, construction, costs and future potential of super-insulation. Workshop is designed for contractors, carpenters, building supply personnel, real estate people, money lenders, and consumers. Super-insulation manuals can be purchased for approximately $12.

Pre-registration is required by November 1 by contacting adult education, Thief River Falls AVTI, Highway One East, Thief River Falls, MN 56701; 681-5424.

Fall Yard And Garden Tips To Be Given

Presentation on fall horticulture practices around the yard and garden will be held Friday at 1:30 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room. Topics for discussion will be how to handle flowering bulbs and winter protection for trees, shrubs and flowers. Colored slides and product samples will be used to demonstrate recommended cultural practices.

Garden club members and others interested in home beautification are encouraged to attend.

Support Given To Chemical People Project

State Representative Wally Sparby of District 1B reminds constituents that the public television program, "The Chemical People-Minnesota" will be shown November 1, 2 and 3 beginning at 7 p.m.

The broadcast will report the survey results of 11,000 Minnesota eighth, 10th and 12th graders' attitudes and habits regarding drug and alcohol use.

The thrust of the show will be abuse and prevention and how one Minnesota community, Hutchinson, has dealt with these problems.

"Watching this public television production would be a good investment of time for anyone concerned about the extensive drug and alcohol abuse problems that individuals, families and communities face today," Sparby said.

Area residents should check their local papers for their public television listings.

Toastmasters Host Area 3 Speech Contest

Twyla Treanor of Crookston won the Area 3 Toastmasters humorous speech contest conducted last week in Thief River Falls and will advance to the district contest in Fergus Falls November 5. Her speech topic was "Battle of the Bulge".

Other contestants and their topics were Ron Martin, Thief River Falls, "Three Blind Mice"; Marion Patton, Bemidji noon club, "The Tate Family Reunion"; and Don Augen, Bemidji evening club, "Energy Efficiency".

Jim Goldesberry of Thief River Falls, Area 3 governor, welcomed the group and introduced guests at the contest hosted by Arnt Aune, president of Northwest Toastmasters of Thief River Falls. Remarks were given by Greg Pribula of Thief River Falls, administrative lieutenant governor, and Evan Haas, District 20 governor.

Carletta Tierney presented the judges' report and Governor Haas presented the awards.

LOWER THE ENERGY COST OF YOUR LAUNDRY.

True or false—the hotter your wash water, the cleaner your clothes. FALSE. Until recently, hot water was needed so soap would dissolve and clean. But today's new detergents work in cool and cold water.* This cuts energy costs and reduces fabric wear. REALTORS® believe saving energy is vital. As members of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS® they are committed to cutting energy consumption in both their businesses and homes. About the House

It's Clean-Up Time Again

Although no time seems like the right time to clean out and reorganize the garage — when it's time to stack the lawn furniture and roll the barbecue in out of the weather — some late fall weekend may be your best bet.

Lots of shelves, large hooks and nails are the keys to a well-organized garage. Extension cords, coveralls and the garden hose hang from hooks while garden tools hang nicely suspended between large nails. A number of shelves is vital and can quadruple your storage space.

The first step is to weed out those objects you no longer need or use. The Goodwill or Salvation Army will be happy to have your contribution of junk. This "junk," by the way, is deductible on your taxes.

Anything that won't fit on a shelf, hook or nail, put outside while you sweep the floor.

Next, clean and organize the useful items that remain. An all-purpose cleaner such as Formula 409 should work on everything from the freezer to the potting table.

Use the all-purpose cleaner to clean your garden tools, lawn mower, weed cutter, workbench, camping equipment, and recreational items. Saw and mower blades should be wiped lightly with oil after cleaning to prevent rust. Then, find an easily accessible home for everything somewhere in the garage.

Now, take a look around the garage. You'll want to put the lawn furniture away for the winter but when you go to use it next spring, the last thing you'll want to do is clean or repair it. Do it now.

Hose everything down to remove the dust and soft dirt. If there's still some dirt on the frame or vinyl, wipe down with detergent and water. Replace any damaged webbing, fold (if possible) and cover the furniture with a sheet.

Cushions and the table umbrella can be stored on shelves and folding chairs hung from nails. The rest should be stacked out of the way in the back of the garage.

Clean your barbecue equipment by dumping all ashes and unburned charcoal, spray liberally with all-purpose cleaner and wipe clean.

For stubborn burnt-on grease and food, use oven cleaner, following the product's instructions. Wipe lightly with an edible oil but be sure to wipe off the excess.

When everything is clean and dry, reassemble and cover with the lid or a sheet. Hibachis and table top grills can be stored on shelves. Models with legs are best stored out of the way, perhaps next to the lawn furniture. Leftover briquets must be tightly sealed to prevent moisture from making them hard to light next season.

Remember, it's easy to find the best place for something you use, it's the things you don't use that create clutter. Garage sales are popular and can serve the double function of raising money and abolishing clutter. And, if you keep what you use clean, you'll use it longer.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q — I am currently rated 40 per cent service-connected for my disability by the Veterans Administration, and I recently got married. Can I get additional money by claiming my wife as my dependent?

A — Veterans who are rated 30 per cent or more do receive additional funds for dependents. Contact your nearest VA regional office for details.

Q — What is the maximum amount I can pay for a home using a Veterans Administration guaranteed home loan?

A — The VA guarantees loans obtained by the veteran from private lenders. There is no established maximum purchase price for a home. However, no loan guaranteed by the VA may exceed the reasonable property value as determined by a VA appraiser.

Q — I am separated from my wife and am going to school under the GI Bill. Can she get part of my Veterans Administration education allowance without my approval?

A — If your wife can prove you are not adequately providing for your family, she can receive the portion of your allowance paid you for your dependents. You will then receive the rate of a single veteran.

Q — I lost my leg in service and am receiving Veterans Administration compensation for it. Because of complications, I will now lose my other leg. Can I receive additional compensation for this new loss?

A — Yes. A law enacted in 1978 provides for an added monthly benefit for veterans who have suffered the loss, or loss of use, of one extremity due to service-connected causes, and have then experienced loss, or loss of use, of the paired extremity from non-service-connected causes.

Q — Is there a minimum amount of time a person must serve in the military to qualify for Veterans Administration benefits?

A — Generally, yes. Persons who enlisted the first time on or after September 8, 1980, must complete at least two years of continuous active duty or the full period for which the person was called to active duty, to qualify for VA benefits. For officers, the two-year requirement applies on or after October 17, 1981. For veterans who enlisted prior to September 8, 1980, the time limit usually depends on the benefit. Exceptions are made for veterans discharged because of a service-connected disability.

Q — What is the interest rate on loans made on National Service Life Insurance policies?

A — Since July 29, 1981, loans granted on National Service Life Insurance policies have been made at the annual interest rate of 11 per cent.

Q — How much may a veteran borrow on his National Service Life Insurance?

A — Policyholders may borrow up to 94 per cent of the cash surrender value of their permanent plan of insurance.

Q — My only income is from a Veterans Administration pension and we have had a rash of thefts lately. Is there some way I can protect myself against the loss of my check?

A — Yes. VA compensation checks may be deposited directly to your savings or checking account. Go to your bank and fill out a Standard Form 1199a.

Q — May I use my GI Bill eligibility to attend school in a foreign country?

A — Foreign training under the GI Bill is available only in degree programs in approved colleges and universities. Local Veterans Administration regional offices have a list of approved schools.

Q: I purchased a home using a Veterans Administration-guaranteed loan when the interest rate was 15 per cent. Now that the interest rate has dropped, may I refinance with a lower rate?

A: Yes, you may take out a new loan in the amount of your existing loan, plus closing costs, to take advantage of the lower rates.

Q: I wear a brace because of my service-connected disability. I recently heard of a clothing allowance from the Veterans Administration. What is this program?

A: Veterans who must wear prosthetic appliances or who are confined to a wheelchair, because of a service-connected disability, may receive an annual payment to help defray the expense of worn clothing. Contact your nearest Veterans Administration regional office for complete information.

Q: I have a paid up National Service Life Insurance policy. Can I borrow on it?

A: Yes, you may borrow up to 94 per cent of the cash value of a permanent plan policy.

Q: I would like to have a Presidential Memorial Certificate in honor of my deceased father who was honorably discharged from the Air Force. How do I get one?

A: You may apply for this certificate at your nearest Veterans Administration regional office.

SMOKE TESTING for problems in city sewer lines began yesterday on Robin Hood Drive, in an attempt to identify areas where excess runoff enters the city's wastewater system during heavy rains. Alderman Milan Borsheim observed as wastewater department employee Mitch Hams lit a smoke bomb placed in a bucket, so that the smoke could be directed into the air intake of a portable compressor. Within seconds after the smoke was pumped into a blocked off section of sewer line, it began to appear at the sewer ventilation pipes on the roofs of nearby houses. In a very few cases, it also appeared inside the houses, indicating faulty plumbing connections which were allowing potentially hazardous sewer gases to escape into the homes. No major problems were detected, however. Testing will continue as long as weather conditions permit.

Applications For Energy Aid Taken Nov. 1

Urban Concerns workshops will again conduct Project 120 during the 1984 legislative session, according to Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls, who urges interested high school juniors and seniors to apply for "this opportunity to learn more about their state government."

"Project 120 is an educational program which brings students to the State Capitol for a one-week 'crash course' on state government and politics," Sparby said. "Students have the opportunity to see for themselves the inner workings of the legislative process and to meet the people who make the decisions that affect their lives.

"The selected students will observe legislative sessions in the House and the Senate, sit in on committee hearings and Supreme Court sessions, meet with elected officials and political leaders of both parties, hear from lobbyists, reporters and legislative staff members, and visit state departments and resource centers," he explained.

This year, the Project 120 program will select 300 students to participate in the 10 one-week sessions which will run concurrently with the 1984 legislative session. Urban Concerns, a nonpartisan political education organization, will conduct the program which is partially funded by a grant from the State of Minnesota through the Minnesota government learning center. The cost of $100 covers meals, lodging, special events and transportation while on the program and scholarships are available.

"The deadline for applications is November 22," Sparby said. "The legislative session is scheduled to begin in March and to end in six weeks."

For more information about Project 120, contact high school social studies teachers or Urban Concerns Workshops at 1821 University Avenue, Suite 222, St. Paul, MN 55103 or call (612) 645-0653.

"I can't emphasize strongly enough the merits of this annual program," Sparby added. "Any junior or senior who has ever experienced the slightest curiosity about the workings of self-government would do well to apply."

Five Ambulance Crewmen Pass EMT Testing

Five members of the Northwestern hospital ambulance service have recently passed the National Registry emergency medical technician - paramedics examination. The examination followed 700 hours of intense training in cardiovascular and medical emergencies, according to Roy Daniels, ambulance supervisor.

Following approval by the Minnesota department of health, the ambulance crew will be able to treat potential life threatening medical emergencies with intravenous therapy, emergency drugs and cardiac monitoring and defibrillation. There currently is only one other paramedic level service in northwestern Minnesota except those provided from Grand Forks, ND. Fertile also has paramedic service.

Hospital officials have indicated that they will be selling the ambulance service to private parties if the county does not agree to provide a $56,000 annual subsidy to cover part of the operating losses of the service. County officials have responded by voting to fund an annual subsidy of $25,000.

Completing the course which began in August of 1982 and has been conducted on days and evenings throughout the past year were Roy Daniels, who has been with the local ambulance service nine years; Larry Golightly, six years; Greg Scott, three years; Kevin Orr and Jesse Beaucage, about one and one-half years each.

'U'M Regents Hear Plan On Student Work

A plan that would lower student-worker pay rates at the University of Minnesota's four coordinate campuses and free up more dollars for more jobs — up to 300 on the Duluth campus — needs more work before it's ready for action by the board of regents, probably next spring.

Committee of regents heard a preliminary plan for a new student-worker classification during its monthly board meeting held in Waseca, recently. Regents and student representatives raised questions about the mechanics of the plan, which would have lowered entry-level pay rates from $5.35 to $4.10 at the university's Duluth, Crookston, Morris and Waseca campuses. Twin Cities campus was not part of the preliminary plan, but the possibility of its inclusion will be examined before a proposal goes to the regents, according to Frank Wilderson, vice president for student affairs. Wilderson said he would like to see the plan take effect July 1 and be experimental for one year.

Support for the concept of lowering pay rates to free more student financial aid money came from students and administrators from Duluth, Crookston and Waseca. "Nine out of 10 students who want jobs at Crookston can't get them, because the money isn't there," Provost Stanley Sahlstrom told the committee. Duluth Provost Robert Heller estimated that 250 to 300 more students would be able to earn work-study dollars at the lower rate.

But the plan apparently is not popular at Morris, where a higher percentage of work-study money, which is made up of state and federal funds, is available. "Morris has a high number of needy students according to the federal government's standards, so we get more federal funds for work-study," said John Imholte, provost at Morris.

Difference in campuses led to the suggestion that any pay plan be implemented campus by campus, not across the board.

Duane Johnson, a Crookston student representative to the committee, told the regents he wants the final plan to include assurance that the coordinate campuses will not lose any of their allotments of financial aid money. Tom Anderson, a student from Duluth, agreed. "It would be kind of like cutting our own throats if we support this and end up with the same number of jobs at lower rates," he said.

Board also heard that enrollment at the five-campus system has fallen almost two per cent from last fall, to 57,831 students.

"While enrollments are slightly down, they are well within the enrollment projections we budgeted for," President C. Peter Magrath said. "It is clear that we continue to be extraordinarily attractive to students."

One campus, Morris, reported a gain — 1.2 per cent — in enrollment. But all other campuses reported losses. The Twin Cities campus was down almost 2 per cent to 46,445. Duluth's enrollment is down 2.6 per cent to 7,530; Crookston is down 0.5 per cent to 1,143; Waseca is down 0.2 per cent to 1,110.

"I don't think it's a matter of our losing students to other systems and institutions," said Regent David Lebedoff. "It's a question of there being fewer students. Demographics aren't so clear, but there will be no denying them in the long run and the long run is about five years. Try hiring a babysitter; there aren't that may 12 year olds." Lebedoff said the declines point out the need for planning throughout the state for "the coming crisis."

"Although students are a very large and very important part of what we do, we need to remind the public that we have a whole range of activities that are not tied to enrollment, such as the agricultural experiment station, research, outreach and the many other services the university provides," Magrath said.

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS

Financing Tool For Business

Is a small- or mid-sized company destined to go out of business when banks turn down requests for loans? Hardly! In thousands of cases, the asset-based financial services industry has helped undercapitalized companies overcome corporate growing pains and propel them on the road to success.

Asset-based lenders make secured loans. The loans are backed by the borrower's assets—accounts receivable, inventory, machinery, plant or real estate. The amount of credit depends on the value of collateral.

The differences between unsecured bank loans and secured loans are striking. Banks base loans on balance sheet figures and financial ratios. The asset-based lender looks to two main points: adequate collateral and the borrowing company's ability to show that it can turn a profit from infusions of working capital funds. Given these two prerequisites, the secured lender will extend loans that may exceed the borrower's net worth several times over.

Borrowers may use asset-based loans to increase sales volume, take advantage of supplier discounts, pay debts, make timely purchases, boost credit ratings, pay taxes, meet payrolls, modernize plants or for a host of other uses. And importantly, loans are available to virtually every type of business. Funds are advanced to companies with annual sales of as little as $250,000 or less up to giants with volume in excess of $100 million.

Interest on asset-based loans generally runs somewhat higher than unsecured bank rates. However, the cost-of-funds gap narrows appreciably and often approaches parity since interest is charged only on the funds in use. Unlike banks, which often require borrowers to keep 15% or 20% of the loan on deposit, asset lenders require no compensating balances.

Religion and the Family

You'll find in the Sixty-eighth Psalm a remarkable statement: He setteth the solitary in families. The Bible is saying that the family as a social institution was designed by God.

Obviously for a purpose: His purpose! The family has long been the center for sharing and strengthening religious insights and convictions. The effectiveness of the Church in teaching and inspiring souls is generally dependent on the support and encouragement of the home.

But the ancient text says something more! It says God is concerned about those who are alone! He wants them to discover that we are all part of HIS FAMILY. The Church can be instrumental in helping the lonely find life rich in warmth and caring.

Whether next Sabbath you'll be with the family—or alone—God is expecting you!

Plan Where To Live During Retirement

Where are you going to live when you retire? Will you stay where you are now, sell your home and move to more economical housing in the same locality, or move out of the area? Choice you make will affect all aspects of your retirement, so consider each carefully, says the Minnesota society of certified public accountants (CPAs).

Look at home ownership in a different light, because your housing needs in retirement will change. You house may be too big for you and your spouse. An older home usually costs more to maintain, and property taxes, utilities and insurance coverage grow more costly. Can you afford your present home if you are on a fixed income?

In addition, the tax advantages of paying interest costs on a mortgage or for property taxes may disappear when you retire, CPAs say. That's because married couples over 65 need at least $7,400 in deductions to benefit from itemizing.

While a home is a sound investment, expecially with the mortgage paid, your money is tied up in the property and not available to you until you find a buyer. If you need more income during retirement, it may make sense to sell the house and invest the profits. (When you are over 55, up to $125,000 of profit is exempt from capital gains tax.)

One way to reduce the costs of staying in your present home is to "share" it. Rental income can help you meet rising real estate taxes and maintenance costs. If you're undecided about selling your home, think about renting it out for awhile and moving somewhere else. Any mortgage interest, property taxes, utilities and maintenance costs you pay while the house is rented are deductible on your federal income tax return. Check with your tax advisor before doing this, to ensure that you'll still be able to take advantage of the capital gain exclusion, should you later decide to sell.

If you sell your home, you can move into a smaller residence or you can rent an apartment. Renting eliminates worries about upkeep, and is generally less expensive than home ownership, but you can't control your costs. When rents increase, you have little choice but to pay, unless you're willing to move again. If the building converts to a co-op or condominium, will you have to buy in order to stay there?

Many people dream of moving away to a new environment when they retire. Before making this big decision, use this checklist, whether you're moving across the country or across the state.

— Do you want to live amidst city bustle or rural calm? If you want to parcel of land for growing vegetables, you may have to live a distance from museums or other cultural centers.

— How many other retirees are living there? You'll make friends with your peers, but you may also want to live near people of other age groups.

— What type of climate do you prefer? Find out the temperature ranges and the amount of rainfall (and snowfall) for each season. Visit the area you're interested in at various times of the year.

According to the 1980 census, the over-65 population of seven states grew by more than 50 per cent since 1970. The states are Nevada, Arizona, Hawaii, Florida, Alaska, New Mexico and South Carolina. Meantime a full 45 per cent of people over 65 live in just seven states: California, Florida, Illinois, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Texas.

— What type of housing is available and what does it cost? What is the local property tax rate? In some locations, senior citizens' property is taxed at a lower rate. How much would it cost to rent a house or an apartment? If you've always wanted to build your own home, find out about the cost of land and building materials and what contractors charge.

— What is the cost of living for the area you're considering? Prices for food, clothing, transportation, housing, utilities, medical and entertainment vary from one region of the country to another. Don't forget to check the sales and income taxes. Contact the local chamber of commerce for recent figures, and inquire how rapidly the cost of living is going up. Find out if you can pay less for some things as a senior citizen, such as lower bus fares or movie tickets.

Do You Have A "Hidden" Disease?

High blood pressure (hypertension), which afflicts some 35,000,000 Americans, can affect anyone—regardless of age, sex, race or physical condition. If you do have it, the disease can be easily treated before it leads to serious complications. It's one of the easiest conditions for your doctor to diagnose and treat.

Of great concern, however, is that you can have hypertension and not know it. Very often—particularly in its early stages—hypertension has no symptoms. Two out of every six Americans have hypertension and don't know it. That's why it's referred to as a "hidden" disease. If left untreated, it can lead to hardening of the arteries, heart attacks, strokes or kidney damage.

How do you know if you are likely to get hypertension, or if, perhaps, you already have it? According to Pfizer Pharmaceuticals, here are some factors to consider. Hypertension can occur at almost any age, but is more likely to occur after the age of 40. The risks also increase if you have a family history of hypertension, are overweight, smoke, use too much salt, are under stress and anxiety, and do not have a program for exercise, rest and relaxation.

Half of Americans aged 65 or over have high blood pressure. Under 50, it's more common in men than women; but after 55 or 60, it's the other way around. More men than women die from complications of hypertension.

Make it a point to have your blood pressure checked regularly by a doctor. It may be that diet and/or lifestyle modifications are all that are necessary. Hypertension can be controlled but will require accurate diagnosis and treatment by a doctor.

Remember, even a little high blood pressure requires your immediate attention. It's up to you to take control.

Loan Brokers Can Be Help If Legitimate

In these times of double-digit mortgage interest rates and decreased availability of financing through banks and other traditional lending institutions, many consumers have turned to less conventional sources in an effort to obtain mortgage loans. One such source is the "loan broker," sometimes known as a "mortgage broker," according to the Minnesota attorney general's office.

Loan brokers are independent agents in the business of locating financing for credit-worthy borrowers for a commission or fee. The loan broker's function is to present a consumer's lending needs to a variety of financing sources in an effort to obtain a loan on acceptable terms. Typically, the loan broker will collect a commission for that service in the form of a percentage of the loan obtained. However, some brokers also require the payment of an advance fee, all or a part of which will serve as a credit against the commission if a loan is placed.

Unfortunately, although tight money may have increased the demand for the services of loan brokers, it has brought with it an increase in the unscrupulous operator as well. For example, postal authorities in Nebraska recently obtained several indictments against a major national loan broker which operated through nine regional offices, including one in Bloomington, Minnesota. The broker, American Midlands, Incorporated, induced over 1,687 potential borrowers to pay the company over $3,700,000 in advance fees which were to be partially refunded if no loans were obtained. Many hopeful borrowers paid advance fees of $2,500 and more for the company's services. Although the company failed to obtain loans, except in a handful of cases, the advance fees were never refunded.

How can a potential borrower tell whether a loan broker is reliable? Important considerations would include how long the broker has been in business and its past success in placing loans of the type you desire; whether the broker requires the payment of an advance fee, and if so, whether you can bet all or a part of it back if the broker fails to place your loan. You should ask the broker why an advance payment is necessary, since many brokers operate solely upon a commission, payable only upon successful placement of a loan. You should also ask yourself whether you really want to pay a fee, all or a part of which you may lose, even if no acceptable loan is placed by the broker.

In addition, you should be aware of your rights under Minnesota's real estate license law. Minnesota law specifically requires persons who, for a fee or commission, negotiate or attempt to negotiate loans to be secured by a mortgage or other lien against real estate, to obtain a real estate license. You can determine whether a loan broker is properly licensed by contacting the licensing Section of the Minnesota Department of Commerce, 500 Metro Square Building, 7th Place and Robert Street, St. Paul, MN 55101, (612) 296-2594.

Under Minnesota law, a real estate licensee who negotiates real-estate loans other than as a part of his real estate sales function, must follow specific guidelines that offer added protection to his clients. For example, licensed loan brokers are required to enter into written contracts, a copy of which must be provided to their customers at or before the time any fee for services is paid. All advance fees received under such contracts must be placed in an independent escrow account until the loan is actually funded. The written contract must include, among other things, the location of the escrow account, the circumstances under which the broker may make withdrawals from the account, and the circumstances under which the advance fee will be refundable. Further details can be obtained from the state commerce department.

Customers are also entitled to receive a list of all lenders contacted by the loan broker and a monthly statement of escrow account disbursements.

If you are contacted by a loan broker who is not licensed or who does not offer his services in accordance with these guidelines, you may wish to contact the Attorney General's Commerce Division, 1100 Bremer Tower, Seventh Place at Minnesota Street, St. Paul, MN 55101, (612) 296-9412, for further information. You should also consider having your attorney review any contract for loan brokerage services before you sign it.

FACTUAL NEWS REPORTING EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

Is It Discrimination

Just what is and what isn't discrimination against a particular group or segment of the population has caused some interesting if inconclusive discussion and even some controversial legal opinions. Perhaps a good deal of the answer lies in what discimination is perceived to be and by whom that perception is made.

For instance, if the taxi cab companies in Minneapolis had applied to the city council to charge 10 per cent more for hauling senior citizens than for other passengers, would that be discimination? Most senior citizens would probably believe it is.

But the Minneapolis city council granted the cab companies permission to give a 10 per cent discount to senior citizens. Is that discrimination? Most senior citizens would probably believe it isn't.

What if the cab companies had asked to give a 10 per cent discount to passengers between the ages of 18 and 25, or to blacks, or Hispanics, or whites, or left-handers or whatever? Would that be discrimination? Most people would probably think it is.

Is it discrimination when a specific group is singled out to pay more, but not discrimination when the same group is given the privilege of paying less?

What about going a step further, like the city of Thief River Falls, where a subsidy is paid to the cab company to reduce senior citizen fares? Is that greater discrimination, the same discrimination or no discrimination at all? We're just asking the question. Does anyone have an answer?

A Little Red Faced

In the wake of what took place in the U.S. House of Representatives agriculture committee last week, we can't help but recall some comments made at state House and Senate hearings on the local disaster situation a couple of weeks ago.

We won't re-name the speakers because that isn't necessary to make our point. But one stated that he and his group had been in contact with their Congressman and Senators with the result that, "How much help did we get? Not one damn bit!"

The other was a young farmer who was justifiably concerned over his own situation but perhaps a little over-emphatic in his expectations for some help. "I really don't see anything happening for us until there is a change in the federal administration," he said.

People testifying at the hearings seemed somewhat agreed that what is needed to help the severly financially-depressed farmers hit by successive years of crop losses is an opportunity to consolidate their debts into one low-interest loan and in some cases to defer repayments for several years to give them a chance to get reestablished.

So what happened in the House Agriculture committee last week?

Congressman Arlan Stangeland (remember the congressman who didn't do " a damn thing" to help out?) introduced an amendment which would have provided for consolidation of debt into a five per cent interest loan and offered deferment of interest and principal payment for five years.

And all 15 Democrats on the committee (remember the professed need for a change in the party in control?) opposed this amendment! Every one of them!

We don't expect that either of the two people who made the comments noted above will change their viewpoints or their political preferences, but we would expect their complexions to take on a slightly scarlet hue.

And we would offer a couple of general suggestions: When you're reaching out for help, don't spit on the hand that is offered to you. And be assured that the word "HELP" for farmers isn't automatically spelled "DFL". When good people are doing all that they can to help other good people, give them credit for the effort. It is hard to get results when partisan politics takes precedence over compassion in the halls of Congress.

Respect Our Flag

The editor of the Greenbush Tribune makes a point in the following editorial which should be taken to heart by Americans of all ages in every community:

If you attended the last football game or the last volleyball game, some of the antics of young fans during the playing of our National Anthem will upset you. I personally can't understand why some people cannot refrain from laughing, pushing one another, and other general horseplay. But throwing popcorn was too much, while other youngsters stood quietly with respect for that minute and a half.

Far from those young minds is the fact that many of our fathers, sons, brothers and friends gave their lives for that very flag that we are facing. Some of us had better take another look at our behavior during the playing of our National Anthem. It's a privilege to pay tribute to our flag — let's act like it.

Wildlife Funds Threatened

According to a report from the Friends of Animals, Inc., of New York City, chairman Peter Rodino of the House Judiciary committee in Washington, has introduced a bill which would transfer the excise tax on handguns from uses to benefit wildlife to a trust fund for victims of crime.

Naturally, Friends of Animals supports the bill — not out of any concern for crime victims, but because it would severely reduce the amount of money available for programs to assist bird and animal species which people hunt and-or trap. At stake, according to the New York City group, is more than $30 million annually.

Friends of Animals is careless with the truth in its zeal to solicit support for Rodino's bill. After climing that the $30 million is part of ". . .the annual $110 million gift to hunters," the group's report states: "This tax subsidy, called the Pittman-Robertson Act, has taken from the general treasury since 1937 over $1.3 billion."

Pittman-Robertson funds are no gift to hunters, nor are they raided from the general treasury. They are derived from an excise tax on arms and ammunition which hunters originally requested and which they pay in the price of the guns and ammunition they buy. The money is used to assist state departments of natural resources with their management programs. There is no loss to the general treasury; indeed, were anywhere close to the same effort to be expended otherwise on behalf of wildlife, the general taxpaying public would have a substantial share in the burden.

Read what the Friends of Animals says in its propaganda:

"The hunting world is blanketing Congress with false information about the use of the Pittman-Robertson tax monies. In actuality, the funds are used to build hunter access roads in the wilderness, to train young people to hunt and trap, and to manipulate several million acres of public lands each year: the intentional burning and clear-cutting of forests; the flooding of lowlands; the spraying of defoliants; other ecological atrocities.

"The habitat manipulation is done to increase the population of game animals, to artifically create more live targets so the munitions makers can sell more guns and bullets to hunters. In the process, tens of thousands of animals are burned alive and the habitat of many 'non-game' species permanently destroyed."

If someone doesn't know any more about the reality of the situation than the Friends of Animals group would profess to know, the argument might seem to be valid. Unfortunately, there are many people in the country who have never experienced the outdoors tradition which we in this area so take for granted. They will swallow the claptrap tossed out by the hunting opponents and inevitably some will join in the cause.

It is impossible to hope that many of these people could be enlightened through realistic exposure to actuality. Harvesting of game is offensive to them and halting that practice is their dedicated goal.

What sportsmen must not let happen is for rule-making representatives sympathetic to the anti-hunting cause to be elected in sufficient numbers to adopt harmful legislation. And they must constantly be alert to avoid any behavior which could turn otherwise supportive people against them and their sport.

The threat to the Pittman-Robertson fund is real and important. Such a blatant raid on dedicated funds should not be permitted to be even remotely considered by the Congress. If Friends of Animals wants to advance its main emphasis of spaying cats and dogs, let it seek its own excise tax on kitty litter or poodle sweaters and leave other funds alone.

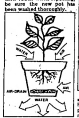
GARDEN News & Notes

POT IT PERFECT

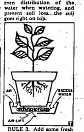
Now is the time to check all your plants to see if they need repotting. After all the growth during the summer your pots may now be too small, and the plants root bound.

So here are some simple rules to follow:

RULE 1. Plants will be happiest in pots just large enough to accommodate their roots. When repotting, be sure the new pot has been washed thoroughly.



RULE 2. Proper drainage is essential. More plants die from root rot than anything else. Either obtain some sterile pebbles from your garden center... bacteria free, or you could use the new handy foolproof Pot It Perfect System... Air Drain, from Enka. This unique product, cut to fit a variety of pot sizes, takes the mess and guesswork out of drainage. Lightweight and clean it just drops into the bottom of your pot providing perfect drainage and aeration. It will also provide even distribution of the water when watering, and prevent soil loss...the soil goes right on top.



RULE 3. Add some fresh soil to the pot and fill over halfway. Now place your plant in the pot adding the rest of the soil. Push the soil firm around the base of the plant and water.

RULE 4. Place the pot on pebbles or Enka's new Air Lift for proper drainage. Place in the proper light conditions for your plant.

For more information on Enka's Pot-It-Perfect products write to Enkamat Products, American Enka Company, Enka, N.C. 28728.

Bake Coffee Cake In A Frying Pan!

Want a quick and easy breakfast treat that saves two kinds of energy, your own and electricity? Here's one from Sunbeam that makes cleanup quick and easy, too!

The coffee cake is made from an ordinary yellow cake mix with a special topping made from the recipe below.

Cleanup is quick and easy because the interior of the frypan is DuPont SilverStone and the exterior is porcelainized in the popular new almond color or in harvest gold.

Baking the coffee cake in a frypan uses about 60% less energy than baking it in an oven . . . and it's simple to do!

Make the coffee cake from this easy recipe:

Prepare yellow packaged cake mix, according to instructions, adding 1 tablespoon grated orange rind. Preheat well-oiled frypan to 280° and bake for 35 minutes, with cover vent open for last 5 minutes.

Topping

1/2	cup brown sugar, packed	1/2	cup coarsely chopped nuts
4	tablespoons fine graham cracker crumbs	2	tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1	tablespoon grated orange rind	1 1/2	teaspoons cinnamon

Combine topping ingredients in small Mixmaster mixer bowl. Beat on low speed until blended. Nuts may be sprinkled on top.

When baked, uncover, quickly sprinkle topping evenly over cake. Cover, turn dial to "off." Let stand 10 minutes longer before cutting. This sets the topping.

Uncover, cut into squares and serve right from frypan. Cutting and serving with nonmetal utensils is recommended. Makes about 16 servings.

Senior Citizen News

Thursday, October 20 the senior citizens met for their regular weekly meeting. There were 19 registered with Duane and Louise Ellingson and Missy of Aurora as visitors. Mabel Borsvold was with us again, first time this year. Hope you can come again soon Mabel. It was nice to have Polly back with us. She has missed a few weeks due to being hospitalized in Thief River Falls.

Many of us ladies were busy fluffing up Arctic scraps. Some sofa pillows were filled and Dolly had made a dog at home, so that was stuffed and finished also. Polly had made a lovely sofa pillow at home, so that was filled and priced also.

Some good rummage was given to us by Lorraine Bengtson of Karlstad. Thanks Lorraine.

Three door prizes were given away. They went to Polly, Anna Brekke and our guest Missy.

We prayed the table grace before eating. Evelyn Kline was hostess.

FASTER WAYS WITH MICROWAVES

Johnny Appleseed, the pioneer who became a legendary figure in American history, traveled for 40 years in Ohio and Indiana during the 1800's carrying apple seeds with him wherever he went. He planted them in thinly settled areas and as a result of his dedication and foresight, apples are available in abundant types and quantities. Try these two delightful apple recipes from a Whirlpool microwave oven cookbook. One features apples baked in a lightly spiced molasses syrup. The second recipe is for Dutch Apple Cake, which cooks in only 14½ minutes and is an ideal dessert for blustery fall days.

DUTCH APPLE CAKE

Total cooking time: 14 minutes, 30 seconds

Wheat germ
1½ cups all-purpose flour
¾ teaspoon baking soda
¾ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon ground cinnamon
3 medium cooking apples
1 egg
¾ teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup cooking oil
1¼ cups granulated sugar
¾ cup finely chopped walnuts
Powered Sugar Icing (recipe below)

Grease a 9-inch microwave tube dish. Sprinkle inside of dish with wheat germ to coat. Stir together flour, baking soda, salt, and cinnamon. In mixer bowl combine egg and vanilla. Beat on HIGH speed for 2 minutes. Gradually add oil, beating till thick. Gradually beat in sugar. Add dry ingredients alternately with apples, beating after each addition. Beat at MEDIUM speed for 3 minutes. Stir in walnuts. Turn batter into prepared dish. Place in microwave oven.

Cook for 13 minutes at MEDIUM, giving dish a quarter turn twice. Cook for 1½ minutes at HIGH till cake tests done, giving dish a half turn once. Cool on counter top for 10 minutes. Remove from pan. Cool thoroughly on rack. Drizzle with Powdered Sugar Icing. Makes 12 servings.

Powdered Sugar Icing: Stir together 1 cup sifted powdered sugar, ¼ teaspoon vanilla, and enough milk (about 1½ tablespoons) to make of drizzling consistency.

SPICY MOLASSES BAKED APPLES (Shown)

Total cooking time: 6 minutes

½ cup water
¼ cup light molasses
¼ cup sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
4 large baking apples

In small bowl combine water, molasses, sugar, lemon juice, cinnamon, and nutmeg; set aside. Core apples and peel ⅓ of the way down. In 1½-quart casserole place apples; pour molasses mixture over. Place in microwave oven.

Cook apple mixture for 3 minutes at HIGH. Turn apples over and spoon sauce over. Cook for 3 minutes at HIGH till apples are almost tender. Garnish with thin strips of orange peel, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

TIPS & TECHNIQUES

Cakes rise higher in the microwave oven, so fill the pans just half full.

When using conventional recipes, decrease ingredients by ¼-⅓ (decrease liquid slightly more than other ingredients) to make the right amount of batter. Or make the conventional recipe and bake extra batter as cupcakes.

To enhance the color of light-colored cakes, coat the inside of the dish with wheat germ instead of flour. Other good coatings are graham cracker crumbs or finely ground nuts. If the cake is to be frosted or is deep in color, use granulated sugar.

Let cakes stand for 10-15 minutes on the counter top to complete cooking. Then place on a wire rack to cool completely.

Cash Markets-Study Before You Invest

Those new "financial supermarkets" or cash management services offered by brokerage firms and banks are enticing financial devices that are offered as ways to keep your money working for you. But, before you hand over your hard earned money, you would be wise to investigate the services and the fees, according to the Minnesota society of certified public accountants (CPAs).

Most of these financial services or money management accounts guide your investing in stocks and bonds; some provide checking accounts, charge cards and monthly statements of your account's activities. On the plus side, your money is never idle as your funds are "swept" automatically into money market interest-bearing funds.

Before you place assets in such an account, CPAs advise you to shop around just as you would for any other investment. Find out the minimum initial deposit required; it could be as much as $25,000. Also, find out if there is any annual fee, what insurance is available, and if there are extra features such as securities research or discount brokerage fees.

Minor factors may affect your decision, CPAs note. For example, you may be issued a debit card rather than a credit card. If so, you are really getting a "plastic check," because the amount of each charge is immediately deducted from your account balance. Disadvantage is you lose the standard 25 day or more "float" you get with charges on a credit card.

Checking service provided as an added attraction could impose drawbacks as well, CPAs say. If checks are issued by an out of state bank, it might be troublesome to cash the checks at local retailers. Also, many accounts do not return cancelled checks. You get a listing of the amount of the check or the check's payee on your monthly statement, but if you need a copy of a check to prove payment or for use in a tax audit for example, you'll have to pay a fee and wait for a photocopy.

Monthly statements, listing your account's activities, are convenient and usually make practical records. Compare formats for monthly statements before opening an account, CPAs suggest. Some statements list activities for the past month, while others provide year-to-date figures.

In some cases, that monthly statement's convenience may work against you, CPAs warn. You broker can easily review your entire statement and spot financial activities you prefer to keep private. In a tax audit, the IRS employee reviewing your records has that same ready access.

Nonetheless, these accounts are a great boon in helping you manage your money. Your broker can assist you in selecting stocks and bonds based on your financial circumstances.

Account managers or brokers can help you select investments to make money, but they are not as expert in advising on ways to keep more of it through tax planning. For example, you need to decide if it is wiser to invest in tax-free municipal bonds instead of money market funds or other investments. In addition, brokers work on commission and are sometimes prone to push certain investments, CPAs warn.

Before investing, look carefully at an account's "sweep" feature. Earnings and deposits are automatically swept daily into money market accounts. But some allow funds below a certain level to sit for up to six days before a "sweep."

Look at other account regulations as well, CPAs say. For instance, your account could be closed if your balance falls below a certain amount. There may be delays in closing an account and this could tie-up your money.

Overall, the money-making bonusses and convenience of money management services probably outweigh the drawbacks, but only you and your tax advisor can decide which of the money offerings suits your needs.

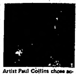
AMERICA AT WORK



Artist Paul Collins chose actor James Earl Jones for the subject of his painting, "The Entertainer," part of his "America at Work" exhibition, commissioned by Amway Corporation.

The construction worker, the farmer, the paper carrier, the mailman—these are all people who have helped to make America great, people who embody the pioneer spirit of hard work. That spirit—and these everyday heroes—have now been captured in an exhibition of 22 paintings by one of America's most noted black artists recently displayed at the Great Hall of the Department of Labor.

The series of paintings, entitled "America at Work," shows Americans doing their jobs with pride and dedication—what many feel our nation is all about. Artist Paul Collins, well-known for other painting series such as "Black Portrait of an African Journey," "Great Beautiful Black Women," "Children of Harlem," "Other Voices—a Native American Tableau," and "Special Olympics," says "The idea came from my travels around the world, comparing our workers with those in other cultures. Americans are interested in producing things to make a better life for ourselves and for others."

Commissioned by Amway Corporation, an international direct sales firm, the paintings show Americans in various work situations, the famous and not-so-famous, ranging from Matislav Rostropovich playing his cello, to a young Vietnamese immigrant delivering newspapers. The works will be on permanent display at the Amway Grand Plaza Hotel, Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Some have said this unique exhibition is really a celebration of freedom and the right of all Americans to be themselves. Willis Woods, Director of the Detroit Institute of Arts, says that the paintings have "immediacy of contact, giving us a feeling for them (the subjects) as individuals possessing strength and dignity." A fitting tribute to the American working force of the last 200-plus years.

Aspartame May Be Used By Many Diabetics

Dean Midboe, M.D., president of the American Diabetes association in North Dakota, reports that "moderate amounts of carbonated soft drinks and foods that contain the non-caloric sweetener aspartame can be included in the meal plans of people who have diabetes."

He stated the voluntary health agency's position that "while aspartame has not been tested extensively in people with diabetes, medical evidence indicates that it is acceptable as a sugar substitute, and can be included in a diabetic meal plan provided it is not used in excessive amounts." He noted that because the low calorie sweetener is protein, it does not require insulin to be metabolized, and can be used by children and adults with this chronic disease.

Dr. Midboe noted that dietary needs in persons with diabetes vary. The diabetes group recommends that diabetic patients consult their physicians and health professionals concerning the amount and source of natural carbohydrates as well as the use of aspartame in their daily meal plans.

In July, the food and drug administration extended its approval of aspartame to diet carbonated beverages and wet foods, including peanut butter, jelly, canned fruits and juices. Two years ago, the F.D.A. approved aspartame for use as a tabletop sweetener and as a dry food additive.

Aspartame contains four calories per gram, and is nearly 200 times sweeter than sugar. Because of its intense sweetening power, only a very small amount is needed. This makes it caloric intake virtually insignificant for both insulin-dependent and non-insulin-dependent diabetics.

The American Diabetes association in North Dakota has education literature available on aspartame as well as most other dietary needs to assist persons with diabetes. If you have questions about the exchange diet used by persons with diabetes please call 1-800-732-4381.

'82 Statistics For MN Fires Are Released

Property loss due to fire in 1982 reached an all-time high in Minnesota, according to recently released statistics of the state fire marshal's office of the Minnesota department of public safety.

Total dollar loss reported to the state fire marshal was $182,933,759. This was 2½ times the loss in 1981 ($74,775,045). One fire in particular, Donaldson's and Northwestern Bank, Minneapolis, accounted for $90 million destruction which was the largest office occupancy fire in the nation last year.

Fire deaths in 1982 increased 6 per cent from the previous year, claiming the lives of 76 people.

"The best safety advice we can give the public is to install smoke detectors and to educate themselves and their families on other fire prevention and fire safety procedures such as home fire exit drills," said Wes Werner, state fire marshal.

In 1982, 524 or 66 per cent of Minnesota's 795 fire departments submitted fire incident reports to the state fire marshal's office. Number totaled 37,226 incident reports compared to 38,204 in 1981. Total of 41 per cent of the 651 fire investigations responded to by state fire-arson investigators were incediary fires.

Following statistics were compiled from 1982 reports:

— Forty-eight per cent (37) of the fire deaths occurred in one and two-family dwellings. Apartment fires accounted for 13 deaths and eight deaths occurred in mobile homes.

— Smoking and smoking materials led the list of causes for life loss by fire. This totaled 28 per cent, or 21 deaths. Other leading causes of fire deaths included incendiary (set) fires (8 deaths), cooking (8), wood stoves (7), fireplaces (7) and vehicle fires (7).

— Fire related injuries totaled 445 in 1982. Of this number 92 injuries occurred to firefighters during fire control.

— The 16 state fire inspectors conducted 6,968 inspections during 1982. Structures included: hotels, motels, resorts; places of assembly; day care and foster care facilities commercial properties; flammable liquid gas facilities and health care facilities.

"I continue to be committed to reducing the crime of arson in Minnesota through effective fire investigations in cooperation with fire service, law enforcement and insurance industry representatives," Werner said.

Werner also remains committed to preventing loss of life and injuries due to fire through public education efforts, installation of smoke detectors, comprehensive but reasonable code enforcement and cooperative efforts with all agencies and organizations.

Minor Heating Leaks Can Be Major Problem

You'd probably laugh if someone told you that significant amounts of heated air escape from your home each winter through your electrical outlets. And you're right. Electrical outlets, on their own, aren't a major heat thief. But they are a small heat loss problem.

So is the small hole where the outdoor faucet enters the side of your house. That tiny gap under the outside doors leaks some cold air in. And a little heated air is leaking out through each window frame, rope pulley holes in the windows, the cracks along baseboards, through the dryer vent that doesn't close all the way, and around the attic door or hatch. They also leak in cold air.

These little heat losses add up; in fact, tiny air leaks found throughout an average house could easily add up to the equivalent of a two-square-foot hole in the house!

A large part of your heating bill — as much as one-third of it — pays for heat that leaks out of these holes and cracks. It's like leaving a window wide open all winter.

Fortunately, these air leaks can be plugged fairly easily and inexpensively. It takes a little detective work to discover them, and some time to carefully seal them. Caulking and weather-stripping are effective shields against this heat loss.

+ Check the condition of exterior caulking around windows and doors, and re-caulk, if necessary. Also caulk around the outdoor faucet and dryer vent, if necessary. Add caulking on the inside of your home around window and door frames where they meet the wall, and along the baseboards.

+ Inexpensive rope caulk can seal gaps around window sashes.

+ Attach door sweeps at the bottom of exterior doors to seal these air leaks.

+ Electrical outlet seals are now available to insert behind light switches and outlets. Plastic safety plugs can be inserted into unused outlets.

+ Attic doors and hatches can be weatherstripped for a tight fit.

Weatherization products are available at local hardware and home improvement stores. Sales personnel can be helpful in advising what to use and how to apply it.

Detailed information on how and where to look for these air leaks, and how to plug them, is available in "How to Weatherstrip and Caulk Your Home," a brochure available through the Minnesota department of energy and economic development. It also describes the types of weatherstripping and caulking products available.

City Officially In Enterprise Zone

(Editor's Note: The following article was prepared in expectation that Mark Dayton, commissioner of energy and economic development for the state of Minnesota, would make his announcement of final enterprise zone designation this morning. A secretary in Dayton's office stated at 11:30 p.m. that an announcement is expected to be made today but said no specific time had been scheduled. The material in the article is based on the premise that the final designation will follow the preliminary announcement which Dayton confirmed at a meeting in Thief River Falls recently.)

Thief River Falls was today officially designated as an enterprise zone in the state of Minnesota by commissioner Mark Dayton of the department of energy and economic development. This will mean $1,750,000 in tax credits available here.

According to J.E. Sandstrom, executive director of Jobs Incorporated — Thief River Falls' local development corporation — this will give a new company locating or a company expanding in the enterprise zone several possible tax advantages. The following are the types of tax reductions that may be approved for them.

(1) An exemption from the general sales tax imposed by Chapter 297A for purchases of construction materials for equipment for use in the zone;

(2) A credit against the income tax of the employer for workers employed in the zone, other than workers employed in construction, up to a maximum of $3,000 per employee;

(3) An income tax credit for a percentage of the cost of debt financing to construct new facilities in the zone; or

(4) A state paid property tax credit for a portion of the property taxes paid by a new commercial or industrial facilities or the additional property taxes paid by an expansion of an existing commercial or industrial facility in the zone.

Sandstrom indicated that these tax advantages will free up operating capital for new and existing companies in the zone and will put Thief River Falls in a very good competitive position with North Dakota. It will also provide any company moving to Thief River Falls and locating or expanding in the zone the opportunity to reduce their overhead-encourage them to expand and add new employees.

In addition to these tax advantages, there is land and several buildings immediately available for new industry to occupy, he said. The buildings are all modern and can easily be adapted for immediate use ranging from office space to heavy manufacturing. The total amount of square footage available in all the buildings located in the zone totals approximately 550,000 square feet. Total land is approximately 100 acres, with the largest parcel being 65 acres. Price on the buildings is considerably below the replacement costs, beginning at $7 per square foot.

Sandstrom stated that if a company is looking to relocate or expand, that Thief River Falls has more to offer and more advantages than most of our neighboring states and communities. If any company would like more information on the tax advantages available or the buildings and sites available please contact Jobs Incorporated, P.O. Box 514, Thief River Falls, Minnesota 56701 (218) 681-7387.

HONOR CLUB awards, sponsored by the Thief River Falls Times, were presented to the Happy Acres and Silverton 4-H clubs during the annual awards night program on Friday at city auditorium. Accepting the awards were club presidents Susan Peterson of Silverton (left) and Julie Finstad of Happy Acres. Their clubs earned the awards, based on accumulated points for 100 per cent record completion and participation in various county, district and state events.

BEATTIE MICKELSON (right) was presented with a gold locket by 4-H leaders council president Renee Erickson, in appreciation for all of the time she has spent both as a volunteer and as a part time 4-H youth program assistant for the Pennington county extension service, during award ceremonies held Friday night at city auditorium. Although funding for her part-time position expired in October, Beattie says she will remain active in 4-H programs as a volunteer.

Stangeland To Amend House Bill This Week

Congressman Arlan Stangeland is working with House agriculture committee leaders to get an opportunity to offer an amendment that would help farmers in Red Lake and Pennington countyes. The debate could be as early as this week.

The four-term House veteran has asked House ag committee chairman Kika de la Garza (D-TX) to allow Stangeland to offer an amendment to the 1983 drought relief act (H.R. 4052) when it is brought to the House floor.

The Stangeland amendment would provide special relief to farmers in counties which have been declared disaster areas for at least three consecutive years. Pennington and Red Lake are among a handful of counties which would currently qualify.

The relief would include a consolidation loan for all farm-related debts at five per cent interest over 15-40 years, and a provision for a moratorium on principal and interest payments on the loans for up to five years for qualified farmers.

The Stangeland amendment would also provide similar relief, on a case-by-case basis, for farmers in counties surrounding the perennial disaster areas. In Minnesota, this would cover farms in Polk, Beltrami, Marshall and Clearwater counties.

"If we can get a debate on this measure on the House floor, there will be no place for Congressmen to hide," Stangeland said. "Each of them may represent farmers with a similar crisis someday. This will force Republicans and Democrats alike to stand up and be counted."

The Stangeland amendment was defeated by the House

Appointment Is Necessary For Energy Grants

Once again this year, Inter-County Community Council, Inc., Oklee, is accepting applications for heating assistance by appointment only, according to Wes Roland, energy assistance program, director.

"In past years, we've had situations where 200 to 300 people show up at one site and have to stand in lines that reach as long as a block or two. Our outreach workers can handle about 20 or so applications in one day and obviously we end up not getting to all the people who arrived," Roland said.

To streamline the process, this year Inter-County is requesting that people call the office for an appointment. The toll free number is 1-800-542-5035; the regular office number is 796-5144. People who live in Pennington county can call 681-6111.

Inter-County receptionist Irene Noyes schedules the appointment and sends the applicant a letter which gives the appointment date and time and also tells the applicant what to bring along. The appointments are made with outreach workers in or near the applicant's home.

The energy assistance program will begin on November 1 and applications will be taken until May 31, 1984. The program will continue to make payments until August 15 for heating bills accumulated up to May 31. The program is expected to serve about 2,300 households in Red Lake, Polk and Pennington counties.

Those who have any questions or would like more information may call 1-800-542-5035.

Public Meeting On Education Here Nov. 10th

A series of 17 public meetings on the mission and role of education in Minnesota has been scheduled around the state by the Minnesota Legislative commission on public education to examine the state's kindergarten through 12th grade system of public education.

The task force of the commission, chaired by Senator Jim Pehler, Senator Jerome Hughes and Representative John Rose, will hold a public meeting in Thief River Falls on November 10 from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. at the Lincoln high school cafeteria for individuals directly involved in education. Evening meeting will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. for parents, concerned individuals and the general public.

"Five major areas of education will be discussed," Pehler said, including:

+ What should a student know and be able to do upon graduation?

+ What do you feel are the strangths of public education in Minnesota?

+How could our system be improved in each of the following areas? Individual student performance; teacher supply and quality; curriculum; and, administration.

+ If you could improve one thing in public education, what would it be?

+ What other recommendation or comments do you have for the commission?

"The culmination of the public testimony will be critical to out plotting the course of education excellence in Minnesota for the next decade. This is an opportunity for the Bemidji, Thief River Falls and regional area residents to have a direct input into this crucial area," Pehler said.

Add Matinee Performances Of 'Godspell'

Because of the demand for tickets to the Northland community college musical "Godspell", matinee performances have been scheduled for 2 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, November 5 and 6, according to director Roger Vaughan.

Some tickets for evening performances November 4, 5 and 6 also remain, Vaughan said, but demand has been strong since Saturday and Sunday performances this past weekend were sell-outs. Matinee tickets may also be ordered by calling the college office at 681-2181.

ARNOLD STANLEY of Grygla, a member of the land classification committee in Marshall county, told of many years of fruitless effort to have public lands classified when he testified in Grygla Friday. The hearing on public lands was conducted by the subcommittee on public lands and waters of the Senate agriculture and natural resources committee. Main point of discussion at the hearing were consolidated conservation area lands in eastern Marshall county. Stanley explained that the land classification committee members from the area wanted 8,000 acres of public lands suitable for farming released for sale, and were agreeable to state purchase of the same number of acres further west in the county. The hearing drew a rather small attendance in the Grygla civic center.

Public Land Value Gets Discussion At Hearing

STATE SENATORS who are members of the senate subcommittee on public lands and waters listened to testimony Friday afternoon in Grygla. Left to right are Sen. Gary DeCramer, St. Paul; Randy Peterson, St. Paul, subcommittee chairman; and Sen. LeRoy Stumpf, Plummer. Also present were Sen. Gene Merriam, Coon Rapids, chairman of the agriculture and natural resources committee; Sen. Doran Isackson, St. Paul; and Sen. Collin Peterson, Detroit Lakes. Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls also sat with the subcommittee and took part in the discussion.

Varying views on the value of public lands in Minnesota — especially in eastern Marshall and neighboring counties — were presented at a hearing Friday in the Grygla civic center. Sen. Randy Peterson of St. Paul chaired the hearing of the subcommittee on public lands and waters of the Senate agriculture and natural resources committee.

Although the meeting drew a small attendance of about 40 people, a number presented testimony regarding their opinions or the positions of organizations they represent.

Other senators in attendance were Sen. Doran Isackson, St. Paul; Sen. Gene Merriam, Coon Rapids, chairman of the agriculture and natural resources committee; Sen. Gary DeCramer, St. Paul; Sen. LeRoy Stumpf, Plummer; and Sen. Collin Peterson, Detroit Lakes. Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls also sat with the subcommittee and participated in discussion.

Shelly Steva of Thief River Falls, representing the Agassiz Audubon society, expressed the interest of that organization in the retention of public lands in the state. She said she and her husband moved here from Indiana where the nearest public land was 50 miles away and it was extremely crowded with visitors. The society's interest is primarily in the consolidated conservation area lands, she said.

"No one disputes the right of anyone to deal with their own land as they wish," she said in her statement. She then pointed out that large acreage in most northwestern Minnesota counties had been cleared of brush and trees in the past 10 years alone. Because private land owners have the right to do with their land as they wish, she noted, it is increasingly important to have public land remaining in their natural state.

"We are not unsympathetic to those who have small parcels in the middle of a field," Mrs. Steva said, "but we are very concerned about the large parcels of public lands in this area."

David Siegenthaler, manager of the Wetland, Pines and Prairie wildlife sanctuary east of Warren, emphasized that a great value for wildlife is being lost with the loss of habitat. The water cycle is being altered by drainage, he said, and with habitat decline there are fewer predators to keep reodents in check. The legislature has a responsibility, he added, to preserve wildlife, be aware of flood control and preserve our natural heritage for future generations.

Clifford Steinhauer, chairman of the board of supervisors of Holt township, noted that the board had voted to retain the last 40 acres of state-owned land in Holt township. "It doesn't bring in any taxes," he said, "but it doesn't cost anything. The public uses it for hunting and trapping. I used to hunt on the

Taxpayer's Association Reviews State Surplus

(Editor's Note: The following article is from the Minnesota Taxpayers association newsletter and is reprinted here because of its general interest.)

Minnesota's fiscal situation "appears" to have done an about-face. The red ink of the past three years has been replaced with an estimated surplus of $650 million, but the emphasis is on "appears", and also on "estimated". For the time being, the good news should be taken with a strong dose of caution.

The state's new forecast estimates were released by the department of finance and the governor on Friday, October 14. The forecast represents a new projection of general fund revenues and expenditures for the state's current biennial budget period which began July 1, 1983 and will end June 30, 1985. The last forecast was conducted in April, to tie in with the completion of the 1983 Legislative Session.

The new October forecast projects that the state will collect a net of $280 million more in revenues than it had anticipated in April. The projected general fund balance for June 30, 1985, at the close of the 1983 session was $120 million. With the October revisions, the new projected balance is $400 million. The legislature had also passed a $250 million appropriated reserve for the biennium. The surplus and the reserve translate into $650 million in revenues in excess of expenditures. The $650 million represents approximately seven per cent of the $9.6 billion general fund budget.

The Minnesota revenue forecast is based on data provided by Data Resources, Inc. (DRI), a nationally recognized forecasting firm. DRI's national statistical projections are translated into Minnesota's economic climate through complex revenue formulas. Generally, DRI anticipates that the national economic recovery will continue through 1985 at a moderate pace. Real economic growth, as measured by the frowth in the GNP, is now projected at higher levels in 1983 and 1984, but at a lower rate in 1985, than was forseen in April.

The current scenario projects these growth rates at 3.3 per cent in 1983, 5.3 per cent in 1984, and 3.2 per cent in 1985. Inflation rates are lower in October than in the April predications for 1983 and 1984, but appear slightly higher for 1985. The current three-year projections, respectively—are — 4.3 per cent, 5.0 per cent, and 5.4 per cent.

Risks still remain in this forecast. There does exist a significant potential that an early end to this national recovery might occur by late 1984. Interest rates are a prime factor. The high rates in the past few years were a leading cause for the initiation and continuation of the economic recession. Lower rates prompted the recovery period. Should rates again reach these previous levels, the economic repercussions could abort the recovery. Because little is being done to ease the size and growth of the federal deficit, this possibility must remain very plausible.

Sonja Gale Millard And Jeffrey C. Forsberg Wed

Marriage vows were exchanged recently at Redeemer Lutheran church in this city by Sonja Gale Millard and Jeffrey Craig Forsberg, both of Thief River Falls.

The bride is the daughter of Melvin Millard of Alaska and the late Mrs. Millard. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Larry Forsberg, Thief River Falls.

Rev. Luther Anderson officiated at the three o'clock, double ring ceremony witnessed by approximately 275 relatives and friends. Joyce Halbasch was the organist and Roger Kurly, uncle of the groom, and Tara Haugen, a friend of the bride, were vocalists. Selections sung were "You and I," "We've Only Just Begun," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Forming the chancel setting were baskets of silk flowers, made by the groom's mother, who made all the flowers at the wedding. Surrounding the unity candle were flowers matching those in the bride's bouquet.

The bride, given in marriage by her foster father Ralph McQuiston, was attired in a white satin gown made by the bride and the mother of the groom. Pearl embroidered lace enhanced the sheer fitted bodice, high neckline and full-length sleeves. Creating back interest was a triple accordion ruffle in an inverted V. Her lace edged, triple-tiered, waist-length veil was held by a silk floral wreath. She carried a modified cascade of white gardenias, lavender roses, lilies of the valley, flocked babies' breath and lavender star flowers.

Stephanie LeMoine was the bride's personal attendant.

Shelly Millard attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kelly and Kim Millard, sisters of the bride, and Valerie Forsberg, sister of the groom. All wore lavender lustre knit gowns with point d'esprit shepherdess sleeves, high necklines, and sheer yokes with cameo appliques. They carried lace trimmed parasols, complemented by a cluster of flowers similar to those in the bride's bouquet.

Flower girl was Amy McQuiston, foster sister of the bride. She wore a white floor-length gown with lace trim at the high neckline and around the short puffy sleeves. Miniature silk flowers and babies' breath were braided in her hair. She carried a white basket filled with the bride's chosen flowers.

The rings were carried by Trevor Kiesow, a cousin of the groom. Like the groom, he wore a white tuxedo with a lavender rose boutonniere.

Mark Forsberg, a brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Tim Anderson, Goodridge, an uncle of the groom, Sanford Klamar and Tom McMaster, friends of the couple. Serving as ushers were Kenyon Millard and Terry Millard, brothers of the bride; and Reed Engelstad, a cousin of the groom.

For her foster daughter's wedding, Mrs. McQuiston wore a lavender street-length dress with a V-neckline. The groom's mother was attired in a lavender street-length dress styled with short, full sleeves. Their corsages were of lavender and white silk flowers.

Honor guests were Mrs. Sigrid Brenna, Thief River Falls, and Mrs. Edna Millard, grandmothers of the bride; and Mr. and Mrs. Orvin Anderson, Goodridge, and Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Forsberg, St. Hilaire, grandparents of the groom.

A reception in the church fellowship hall followed the ceremony. Hosts and hostesses were Roger and Sharon Forsberg and Florence and Vernon Becker. Veronica Forsberg, a sister of the groom, was at the guest book. Ladling the punch were Derel Engelstad, Grygla, and Darcy Halvorson, Thompson, N.D.

The three-tiered wedding cake, baked and decorated in lavender and light green by the groom's mother, was topped by a ceramic couple backed by a satin, lace trimmed heart. Cutting and serving the cake were Sandy Johnson, Karlstad, and Cindi Johnson, Beaulah, N.D. At the coffee service were Iva Lindahl and Sherri Brenna, aunts of the bride.

Jacki Forsberg and Kristi Becker were waitresses and Joey McQuiston and Ricky Karboviak arranged the gifts.

Following a wedding trip to the Dells of Wisconsin, the couple is at home in Thief River Falls at 1024 North Main. The bride is a 1982 graduate of Lincoln high school and is employed at Godfather's Pizza. The groom, a 1981 graduate of Lincoln high school, is employed by Piggly Wiggly and Jim's SteaMagic. Schantzen And Johnson Marriage Vows Spoken

Kay Lynn Schantzen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Schanten, and Michael Wayne Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Johnson, were united in marriage recently at Bethany Lutheran church.

Rev. Paul Bortnem officiated at the double ring, mid-afternoon ceremony. Organist was Grace Hammer, who played and sang "Just You and I," with Sheila Stenseth. She also sang a solo, "The Wedding Song."

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a sheer gown fully lined with taffeta. Lace appliques, in daisy pattern, outlined the Princess Anne neckline, edged the cuffs of the long, sheer sleeves, and accented the satin panels which graced her skirt. Identical scalloped lace which traced the hemline of the skirt and chapel-length train, was repeated on her triple-tiered veil. She carried a silk cascade bouquet of blue and yellow roses, white daisies and featured carnations, lilies of the valley and babies' breath.

Tami Johnson, a friend of the bride and sister of the groom, was maid of honor. Serving as bridesmaids were the bride's sisters: Kim and Kristy Schantzen. They wore Romance blue sheer lacy gowns, fully lined with acetate taffeta. Elasticized waistlines created a blouson look. They also wore a halo of silk flowers, matching the flowers in their bouquets.

Brenda Schantzen, a cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a white sheer polyester knit gown, lined in taffeta. The elasticized scoop neckline in front and back, featured sheer ruffled flounces. A satin tie belt encircled the waistline. Cinderella ties graced the front. She carried a white lace basket filled with silk flowers, corresponding with the flowers in helo headpiece.

Beverly Roisland was the bride's personal attendant.

The groom was attired in a white tuxedo with a white ruffled shirt and white satin bow tie. His boutonniere was a blue silk rose. As his attendants, he selected his brother Bruce Johnson, as best man, and Brian Fortier and J. O. Prestebal as groomsmen. Chris Johnson, another brother, was ringbearer, and Tim Prestebak and Kent Swanson, served as ushers. The best man and groomsmen were silver-gray tuxedos with a silver bow tie. The ushers were attired in blue and gray suits, respectively; and the ring bearer wore a three-piece, navy blue suit. All wore white ruffled shirts and blue silk rosebud boutonnieres.

Following the ceremony, an informal reception was held outdoors at the groom's parents' farm by the Bethany Lutheran Ladies aid. For the occasion, the serving tables were placed in the garage.

Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Emery Wicklander. Linda Hagen was at the guest book and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Swanson served the punch. Robert Prestebak of Goodridge and Richard Kuzel were in charge of barbequing the beef, with George Fricker of Minneapolis, assisting in serving.

The three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with blue and yellow roses and supported by ornate pillars, was topped by miniature bridal couple. It was baked and decorated by Mrs. Wiskow of Goodridge and was cut and served by Ella Mae Longtin, Crookston, and Arlene Prestebak, Goodridge. Pouring coffee were Betty Schantzen, Newton, and Avis Fricker, Minneapolis.

Darcey Besserud and Susan Eggerud were waitresses and Cindy Swanson and Margo Schmitz pinned the flowers.

CPAs Advise On Support Of Older Parents

For typical wage earners, supporting ourselves and our children is a heavy enough burden. Caring for elderly parents can make the burden almost unmanageable.

But according to the Minnesota society of certified public accountants (CPAs), there are ways to reduce the strain by planning your financial affairs — steps that may involve assessing your parents' finances, sharing responsibility with brothers and sisters, and taking advantage of tax breaks.

There are no single solutions or comprehensive guidelines that will remove the burden of parental support. Most practical suggestion is to have solid financial plans in place before a money crisis occurs.

Injuries or illnesses will drain an aging parent's assets very quickly. A nursing home can cost as much as $3,000 or more a month.

To prepare for those heavy expenses, it makes sense to evaluate a parent's finances and match his or her assets against the costs of medical or nursing home care. When you know how much your parent might contribute to his or her own support, you are better able to judge how much support others will have to furnish. Then, you can start looking for ways to raise the money.

Grown children are not legally obligated to pay for their parents' support. Nevertheless, the federal government permits states, if they so choose, to require adult children to pay part of their parent's nursing home costs. Even though enforcing that promises to be difficult and stands a good chance of being challenged in court, it suggests a possible new direction.

Currently, the federal medicaid program, which is administered by states, pays nursing home costs for many older people if they satisfy eligibility rules. To qualify for medicaid, an individual can have only a limited amount of assets.

If you and your parent decide that medicaid is the only solution for meeting nursing home costs, that could be accomplished by setting up a trust, whereby your parents surrender their rights to the assets placed in this trust. You'll need legal counsel for advice on how to do that.

Keep in mind that applications for medicaid may be denied if a person's assets are transferred to their children within two or three years of applying.

Another route is for you to provide income to your aging parent through trusts or loans. You can establish a trust naming your parent as beneficiary. Income earned belongs to your parent, who will probably be in a lower tax bracket than you.

You could also borrow money from a bank, put it in trust for your parent, and let your parent collect the interest. Meanwhile, you would claim a tax deduction on interest paid on the loan.

You get a $1,000 exemption if you provide more than half of your parent's support, CPAs say. For instance, if you pay $4,000 a year for the care of a parent, and your parent gets an additional $3,600 a year from social security and has no other sources of income, you get the dependent tax deduction. CPAs point out that the dependent parent cannot earn more than $1,000 a year from taxable sources.

Even if you only share the support costs for your aging parent you may still get a tax break, CPAs note. If you and your brothers and sisters together provide more than half of your parent's support, one of you may be able to claim your parent as a dependent. To qualify, you must contribute at least 10 per cent of the total support costs to claim the deduction. In addition, all of you (those providing 10 per cent or more) must agree, in writing, who will claim the tax exemption.

So if it costs $10,000 a year to support your parent, and you and your brothers and sisters contribute a total of more than $5,000, you may get the exemption. In this case, you must contribute at least $1,000.

If your parent is disabled and can't care for him or herself, you get another tax break if you pay someone to provide care while you work. Child and dependent care tax credit can be applied to your parent's care, if you are a working single or you're married and both you and your spouse work. Depending on your total income, you may get a tax credit of up to 30 per cent of the costs of such care. Maximum credit is $720 for one parent, and $1,440 if you are caring for two.

HOW'S YOUR HEALTH?

Consider it an acute medical emergency whenever a patient who is sensitive to insect stings is stung by a bee, wasp or yellow jacket, advises the Minnesota Medical association (MMA). Notify the victim's physician without delay. Meanwhile, take any treatment measures prescribed by the victim's physician.

For most persons, the venom of a stinging insect may cause temporary pain and annoyance. For the insect sensitive person, it may mean anaphylactic shock or even death.

The symptoms of anaphylactic shock may include severe swelling in other parts of the body such as around the eyes, lips and tongue, weakness, coughing, wheezing, severe itching, stomach cramps, nausea and vomiting, anxiety, difficulty in breathing, dizziness, collapse, unconsciousness and body rash or hives.

Prevention is the best approach for the patient who is knowingly sensitive to insect stings.

MMA lists the following precautionary measures for avoiding stinging insects: (1) Wear white, tan or green clothes; (2) avoid flowery prints and flower colors; (3) wear light, smooth fabrics rather than dark, rough ones; (4) use insect repellent on clothing and exposed parts of the body and always keep it handy, especially during picnics and outings; (5) avoid picking flowers; (6) walk cautiously near bushes, hedges, tall grass, garbage areas, eaves, attics, boathouses and abandoned buildings; (7) avoid touching insect nests and warn your children not to touch them; (8) don't walk barefoot or in sandals; (9) don't use scented substances such as hair dressings, deodorants, powders, soaps, perfumes or lotions; (10) avoid wearing jewelry; and (11) avoid perspiring, if possible, as that tends to lure insects.

Taxpayer Unit Reviews State Fund Surplus

According to the department of finance estimates, the Minnesota recovery is continuing. The state's unemployment rate is dropping, as employment gains continue. In fact, the new forecast implies that employment levels will increase by 165,000 or 10 per cent in 1985, over the 1983 levels. This means higher personal income and higher individual income tax revenues. The total revenue changes in the forecast for the 1983-84 Biennium amount to $294 million, of this $197 million or 67 per cent is due to projected increases in the individual income tax.

The second largest dollar gain in the forecast is in sales tax collections which show an $83 million increase. Motor vehicle excise tax collections are expected to rise $29 million. However, corporate tax collection estimates have been revised downward by $7.8 million. This revision is substantially caused by the removal of any new revenues due to Minnesota's switch to the unitary method of corporate taxation. The previous estimate of $38 million, is now $0. (Other gains in the corporate estimate result in the net $7.8 million downturn.) Miscellaneous tax collection projections show a further decline of $6.5 million.

The $294 million in increased revenues is augmented by $11 million in changes in other resource items, bringing the total change in the State's resources to $305 million. This amount is off-set by $25 million in net expenditure increases, which results in the bottom-line forecast increase of $280 million.

The new $650 million surplus has instigated a surge of interest in tax relief measures, by some legislators and by the Governor. The prime contender for the relief dollars is the 10 per cent individual income surtax — and with good reason. The surtax was implemented as a temporary measure to cover the state's deficit problems. Now that indicators point to a sizeable surplus, it is only appropriate that the surtax be the primary consideration. Furthermore, 67 per cent of the new projected revenues are from individual income tax collections. Part of this amount is due to the fact that taxpayers will not benefit to any degree from the state's indexing provisions in 1983.

Lower than expected inflation rates meant only an 0.8 per cent adjustment in the brackets. Since the State had anticipated a 2.2 per cent adjustment, the windfall in income tax collections is $50 million. This "surplus" of collections in the income tax area further lends itself to consideration for removal of the surtax. Finally, Minnesota's income tax burden is one of the highest in the country, with some state taxpayers in middle brackets paying the highest.

If the surtax were to be removed by the 1984 session, effective January 1, 1985, the taxpayer saving is about $110 million. It should be noted that this still means that the surtax will appear on the next two tax forms — for tax years 1983 and 1984. Removing the surtax on July 1, 1984 would save taxpayers an estimated $220 million. The 10 per cent surtax would then still appear on the 1983 tax form, but would be reduced to five per cent on the 1984 form.

Governor Perpich has stated that elimination of the surtax is a first priority for the 1984 Session. His second priority is to enact a transfer of 25 per cent of the motor vehicle excise tax collections from the general fund to the highway fund. This transfer would continue each biennium until 100 per cent of the revenues were funneled into the highway fund. This transfer was passed by the legislature but later deferred due to budget problems. If enacted by the 1984 Session, it would constitute additional expenditure for highways, totaling about $100 million in the 1983-85 biennium.

Various other proposals for tax relief and additional expenditures will surface in the ensuing months, probably directed at property tax relief and additional spending for education.

Reasons for the increased revenues recently forecast have been directed at the improved national economy and the federal administration policies behind that improvement. Credit has also been shared to a degree by state fiscal policies. Yet the aid provided by the taxpayer has been ignored.

During the 1981-83 biennium, Minnesota taxpayers helped ease the state out of its fiscal problems by providing $1.1 billion in increased revenue. During the current 1983-85 Biennium, an estimated $956 million in additional tax revenue will flow through the treasury. Much of this revenue constitutes permanent tax rate or base changes.

KNOX SCHOOL gymnasium was nearly filled with costumed children getting a jump on Halloween, as CPLT (children and parents learning together) held their pro-holiday party on Friday evening. Games were set up for the children, which kept parents busy providing small change for the participants. This group was playing a version of musical chairs, marching around in a circle, hoping to stop on a square of paper with a prize under it. Registration begins this week for winter quarter classes, which are open to parents of all pre-kindergarten children, including infants. Precondition Calves For Best Profits

Before selling beef calves this fall, cow-calf producers should consider an opportunity to protect the calves and increase their sale value, says a North Dakota extension veterinarian.

"Precondition those calves," says Dr. Kurt Wohlgemuth, North Dakota state university, "and then market them as preconditioned."

"Preconditioning" primarily is a health-management program also gaining popularity as a marketing tool. It is designed to keep a calf healthy moving from the farm or ranch or origin through marketing channels to the feedlot.

Ten states now have their own "certified preconditioned" programs to help identify and reward the extra work. In those programs, the cattleman's local veterinarians will perform or verify the health procedures, and issue a certificate documenting the work done. Ear tags identify the individual calves.

Active programs exist now in Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota and Tennessee.

Program requirements and options vary slightly between states, but preconditioning normally includes weaning, control of parasites, adequate castration and dehorning if necessary, and vaccination against major diseases.

Buyers of preconditioned cattle benefit from reduced death loss and sickness in the calves, and improved performance, Wohlgemuth says, and they've been willing to pay for that.

Sellers have received premiums on preconditioned calves of $1 to $4.50 per hundredweight over similar quality, non-preconditioned calves, according to individual states' figures.

Preconditioned calves normally weigh heavier at marketing than green calves, Wohlgemuth says. That extra weight alone should pay the cost. And while they're still in the producer's hands, disease control also is an economic advantage.

Disease control through immunizations benefits both producers and buyers of the cattle, Wohlgemuth says. Broader protection at home, plus sale value of extra disease protection, also have led to increased use of the optional vaccinations for respiratory disease or "shipping fever." Bovine respiratory disease normally is caused by more than one virus or bacteria. For broad protection, many producers and veterinarians will include vaccinations for Haemophilus somnus and other organisms with the commonly required IBR and PI3 vaccinations.

"Depending on local conditions and the buyer, some options may be necessities," Wohlgemuth says. Disease threats and buyer needs will vary. Check with a cattle buyer or marketing representative and veterinarian can help producers pick options.

"All other things being equal, in well-managed herds, the extra options can help protect calves and add value to them," Wohlgemuth concludes.

Public Land Value Given Senate Hearing

public lands in the township, but my favorite land was sold to doctors and is posted for no hunting," he added.

Steinhauer said his father had homesteaded in the area and had purchased land for $5 an acre. He had paid $50 an acre for land he had purchased, he said, while his son had paid $350 for land in the area. State land which was sold for $10 an acre some years ago would not be worth $200 he said. His opinion was that public land retained by the state would continue to gain in value to the state. He said he saw no reason to sell state lands for agriculture.

Delray Larson, county commissioner from East Marshall county, had a different view of the public lands. He said 43 per cent of the land in his district is consolidated conservation area lands and that the large concentration of state land is a hardship to the school districts and townships as well as the county. He said he believes the state and county would both benefit from the sale of state lands and that the county has been trying to get lands released for sale.

Larson also commented on the state being behind in its ditch assessment payments. This situation was also voiced by farmers and county engineer Ray Sauve from Beltrami county. Discussion revealed that the payments had not been made because the legislature had not appropriated the funds for use in their payment, rather than DNR determination that the benefits were not applicable.

Henry Holte of Grygla, a life-long resident of the area, reviewed the background of how the state obtained much of the public land in the area. When the land became delinquent in the 1930's, the state acquired title by paying some $750,000 in ditch bonds. "That was the best land deal the state has ever made," he said, noting that in many other areas of the country during the depression there were many tax delinquencies.

Holte pointed out that 87 per cent of the land in the Grygla-Gatzke-Skime school district is in public ownership and that it provides only $28,000 of revenue to the district while the private land owners pay $392,172. He said he has served on the land classification committee for years but that the state will not carry through on classification as the law prescribes.

Highway engineer Sauve, in noting that the state owed Beltrami county some $250,000 in ditch assessments, suggested that if the state could take over the land when the county was delinquent on drainage bonds, perhaps the county could take over the land because the state hasn't paid its assessments.

Gordon Foss of Grygla, president of the Marshall-Beltrami Farmers and Sportsmen group, said he feels there is an imbalance of state land in the eastern portion of the county. His opinion was that sale of some land in that area to private owners and purchase of lands by the state further west in the county would adjust some of that imbalance. "We don't want to see all the land cleared," he said, "but we feel there is a need for more private ownership in this part of the county."

Al Farmes, representing the Minnesota conservation federation, said his organization was most concerned with the consolidated conservation area lands not in the wildlife management units. Of 150,000 acres originally in the "con-con" lands, only 42,000 acres remain, he said. Hundreds of thousands of acres in northwestern Minnesota have previously been classified and sold, he said.

"With the federal government recently spending some $36 billion in PIK payments to alleviate surplus crops," he said, "why clear more land to produce more crops?" For those who believe that agriculture means more wildlife, he invited them to come to southern Minnesota where intensive agriculture leaves very little wildlife habitat.

Arnold Stanley of Grygla, a member of the land classification committee, said that the main concern at the present time is some 8,000 acres which the committee has determined is suitable for agriculture and should be sold. He cited state law which provides for the classification of state lands in the consolidated conservation area and the sale of that portion considered suitable for agriculture.

"The law says the land shall be classified and agricultural land shall be sold," he emphasized, "subject to approval by the commission (of the department of natural resources). That's the hooker. We can't get anywhere with the department to even come out and look at the land parcel by parcel so we can reach an agreement."

While local people blamed the DNR for dragging its feet for years on the land classification question, the state shifted the responsibility to the Marshall county commissioner who had failed to act on a state proposal for land exchange. Local people thought the state proposal for exchange was not specific enough because it did not specify which parcels of land would be sold, although it did specify a time frame for sale of 8,000 acres of state land over a 10-year period and authority to acquire 8,000 acres over a 25-year period.

"Our people want to know which parcels of land will be involved," Staney told the subcommittee. "But so far through all these years nobody but the classification committee has ever even looked at them."

Grant Satre commented on damage to his crops as a result of the elk herd in the Grygla area. He said that he has had recurring damage to hay and grain crops over the years and never received state compensation. This he estimated at loss of 30,000 pounds of sunflowers which he had contracted for $15.50 per hundredweight, or a loss of $4,650. He said he based the estimate on the yield of two halves of his field, one half of which had been used extensively by the elk and the other which had not.

When food plots on public lands to attract elk were suggested, Satre pointed out that the state would have to do a better job of farming than the farmers around the area because the elk would go where the food was best.

Lawrence Kiesow, who farms 1,100 acres in Moyland and Espelie townships, said he considered the state lands adjacent to his farm to be "just a nuisance" and expressed the option that he would like to see it sold. "If the area was more open it would make it easier to farm," he said.

Chairman Peterson thanked the people who attended the hearing for their testimony and adjournment took place about 4:30 p.m.

Crop Pricing Bill Hearing On Thursday

Minnesota House agriculture committee will be holding a public hearing, starting at 1 p.m. Thursday, November 3, in the basement of Thief River Falls city auditorium, to gather testimony on legislation which would insure that farmers are paid a minimum price for at least a portion of their production of farm commodities.

Minimum pricing bill which passed the Senate last session, will be considered in the House this winter. It would work much like the minimum wage in requiring that farmers are paid at least 80 per cent of parity for farm commodities. The bill contains provisions to insure against excessive supplies and to maintain orderly marketing procedures. It would go into effect when 60 per cent of the production of any commodity was covered by similar legislation in other agricultural states. Twelve other states have currently introduced similar legislation.

Stangeland To Amend House Bill This Week

agriculture committee recently when 11 or 12 Republicans on the panel supported the measure, but the Democrats unanimously opposed relief for Minnesota farmers in hard-hit areas.

"I am asking Cy Carpenter (president of the Minnesota Farmers Union) to work with me in contacting House Democrats to support this measure," Congressman Stangeland said.

Stangeland, a senior member of the House agriculture committee, refuted three incorrect rumors which have been circulating about the relief measure.

"Some people are saying that Democrats on the ag committee voted against my amendment because it was too expensive," he said. "But right after they voted to ignore Red Lake and Pennington counties, they voted for another amendment that could double the cost of the entire drought relief act.

"Other folks are saying that my amendment wouldn't work because it does not include specific dollars for each year," Congressman Stangeland said. "In fact, this isn't required because my measure is an amendment to the original disaster relief program. As such, it would be an open-ended entitlement. Since you can't predict natural disasters, you can't put a price-tag on this relief. You just have to authorize the program and be ready to land a hand.

"Finally, some people are saying that this would only help farmers in those counties who use FmHA as a lender," Congressman Stangeland said. "In fact, everyone in that area is in the same boat. If relief is not available and many FmHA borrowers go under, property values of farms and machinery will plummet for everyone."

HENRY HOLTE of Grygla drew on a lifetime of experience in that area to provide information at a Senate subcommittee hearing on public lands held Friday at Grygla. He called the state's assumption of title to lands for payment of ditch bonds in the 1930's the "best land deal the state has ever made" and said that the area had a much better wildlife population when areas were farmed than it does now in its wild state.

MERLYN WESLOH of the Minnesota department of natural resources in Bemidji responded to questions Friday afternoon during a subcommittee hearing on public lands in the Grygla civic center. Seated immediately in front of Wesloh is Al Farmes who testified at the hearing for the Minnesota conservation federation.

Handicapped Can Develop Ability At Courage Center

Marion Hammond is an artist with a zest for life who just happens to be disabled.

Her tiny, detailed brushstrokes adorn paintings on objects ranging from wooden Christmas ornaments to children's play stools. Her brightly colored animals dance on recipe houses and "critter cages," and a tree mural she painted in red, brown and green pastels creates a garden scene in her front hallway.

"I get a sense of accomplishment from creating things that other people enjoy," says the Minnetonka, Minnesota, housewife. "Painting is just one of the ways I keep myself active."

Despite rheumatoid arthritis that requires her to use a wheelchair, Hammond relishes the time she spends painting, conducting a Bible study group, tutoring functionally illiterate adults (she holds a bachelor's degree in business from the University of Minnesota) and scheduling Minnetonka's "Dinner at Your Doorstep" program, a meals on wheels service for elderly and disabled people.

"I'm not a person who likes to sit around and twiddle my thumbs," she says.

Hammond is also one of thousands of physically disabled people taking advantage of Courage Center programs available to Pennington county residents and others throughout the U.S.

Courage center is a nonprofit United Way organization providing rehabilitation and independent living programs for people with physical disabilities and speech, hearing and vision impairments.

From its suburban Minneapolis headquarters, Courage center operates a variety of services including its well-known camping programs at Camp Courage, near Maple Lake, and Courage North, on Lake George in northern Minnesota; Courage residence, a transitional living facility for disabled young adults; the Courage HANDI-HAM system of amateur radio; sports and recreation; rehabilitation equipment loan and much more.

Hammond tells poeple "I won't say my age; let's just say I was born a long time ago." She markets her items informally through friends and also participates in the Courage Center Homecrafters program.

"Thanks to Courage Center Homecrafters I always have something to paint, and what I've learned has helped me and my husband make and sell Christmas ornaments on our own," she said.

Courage Center Homecrafters is a nonprofit service that teaches craft skills to clients and helps them market the items they produce. Homecrafters gifts are sold at shopping center and home sales throughout Minnesota and at permanent shops at Courage Center, 3915 Golden Valley Road, Golden Valley, the Multifoods building skyway in downtown Minneapolis and 743 E. Lake St. in Wayzata.

Hammond says she learned painting through independent study and instruction from the Homecrafters staff. She added that painting, combined with her other daily activities, keeps her from becoming discouraged by her disability. She also leans heavily on her religious faith.

"Basically, I keep myself going by following a motto I heard on a gospel radio show," she said: "'Courage is fear that is prayed over.'"

No Surplus Land

Every Minnesotan has a stake in the question of how public lands are handled in this state because they are in essence the property of all of us. There should be a concern among the population of the state that certain factions favor the sale of some of these holdings to private owners.

This editorial is being written in advance of the public hearing Friday in Grygla which was conducted by the senate subcommittee on public lands and water resources, so it is without the benefit of hearing the testimony given there. But we could see some apparently pre-conceived thoughts surfacing in the public release on the hearing provided by Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer, thoughts that indicate an opinion may have already been formed despite the hearing process.

"I see this subcommittee as examining the whole range of questions surrounding public lands, such as: How much land should the state own? What land should it own and how can we efficiently dispose of some of it?" he asks. The inference is that the state has too much public land.

"A major problem in this whole area is not having a mechanism which allows the state to identify and conveniently dispose of surplus land," the Plummer senator later states in his release. Apparently he believes there is a surplus that Minnesotans don't need.

We don't concur with the assumptions which Sen. Stumpf makes that the people of Minnesota have a surplus of public land and that it should be disposed of, presumably by sale to private owners. We frankly hope that the other members of the subcommittee have not previously determined that such a surplus exists.

One of the reasons we disagree is set forth by the senator in his own newsrelease, which states, "...finding alternatives to state purchases of public lands is important given the recent declines in available public money for purchasing land for parks, wildlife areas and access sites."

Prior to now, the state of Minnesota and particularly its department of natural resources has shown excellent foresight in acquiring public lands for use by any of the people of Minnesota. It has realized that no legislation by any legislature can create additional acreage within the boundaries of the state. It has recognized that at some point the opportunity to acquire land for the public would be severely restricted and that the costs would increase to the point of virtually prohibiting further purchase.

Unfortunately, some people consider land to be wasted if it is not under cultivation, platted into a building development or used to support a roadway, runway or railroad track. The thought has persisted in this part of the state that any land which can conceivably be cultivated and produce a crop should be under private ownership and performing that function. That thought has been most enthusiastically perpetuated by those who would like to own and cultivate that land.

As a result of this idea, the state of Minnesota and its department of natural resources have been portrayed as uncooperative, stubborn, contrary, opposed to progress, self-serving and a lot of other things by not selling off the public's land for private exploitation. Resistance to this pressure from a segment of the population has not been easy for DNR personnel and elected representatives.

Obviously among the state's 5.3 million acres of state-held lands are those which would have value to private owners. It is also likely there would be buyers willing to spend dollars to own some of that land for their own personal use. Those dollars would be a one-time windfall to the state government operating at the time of sale. Thereafter the resource, as a public entity, would be gone forever.

We are not in a position to judge if some state park in southeastern Minnesota has 10 acres too many or if the State Capitol grounds in St. Paul has surplus area which should be peddled to a developer. But we believe that public lands as we know them in this area — undeveloped tracts or those fully or partially developed for wildlife — are not in surplus and should not be sold unless suitably replaced. And we feel that such sale is exactly what Sen. Stumpf, some of his constituents and perhaps other members of the subcommittee have in mind.

The "major problem" which Sen. Stumpf refers to in not having a mechanism which allows the state "to identify and conveniently dispose of surplus land" is rather an important safeguard for the public. The laws are intended to make it difficult for elected or appointed officials to barter away holdings of the people of the state. They prevent hasty actions which could be completed before public reaction is formed.

The senator points out that in the past six years, Minnesota has acquired 117,000 acres of land but sold only 21,000 acres. But during the six years from 1975 to 1981 the acreage of wooded land has declined from 114,322 to 85,476 acres in Pennington county, from 214,327 to 162,985 in Marshall county and from 82,088 to 46,543 in Polk county. Since 1977 the wooded area of Roseau county had declined from 179,456 to 141,972 and of Red Lake county has declined from 34,776 to 27,049 acres.

The time may well come in the future when the needs of civilization demand that more land be used to produce food crops, but that time is certainly not now. American farm products are in surplus and farmers are suffering at least in part from over-production which results in low prices.

State-owned lands in this area could benefit from more development for wildlife. There could be more management to provide food for the birds and animals which use the habitat, more cutting of firewood from mature aspen stands, perhaps even greater access to some of the larger tracts. But developed or not, they are there to be used — without obtaining permission — by any resident of the state.

Perhaps an effort needs to be made to more adequately compensate townships, county governments and school districts for state-owned lands when their presence in large amounts restricts the taxes which can be levied in some areas: It is probably fitting that the public which shares the ownership also shares in that expense, although idle land requires little if any service from the townships, counties or school districts in which it lays.

But we see no need to reduce the amount of public land in this area for the purported benefit of a relatively few private owners. There is no surplus.

Davis-Bacon Challenged . . . . Again

Following editorial from CNS appeared recently in the Bemidji Pioneer:

Year after year, Congress tries to do something about Davis-Bacon and, it keeps coming close. Now, a bill by Reps. Charles Stenholm and Arlan Stangeland is picking up what the sports announcers like to call the big Mo — along with 79 co-sponsors.

If Congress is willing to go over Davis-Bacon again, so are we.

The Davis-Bacon Act, passed in the 1930s, requires private contractors to pay the "prevailing local wage" on work for any federal construction project. The theory was to void federal interference in local marketplaces. The result, of course, has been precisely the opposite.

Tell the market that you won't pay less than five dollars a widget, and there are going to be fewer widgets offered at less than five dollars. By guaranteeing the government will meet or better the "prevailing wage" — generally a euphemism for the prevailing union wage — Uncle Sam inevitably pulls local wages up.

This labor market largesse costs somebody some money — better than $1 billion in 1982, according to a study by the General Accounting Office. And, as usual, "somebody" translates into "taxpayers."

The ultimate answer to Davis-Bacon is to repeal it, along with the philosophy behind it. Government's mission is to provide services as efficiently as possible, not to strengthen high-priced union contractors.

But Stenholm-Stangeland at least would redefine the prevailing wage in such a way as to give the government greater latitude. Under the bill, the "entire range" of wages paid in a given craft would be considered the prevailing wage. As long as someone in the area is building widgets for $5 an hour, it's a fair price, regardless of what some widget-makers make.

Thus, the bill would end the present excesses of Davis-Bacon while preserving the original intent of the legislation — preventing the federal government from hiring labor at wages well below local levels.

Even this second-best solution may be too much for the Congress to achieve. Die-hards that we are, though, we keep rooting.

Leader Council Of 4-H Elects New Officers

Election of officers for 1983-84 was a major order of business at the 4-H leader's council meeting held October 3, at the Pennington county courthouse.

New officers include: Renee Erickson, president; Clarice Sorteberg, first vice president; Kristi Rupprecht, second vice president; Jean Helle, secretary; Tarry Edington, treasurer; and Kim Carlson, reporter. Awards committee members appointed were Judy Melby, Jean Wold, Clarice Sorteberg, Jean Helle and Tarry Edington, with Marlene Johnson, Renee Erickson and Marilyn Rausch named as alternates.

Other topices for discussion discussed included the appreciation banquet for adult 4-H leaders on October 8, at Silver Creek church; decision to build benches at the Jim Sorter home on October 14, for use at the county fair, with each club to pay for one bench; community pride program, with a decision made to rake the yard at Oakland Park nursing home over MEA vacation; and 4-H awards night on October 27. Use of the new computer enrollment cards was explained.

National 4-H week activities were discussed, including visits by teams of members to area grade schools to show slides on county 4-H activities, give puppet shows and a clown act. Members also served as announcers and guests on local radio programs, held a tea for individuals and businesses who donate to the 4-H program, and gave demonstrations in various stores throughout the week. Hot Dog award was presented to Loren Haagenson for his photography work during 4-H week.

Upcoming activities discussed by the council included the one-act play contest on November 18, with two clubs signed up to participate; North Central adult leader's forum, November 10 to 13, with council agreeing to pay $35 toward one leader's expenses; Holiday craft fair on November 12 at city auditorium, with clubs to furnish supplies and workers for the food stand and child care center; and December 1 deadline for county ambassadors, 4-H scholarships and Stucy food science scholarships.

Looking Backward

To The Editor:

Many farm families in Pennington, Polk, Clearwater, Red Lake and Marshall counties have now experienced four successive years of crop failure due to severe and excessive rainfall. Out of my conviction that only the federal government has the resources to aid in this situation, I have written to U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block requesting that federal assistance be made available immediately.

My letter to Secretary Block asked for prompt action on five points. They are: (1) Release of the $600 million already appropriated for Farmers Home administration emergency farm loans; (2) expedited processing of all currently pending loan applications; (3) prompt processing of all new emergency loan applications as they are received; (4) expansion of the program to include individual farm operators who are especially needy but whose farms are not located within a designated disaster area; and (5) delays in loan repayment schedules so that farmers who have experienced several years of crop failure will have a reasonable opportunity to meet their obligations in order to allow farmers to rebuild a solid financial foundation.

Also, on September 14, I personally visited with U.S. Farmer's Home administration director, Charles Schuman, in his Washington, D.C. office and brought to his personal attention the severe problems facing farmers in northwestern Minnesota.

I believe that if Secretary Block and the Reagan Administration heed these suggestions, there is a good chance of full recovery for the distressed counties. Failure to deliver the assistance already authorized by Congress will constitute a disgraceful act of callous disregard for the lives and livelihood of hundreds of hard-working Minnesota farm families in these five counties in northwestern Minnesota.

Sincerely,
-s-Steve Wenzel, Chairman
Minnesota House

Administrators At Vocational Conference

Retention of women and students who are enrolled in vocational programs typically considered for the other gender was the focus of a statewide vocational administrator's conference held in St. Paul, October 5-6, 1983.

Attending the conference from Thief River Falls were Dr. Orley Gunderson, director of the area vocational-technical institute; Dick Kotschevar, director of the Northwest vocational center for high school students; and Terry Lemer, director of adult education at the AVTI.

The event was sponsored by the state department of education and attended by approximately 65 vocational administrators from around the state.

Speakers at this workshop were Amanda Smith, management and education consultant from Durham, NC, and Dr. James Knight, associate professor at Ohio state university. Smith's presentation was aimed at building trust between men and women as a positive value so that individuals are free to pursue the career fields that interest them.

Building a positive school climate and teacher effectiveness were the themes of Dr. Knight's part of the conference. He stressed importance of administrative support and positive attitudes of vocational teachers toward the unique needs of students who are the only one of their gender in their class.

"There is a serious loss of human talent, energy and earning potential when a student leaves a vocational program because of sexual stereotypes of acceptable work," Knight said.

For a number of years, Minnesota vocational educators have been working toward eliminating barriers that students experience when entering and staying in vocational programs. All 3 area vocational-technical institutes in the state have a five-year plan detailing goals and activities they will carry out to increase participation of men and women in all vocational programs. Because administrative support is considered a key to successful implementation, the conference attended by administrators and knowledge and reinforced the progress made in this area.

The state department will be sponsoring three additional groups of gender equity conferences throughout this school year. Counselors will be meeting in November, instructors in February, and vocational equity coordinators in May. The purpose of all of these will be to increase the participation of men and women in all vocational programs.

History Group Slates Meeting In St. Paul

"Minnesota collects" is the title of the annual history conference to be held in St. Paul November 4 and 5, in conjunction with the annual business meeting of the Minnesota historical society. Conference will explore the responsibilities, problems and rewards of gathering, preserving and interpreting objects smaller than a breadbox or as large as a house.

Both private and institutional collectors and their collections will be the focus of the conference, which will get underway with a keynote address, "Material Culture and American Life," by James Deetz, one of America's leading historical archaeologists, November 4, at the Landmark center. Preceding his address, the keyboard instrument collection of the Schubert club will be open for viewing.

Minnesota state capitol and the historical society building will provide the settings for a full range of events November 5. New exhibition, also titled "Minnesota collectors," featuring books, photographs, pieces of art, manuscripts, family papers, museum artifacts, and government records, will be open throughout the day.

Weekend's events will begin Friday with the 134th annual meeting of the historical society and will end Saturday with an autographing party featuring two books newly published by the Society: "Night Flying Woman: An Ojibway Narrative," by Ignatia Broker; and "Twin Cities: A Pictorial History of St. Paul and Minneapolis," by Lucile Kane and Alan Ominsky.

The Job Training Partnership Act is a training program and results will be judged on how well people are trained, the U.S. Department of Labor announced.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Over the past two weeks I have tried to answer your questions and comments about Santa Claus without disillusioning you.

For years politicians have not been straight with us. They have implied that we can get something for nothing. For years it seemed that we were getting something for nothing from our Uncle in Washington, D.C.

What we didn't know, Jim, was that our Uncle had taken us out to lunch, and he didn't pay the bill. That wasn't a free lunch since all he had done was charged it to you and me. The bills came in and became part of our national debt, now over one trillion dollars. We each owe between $4,000 and $5,000, including the youngest babies and the oldest incapacitated person. Going into debt was easy. It got to be a habit. These fancy politicians who promise everything haven't promised to pay the bills... those they passed back to us.

Free enterprise as a system had nothing to do with the kind of fraud that politicians who use continuing debt to pay bills employ. It is a system that means incentives, opportunities, improved products and services, better quality and lower prices. It has difficulty surviving in the kind of climate irresponsible politics creates.

Free enterprise encourages work and responsibility. The "magic" of our "Sleight of hand" politicians has encouraged people to demand ever increasing wages without improved productivity and without consideration of the fact that we must live and compete with others on this earth. Every system is being forced to compete. Most let their people know when they aren't producing profitably. We have tried to be so nice in our labor relations that neither labor leadership nor business management has done the educational job necessary to explain our need to compete and keep costs competitive, which also means reinvestment of profits for equipment.

None of our leaders have explained that the world is always changing and that we must be adaptable to those changes, which could cause our wages to go up or go down, depending upon what our competitors are offering and charging. That's why some Chrysler employees have the incorrect notion that they gave something up and ought to get it back. They gave nothing up; they were not earning their wages. They were helping to drive Chrysler into bankruptcy and their jobs out of existence. It's that simple.

After all the work that has been done to make Chrysler survive, it seems stupid to let it be lost. The workers who are not getting either good advice from their leaders or proper explanations from management are effectively committing job suicide if they push up unit labor costs so that the Japanese and others can shoot them down, price-wise.

The problem of relating earnings to productivity and competition is a real task. Situations change all of the time. A year ago, Texas Instruments was beginning a successful sales period with its personal home computers and profits were rising. Today those personal home computers are responsible for Texas Instruments losing more than $100,000,000 in just one quarter of a year, and there is a serious need for cost reduction to remain competitive. A year ago Atari, the video game company, was flying high with skyrocketing profits. This year Atari has even deeper losses.

Workers must recognize they are part of a company. Everyone enjoys profit sharing. No one seems to recognize that losses must be shared, too. Also, a company is like a boat... if it sinks, all on board will find themselves in the water.

And that, Jim, is the point of my three letters to you. While there sure is a Santa Claus, he provided us with opportunity as his big gift. He expected us to make good use of that opportunity by working hard, using our brainpower and understanding, and achieving success and satisfaction.

Don't blame the free enterprise system for our problems any more than you would blame a well engineered car for an accident caused by a drunk driver. The more I think about it, the more I believe that repeated annual government budget deficits of more than $100,000,000,000 mean that we have a nut or a drunk doing our "driving."

That's Straight Talk!

Survey Shows Many Prefer Smoking Areas

Recent national survey has documented for the first time that a majority of Americans — including both smokers and nonsmokers — now believe smokers should refrain from smoking in the presence of nonsmokers.

According to the survey released by the American lung association — the Christmas seal people — an overwhelming 82 per cent of nonsmokers, and a surprising 55 per cent of current smokers agree smokers shouldn't light up around nonsmokers.

Carried out for the lung association by the Gallup organization, the survey also showed that two-thirds of smokers think involuntary smoking is hazardous to the health of nonsmokers and further, a majority prefer designated smoking areas in a number of locations.

The survey was carried out through personal interviews at over 300 locations around the U.S. and asked 1,509 men and women over 18 their opinion about smoking. Smokers constituted 38 per cent of the random sample, while 32 per cent of the nonsmokers surveyed had smoked at one time.

Survey asked whether respondents preferred designated smoking areas in restaurants, airplanes, motels and hotels and on trains and buses. Sixty-nine per cent of the respondents said they wanted separate areas in restaurants, including 74 per cent of the smokers and 65 per cent of the nonsmokers. In airplanes, 64 per cent wanted separate areas, including 73 per cent of smokers and 56 per cent of nonsmokers. For hotels and motels 54 per cent were in favor, 49 per cent being smokers while 60 per cent were nonsmokers; in trains and buses it was 52 per cent in favor, 56 per cent of them smokers, 49 per cent being nonsmokers.

"Americans understand that the health hazards of smoking go beyond the smoker himself," said American lung association of Minnesota Managing Director Dorothy Berg. "Clearly the message of voluntary health organizations such as the American lung association of Minnesota and the message of the Surgeon General is reaching the public, and the need for laws similar to the Minnesota clean indoor air act in other parts of the country is justified."

Rehabilitation Loan Program Being Offered

If your household's annual adjusted gross income is $7,000 or less, you may be eligible for a Minnesota housing finance agency (MHFA) rehabilitation loan.

Gross income means income from all sources, even those that are not taxable. Deduction of $1,000 per household resident will be subtracted from your gross income to determine adjusted gross income.

An MAHFA rehabilitation loan may be used for basic and necessary improvements that make your home more livable, accessible, and energy efficient. Maximum you may receive is $7,500.

If you live in the counties of Red Lake, Pennington, Clearwater or East Polk and if you think you may qualify, contact the inter-county community council in Oklee for more information. Inter-County Community Council, P.O. Box 187, Oklee, Minnesota; 796-8144.

PTA Suggests Parents Help Children Learn

Once again, the school year has begun. Children are beginning to settle into the routine of classes and homework. And parents and teachers are working to find more innovative programs and suggestions to help children learn. The October issue of "PTA Today," National PTA's magazine, offers some sound advice to both parents and teachers.

All parents want to know how well their children are doing in school. One way for schools to determine this is by administering standardized tests. According to Nicholas P. Criscuolo, supervisor of reading, New Haven (Conn.) public schools, some ways parents can help their children prepare for tests include:

—Discuss your own test taking experiences with your child to relieve "test anxiety";

—Encourage your child to listen carefully to the teacher during test taking time;

—Persuade your child to take "educated guesses" on questions they are unsure of;

—Make sure your child goes to bed early the night before the test so they will feel fresh in the morning.

The support and encouragement parents offer is very important. Criscuolo states that the best advice parents can give is, "Do the best you can-the world won't come to an end if you don't score at the top." After all, "a little praise goes a long way."

Another concern of parents is that their child is watching too much television. But, according to Charles R. Bolz of Louisiana tech university, writing in PTA Today, "school and TV need not be at odds — children can learn from both."

Survey of more than 3,000 families conducted during the early evening hours by members of a research team at the university, indicated that more than 90 per cent of the surveyed families were looking at television, but only 54 per cent of the parents thought their children were learning something during this time.

In a follow-up study, Bolz and his research team found that parents who made one or two explanatory comments to their children while watching a TV program had been more influential than the program itself.

Other methods which Bolz advises parents to use to make television viewing a beneficial and educational experience for their children are limiting viewing time, encouraging purposeful viewing, and using human situations in a TV program to discuss a sensitive issue.

National PTA supports parents' concern for their children's learning. National PTA president Elaine Stienkemeyer said "research has proved time and time again that one of the keys to quality education is parental involvement." In another article, Mary Ann Motycka, a 15-year veteran of public school teaching, agrees with Stienkemeyer. "There are so many things that parents can do that will help their children in school and thus help teachers." Here are five of the ten things Motycka wishes parents would: 1) provide the resources at home for reading and learning; 2) set a good example; 3) encourage children to try to do their best in school; 4) be aware of what is going on in the school and become more involved in school activities; 5) view drinking by underage youth and excessive partying as a serious matter, not a joke.

Child drug and alcohol abuse are a major concern of parents today. In order to help parents better understand why children use drugs and alcohol, and what they can do to protect their children from the dangers of both, the National PTA launched a nationwide drug and alcohol project in August of 1983. October issue of "PTA Today" contains a special section on the drug and alcohol problem — a must for parental reading.

Copies of the October issue of "PTA Today" are available for $1 each by sending a check or money order (made payable to National PTA) to National PTA, 700 North Rush Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611 (312) 787-0977.

Phone Co. Changes Begin In State Today

Effective today, Northwestern Bell will start operating as though it was split off from its parent company, AT&T, and this means a number of changes for customers concerning service, repairs and billing.

The changes, which will affect customers in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Nebraska, are designed to make sure everything runs smoothly when the actual divestiture takes place Jan. 1, 1984.

On November 1, customers who lease their phones and have a question about them, or a repair problem associated with the telephone instrument, can call toll-free numbers sent along with phone bills.

For residence and small business customers, the number will be 1-800-555-8111. There are two numbers for most multi-line business customers: The repair number is 1-800-526-2000; the number for other questions is 1-800-642-4736.

Northwestern Bell's regular repair numbers listed in the directories will be used for reporting troubles associated with the customer's dial tone and line. Persons who call the Northwestern Bell repair number with telephone set related problems will be referred to the new numbers.

The calls to the new numbers will be taken by Northwestern Bell employees scheduled to be transferred to an AT&T subsidiary, AT&T Information Systems (ATTIS), on January 1. ATTIS will take over responsibility for leased phone equipment.

Before and after the changes, new customers should still call Northwestern Bell to establish their service and be connected to the calling network. The numbers for new service will continue to be listed in the front of telephone directories.

Also coming in November are changes in the way long distance calls are listed on phone bills. Northwestern Bell long distance calls will be listed as a group. These will be short range long distance calls made within a relatively small area.

Calls to other area codes and other states generally will be listed separately. One exception will be calls made from the western half of the 218 area code into the 701 area code. Those calls will be handled by Northwestern Bell.

Eventually calls made on other long distance carriers may be itemized and listed on bills if the other carriers elect to have Northwestern Bell handle their billing.

Although the charges may be separated, customers will still make one payment of the total amount due.

Different numbers will be listed on the bill for customers to call with questions on Bell service: one for calls concerning local service ordering (1-800-447-1610), another for billing questions (1-723-4490) and a third number for calls concerning telephone equipment (1-800-555-8111).

No matter what number customers call, they will be referred to the proper location. The number charges will be reflected on customers' bills and in new editions of telephone directories starting with the 1984 Minneapolis directory in mid-November.

A final billing change for customers who lease their telephones from Northwestern Bell will take place on bills issued after January 1. Those customers will get two bills, one from Northwestern Bell for basic service, the other from the equipment itself, from ATTIS.

AT&T officials have indicated that customers will get a bill every month if they lease three or more phones. Persons with one or two leased phones will be billed every three months.

'U'M Economist Gives Outlook For Next Year

by Walter W. Heller
University of Minnesota

A couple of times a year, George Perry of the Brookings Institution and I publish an appraisal of the economic outlook. We have just done that, and I'd like to share some of its highlights with you.

Much as we lament the megadeficits that threaten our economy, we do not see them bringing recovery to an early end. Given the big margin of unused potential in the economy — nearly 10.5 million job seekers and one-fourth of our industrial capacity are still idle — the federal reserve can for some time shield the economy from rising interest rates even in ghe face of those huge deficits.

We see both the pace of recovery and its composition changing from this year to next.

This year, after a slow start, the rate of gross national product (GNP) surged to nearly 10 per cent in the second quarter and is continuing at about 6.5 per cent during the second half of the year. So real GNP will advance by nearly 6.5 per cent from the end of 1982 to the end of 1983. This will bring the year-over-year gain to about 3.3 per cent.

As to composition, the shift from massive inventory liquidation last winter to inventory rebuilding last summer was a major propellant of the 1983 expansion. Real final sales — total output less production for inventory — rose at a modest 3.7 per cent annual rate during the first three quarters. And 40 per cent of this rise came from the upswing in housing.

Turning to 1984, we expect a strong start at a six per cent-plus real rate of growth, tapering down to four per cent or so by the end of the year. This would produce a year-end to year-end increase of about 4.5 per cent and a year-over-year increase of between 5.5 and 6.5 per cent.

As to composition, next year will see reasonably good growth in consumer spending and inventories, stronger growth in capital spending and government outlays, a fairly steady course in housing and a poor performance in net exports.

What about the outlook for productivity, profits and prices?

Productivity started rising about a year ago even before the recession was over. It has posted a respectable three per cent increase in the past year, and there is reason to believe that it will continue at least at this pace in the coming year. In the current quarter, the prospect is that the productivity increase will weigh in at about 3.5 per cent, just about the same as the increase in average hourly pay. So at the moment, unit labor costs are holding steay.

That's one of the reasons that profits are looking good. A rise of over 30 per cent is expected both this year and next in economic profits.

As to prices, the outlook remains good. Even taking some firming of food prices and some rise in import prices into account, we expect inflation rates to stay in a 3.5 to four per cent range through the remainder of this year and next. And assuming that Washington will eventually face up to the deficit problem, we could well enjoy moderate inflation for several years to come.

Good Luck Plummer Cardinals

Good luck wishes go out this week to coach Gary Brantl and his Plummer high school football team as the Cardinals travel to Halstad Friday to face Norman County West-Climax in a Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) Nine-Man state playoff quarterfinal game.

Plummer ran its record to 9-0 Saturday with a 31-24 win over Kennedy in a match-up of North Tri-County Conference and Northern Lights Conference champions. At the same time, Agassiz Valley North champion Norman County West-Climax was beating Top of the State Conference champion Argyle 22-14 to set up this week's meeting.

In the other upper bracket MSHSL Nine-Man quarterfinal encounter this week, St. Louis County Conference champion Wrenshall will be at Heartland Six Conference champion Hill City. In the opening round over the weekend, Wrenshall beat Longbow Conference champion Kelliher 44-14 while Hill City defeated Agassiz Valley South Conference champion Lake Park 35-28.

Those quarterfinal winners will meet in the semifinals, probably on Fri., Nov. 11.

Finals in all five MSHSL football classes — AA, A, B, C and Nine-Man — will be played Sat., Nov. 19, at the Metrodome in Minneapolis.

Plummer has had an outstanding football season. Whatever success the Cardinals have from this point on is a bonus. The entire area is wishing them well.

Volleyball Tournament Set

North Sub-Region 8AA high school volleyball tournament will be held Saturday at Moorhead high school, and the host Spuds, as usual, will be the prohibitive favorite in the six-team field that also includes Thief River Falls, Detroit Lakes, Park Rapids, Fergus Falls and Bemidji.

Moorhead has won five consecutive Region 8AA volleyball titles.

Pairings, based upon coaches' voting for seeding positions, will be announced this week. Moorhead will be a unanimous No. 1 pick. Speculation has the No. 2 spot going to Park Rapids; No. 3 — Thief River Falls; No. 4 — Fergus Falls; No. 5 — Bemidji; and No. 6 — Detroit Lakes.

In first round tournament play in the upper bracket, the No. 1 seed receives a first round bye and will play the No. 4-5 winner in the semifinals, while the bottom bracket the No. 2 seed gets the bye and will play the No. 3-6 winner in the semifinals.

Miscellaneous

+ Mark Hagl, a sophomore runningback from Red Lake Falls, was named winner of the 1983 Northland community college football team coaches' award for his dedicated, inspiring work this fall, it was reported Saturday after the Northmen closed out the season with a 34-6 Northwest Division loss at the University of Minnesota-Crookston. It was also announced that lineman Wade Hruby of Thief River Falls and Steve Robinson of Westland, Mich. have been named offensive and defensive captains, respectively, of the 1984 Northmen.

+ Crookston, after a 23-14 regular season-ending win over Thief River Falls Thursday, will carry a 6-3 record into post-season Class A playoff action, including a current five-game winning streak, and that's where coach Les Drechsel figured his Pirates would be at this point. "Actually, we're pretty much right on schedule," he said after the win over the Prowlers. "I thought we'd be 6-3. I thought this game would have been for a playoff spot for both teams." The Prowlers, though, had eliminated themselves with a 3-5 record coming into the game. "They gave us a real tough ball game," Drechsel added. "They're a good team. They're much better than their 3-6 record indicates."

+ Mahnomen runningback Charlie Stock established a new school single-game rushing record when he gained 249 yards in 18 carries in Mahnomen's 33-14 football win over Perham Oct. 19. He also went over the 200-yard mark the following week in Tuesday's 14-12 loss at Warren. The two teams will meet again this Tuesday in a post-season Class B playoff game at Warren. The Ponies' win last week in a match-up of highly-rated unbeaten Class B rivals was the first Warren win over Mahnomen since 1978. The Indians were ranked No. 1 in the Associated Press poll coming into the game and the Ponies were No. 6 Stock, incidently had 171 yards on 31 carries against Thief River Falls earlier this fall, a 13-0 Mahnomen victory. Mahnomen, booted out of the Pine-to-Prairie Conference because of its domination of that league, may be joining the Heart O'Lakes Conference in football shortly. HOL officials will vote upon Mahnomen's entry into the Class B league at its Nov. 9 fall meeting. Heart O' Lakes members include Barnesville, Breckenridge, Frazee, Pelican Rapids and Perham.

NORTHLAND COMMUNITY COLLEGE runningback Kevin Roehl was sent airborne Saturday when he was knocked off his feet by University of Minnesota-Crookston cornerback Randy Angermeier in the first quarter of the Northwest Division football game played at Crookston. Roehl was stopped for a four-yard loss on the play. The Trojans beat the Northmen 34-6 to finish the 1983 season with a 7-1 record. Northland was just the opposite at 1-7.

Northland Beaten By Huggins, UMC 34-7 In Final 1983 Game

Incentive was a big factor Saturday in the University of Minnesota-Crookston vs. Northland community college football game. In the first half, when the host Trojans thought they were playing for a Northwest Division title, they were pretty awesome. But in the second half, after ward had reached them that Brainerd was headed for an easy win over Fergus Falls that would give the pennant to the Red Raiders and not the Trojans, UMC lost its edge — but not the lead — in a 34-6 season-ending Sunflower Bowl victory over the rival Northmen.

Results left Brainerd and UMC with identical 6-1 Northwest Division records, but the Red Raiders earn a post-season Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) playoff berth because of a narrow 9-7 victory over the Trojans in the next-to-the-last week of the season. UMC needed to combine a win over Northland with a Fergus Falls upset of Brainerd to gain the playoff berth, but the Red Raiders were easy 37-0 winners over the Spartans Saturday.

UMC coach Jim Sims agreed the Trojans' second half performance didn't match the impressive first half showing, and the fact that Brainerd had a 20-0 lead over Fergus Falls at the time had a lot to do with it.

"We played well in the first half, but the (Brainerd-Fergus Falls) score started to leak down. I'm sure that affected things."

In the first half it was the quickness of sophomore quarterback Jeff Standell (East Grand Forks) and the speed of freshman tailback Luther Huggins (Miami, Fla.) that wrecked havoc with the Northland defense. Strandell scrambled out of trouble on several hard rushes by the Northmen as he turned probable losses into demoralizing (for Northland) gains. All Huggins did was score four touchdowns and rush for 162 of his 268 yards in the first half as the Trojans opened up a 27-0 lead.

Huggins carried 34 times for his big yardage, including four tries at a 1,000-yard season in the final minute of play before falling just short of that milestone.

"Huggins was the difference, acknowledged Northland coach John Helley. "Give him the credit. He is some kind of fast."

"Actually, we played about as well as we have all year," mentioned Helley. "We came over here as the underdog, and they definitely have a superior team."

Northland finished the year 1-6 in the MCCC, 1-7 overall.

UMC took advantage of a strong wind to score quickly when Northland punter Bob Rockwood could get just 21 yards out of a kick into the wind at the end of the first offensive series for the Northmen, setting the Trojans up at the Northland 36-yard line. Six plays later Huggins went through the middle standing up from one yard out with 3:44 gone.

Four plays later a fumbled Northland snap was recovered by Jerome Stock of the Trojans at the 35-yard line of the Northmen. Huggins scored eight plays later when he took a quick pitch from Strandell and used his speed to beat Northland defenders to the left corner of the end zone with 8:02 remaining in the first quarter.

An exchange of fumbles gave UMC the ball at the Trojans' 40-yard line with 1:52 left in the opening quarter and Huggins this time bounced off tackles in the middle to score on a four-yard run as the horn sounded. That touchdown, which made it 20-0, was set up on back-to-back scrambles by Strandell that netted 7 and 28 yards to the four-yard line.

That score stood until Huggins broke off a 45-yard touchdown run with 1:07 to play in the first half. It capped an eight-play, 79-yard drive as he went through the middle, cut to his left and shifted around Northland defenders.

Second half was really anticlimatic. Although Huggins tacked on another 104 yards to his total, 76 of them came on two carries. Otherwise he was held pretty much in check by the Northland defense, headed by Thief River Falls sophomore linebacker Eric Bondy.

"We made some adjustments, and I think we played some pretty good football in the second half," said Helley. "I thought Bondy did an excellent job for us on defense."

Northland wasted a scoring opportunity late in the third quarter when Todd Stokke of the Northmen recovered a fumbled UMC punt reception at the Trojans' 5-yard line, but then turned right around and lost it on a first-snap fumble at the four.

There wasn't any second half scoring until Huggins sparked a nine-play, 85-yard drive with runs of 46 and 30 yards that led to a three-yard touchdown run through the middle by John Halland with 11:40 remaining in the game.

Northland spoiled UMC's shutout bid in unlikely fashion at the end when a 54-yard pass-and-lateral play finished off an 11-play, 99-yard drive. It was a fourth-and-four situation from the Northland 46-yard line when quarterback Steve Blanc hit runningback Kevin Roehl with a screen pass over the middle. Roehl reached the UMC 25-yard line before the Trojans' Todd Klein caught him from behind. But before hitting the turf, Roehl lateralled to Rockwood, who was trailing the play, and the sophomore from Fargo completed the touchdown play with just 54 seconds left.

"Our touchdown was an indication of the kind of team this was," reflected Helley. "They're good football players; they're smart football players, thinking all the time. There just aren't enough of them."

Northland's 22-man roster was far short of matching UMC's 50-to-60 players.

It was a bittersweet ending for Sims, the former Lincoln high school coach, and the Trojans, who were ranked No. 4 in the NJCAA national rankings before losing to Brainerd. "They ended on a winning note," pointed out Sims, trying to sound positive about the situation. "It's been a super year. Sure, your're disappointed you aren't going anywhere, but it was still a good year."

John Schmitz, John Helley...

Head Football Coaches Resign

Lincoln high school and Northland community college football teams not only both closed out their 1983 football season with losses to Crookston opponents last week, but the Prowlers and Northmen both also lost their head coaches in the process.

John Schmitz of the Prowlers and John Helley of the Northmen both announced publicly that they were stepping down, although it was general knowledge that both coaches would be calling it quits at the end of the just-completed season.

Schmitz has been head coach of the Prowlers four years. He succeeded Gene Jurgens just prior to the start of the 1980 season when Jurgens resigned in late August to accept a job opportunity in Fergus Falls. Schmitz had served as an assistant coach on the Thief River Falls staff dating back to 1966, first under Jim Sims, then Jurgens.

Schmitz' Prowlers were always competitive, but struggled in the won-lost department, going 8-28 over the past four years. Thief River Falls was 5-4 in 1980; 0-9 in 1981, which included three forfeit losses because of a teacher's strike here; 0-9 in 1982; and 3-6 in 1983.

"It's time to let somebody else try to turn the program around," explained Schmitz.

Helley, too has been coaching here four years, succeeding Irv Smith as head coach of the Northmen for the 1980 season. He served as an assistant coach under Smith in 1979.

And like Schmitz' Prowlers, Helley's Northmen found it difficult to collect wins, going 6-26-1 over the past four years. They were 1-7-1 in 1980; 3-5 in 1981; 1-7 in 1982 and 1-7 again in 1983.

Schmitz will remain on the Lincoln high school teaching staff. Helley, a Navy veteran living in Plummer, will apparently severe his ties with Northland, which was just a part-time coaching position. And that was what prompted his resignation, he said.

"I think I'm through," explained Helley. "I'm 99 per cent sure I'm done. I think they have a fine football program here, but they need the attention of a full-time coach, someone who can be in school with the kids and give them attention nine moths of the year. A lot of coaching goes on during the day when you have contact with the kids. 'I just don't feel I can do enough for the kids on a part-time basis."

Helley says he will use the free time to complete a book-writing project he has been working on.

Crookston Central beat the Prowlers 23-14 Thursday night, while the University of Minnesota-Crookston defeated the Northmen 34-6 Saturday afternoon to close out the 1983 season for both Thief River Falls football teams.

Agassiz Refuge Will Be Opened To Deer Hunting

This fall's 1983 deer hunting season at the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge will be held in accordance with Minnesota Department of Natural Resources regulations, remind refuge officials.

Agassiz, as well as the Elm Lake, Eckvoll, and Mudlac Wildlife Management Areas are in Zone 2, Area 203 in which a nine-day legal buck and antlerless permits have already been mailed to successful applicants thus anyone unsuccessful in obtaining an antlerless permit must hunt bucks only. Within Area 203 only 639 of the available 750 antlerless permits were applied for and issued.

During the season, Agassiz headquarters will not be a check station for deer taken in Permit Area 203 as it has been in previous years. All deer taken in Permit Area 203 must be registered at any check station within Zone 2.

Entire refuge will be open to deer hunting except two closed areas which will be posted with closed area signs. These closed areas surround the refuge headquarters and a maintenance center located approximately five miles east of headquarters. Both areas are also clearly marked on the refuge leaflets.

Hunters may enter the refuge at 5 p.m. and must leave the refuge as soon as possible after sundown. Main road system on the refuge will be open to motor vehicles. Dike and trail use will be restricted to foot traffic and non-motorized cars. and carrying devices for transportating deer. Non-motorized boats may be used on ditches and pools. Use of snowmobiles, three-wheelers, trail bikes and all off-road vehicles is prohibited on Agassiz.

Refuge auto tour route will be closed for the duration of the hunting season.

Region 8AA Meet . . .

Lumberjacks Win In Cross Country

Bemidji boys and Alexandria girls were winners Thursday in the 1983 Region 8AA high school cross country meet held at Fergus Falls.

Top two teams and top five individuals in both the boys and girls races earned spots in the state meet this weekend in Minneapolis.

Bemidji boys finished with 34 points, followed by Alexandria with 66, St. Cloud Apollo 96, Fergus Falls 117, St. Cloud Tech 132, Rocori 153, Detroit Lakes 182, Park Rapids 186, Moorhead 230, Brainerd 233, Thief River Falls 244, Little Falls 364, Melrose 387 and Sauk Rapids 440.

Individual winner was Mark Lingle of Park Rapids with a 15:55 clocking. Other state qualifiers were Jon Cameron, Steve Lumbar and Tim Seck of Bemidji, plus Tom Wagner of St. Cloud Apollo.

Alexandria girls finished with 33 points, followed by St. Cloud Tech with 59, Rocori 130, Thief River Falls 160, St. Cloud Apollo 172, Little Falls 174, Bemidji 190, Sauk Rapids 225, Fergus Falls 229, Park Rapids 261, Brainerd 278, Melrose 330 and Moorhead with an incomplete team.

Pam Urbanski of St. Cloud Tech was the winner in 11-14, and other state meet qualifiers were Julie Shorter of St. Cloud Tech, Bobbi VanAmber and Snuffy Alto of Alexandria, plus Brenda Dickman of Little Falls.

Thief River Falls coach Lynn Dyer was satisfied with the Prowlers' performances, especially the fourth place finish for the girls — their highest finish ever at the Region 8AA meet.

"I was really proud of our girls," he reported. "They looked great. We've had a good effort from them all year long, but they really put it all together here. The competition was very tough, but they went out hard and beat some very good teams."

"Our boys ran about as well as I could expect," added Dyer. "We just don't have the strong team we've had the past few years. Even though we have all juniors and seniors running (except one), only two of these kids ran varsity last year."

Senior Kevin Kezar paced the Thief River Falls boys with a 29th place finish in 18:12. Senior Paula Wilkens led the Thief River Falls girls with a 24th place effort in 12:38.

City League Hockey Teams Have Meeting

Teams must have a representative at the meeting.

Skippers Lose Final Contest

Football season ended Friday afternoon for Middle River with a 42-14 North Tri-County Conference loss at Fisher, the Skippers' eighth straight setback after a season-opening 14-6 win over McIntosh-Winger.

Those two wound up sharing last place in the nine-team conference standings with 1-7 league records. Rest of the North Tri-County Conference teams finished their regular season schedules earlier in the week.

Middle River trailed just 22-14 through three quarters, but Fisher's John Meichsner scored three times in the final period on runs of 60, 25 and 38 yards to break it open.

"Until the fourth quarter, it was a good game," reported Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "I was pleased with the way the game went, except for the way it ended in the fourth quarter."

A big part of the problem, explained Sparby, was that injuries took John Scheef and Darrin Peterson out of the defensive line on the right side, and that's where Meichsner ran for all three of his touchdowns after being held in check for three quarters.

A number of younger Skippers were used by Sparby as he looked ahead to the 1984 season. He labled 1983 a disappointment. "Last half of the season was extremely disappointing," he said.

FAMILIAR SIGHT during Thursday's Thief River Falls-Crookston high school football game at Prowler Field was scenes like this, with the penalty flag on the ground and officials taking over the violation while players on both sides awaited the call. There were 27 penalties called for 268 yards worth of infractions — 15 on the Pirates and 12 on the Prowlers. Awaiting the call on this fourth quarter flag were the Prowlers' Roger Gonsorowski (51), Jeff Langan (21), Dan Upham (70), Mark Johnson (69), Todd Ortloff (58) and Steve Wiskow (96), along with the Pirates' Bob Shimpa (33) and Dave Holmquist (53). Crookston won the game 24-13 to finish the regular season with a 6-3 record, while the Prowlers fell to 3-6.

Pirates Hold Off Prowlers 23-14 To Earn Post-Season Playoff Spot

Crookston's offense scored the first three times it had the ball, then the defense came up with a game-saving goal line stand at the end of the first half Thursday as the Pirates held off Thief River Falls 23-14 in a season-ending high school football game at Prowler Field.

Season-ending for the Prowlers, that is. The win earned Crookston a post-season berth, with the Pirates extending their 1983 season at least one more game as they travel to Park Rapids Tuesday for a 7:30 p.m. Class A playoff encounter with the Mid-State Conference champion Panthers.

It was all offense in the first half, with touchdowns scored on four of the first six possessions. But it was the Prowlers' failure to on a fourth down attempt from inside the Pirates' 1-yard line in the final minute of the first half that decided the outcome, according to both coaches.

"That was the big play," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz. "We win the ball game if we score there."

After falling behind 23-8, Thief River Falls appeared headed for a half-ending score to make it a one-touchdown game when a 34-yard pass from wide receiver Steve Wiskow, who caught a quick toss along the line of scrimmage from quarterback Mitch Samanko before throwing downfield to halfback Rick Spons on the right sidelines, gave the Prowlers a first down at the Crookston 6-yard line with 1:31 remaining.

But on a fourth down snap from inside the 1-yard line, fullback Scott Fowler was stopped for no gain in the middle with 21 seconds on the clock.

"If they would have scored there, it would have given them the momentum going into halftime," explained Crookston coach Les Dreshsel. "That changed the whole game around."

Instead, with both defenses tightening and a bundle of penalties slowing progress in the second half, that score stood until Thief River Falls got a final touchdown on a two-yard Tim Bottem run with 9:26 left in the game. But the try for the two-point conversion was stopped, leaving the Prowlers with a nine-point, two-score deficit.

There were a game-slowing 27 penalties called. Thief River Falls was tagged with 12 penalties for 103 yards, nine of them in the first half. Crookston was called for 15 penalties for 165 yards, 13 of them in the second half.

With the playoff berth as an incentive, Crookston was unstoppable at the beginning. The Pirates, needing a win to earn a post-season berth, gobbled up 68 yards in just eight plays on the game's first possession, capped by Mike Bang's two-yard dive that got him just over the goal line before he was shoved back with only 3:09 elapsed. Lined up for the conversion kick, Crookston promptly changed its mind when an encroachment penalty on the Prowlers moved the ball to the 1½-yard line. The Pirates took out the kicking team, went for the two-pointer and got it when quarterback Jeff Bigger ran the option to the right.

Thief River Falls wasted little time responding to the Crookston score as the Prowlers marched 67 yards in 14 plays on their first offensive possession. There was a 17-yard burst up the middle by Fowler and a 22-yard pick-up on a draw by bottem in the drive that ended with halfback Rick Spong taking a pitch to the right, then cutting sharply off tackle to score from the 3-yard line with 3:27 left in the first quarter. Same play took Spong around the right side on the two-point conversion for an 8-8 tie.

Offensive show continued with another Crookston touchdown on the ensuing possession. This time the Pirates ate up 75 yards on 16 plays leading to a one-yard touchdown run by Bigger, who ran the option to the left, cut up off tackle and just nudged the ball across the goal line with 10:04 remaining in the first half. Three Thief River Falls penalties aided the drive, including two 15-yarders. There was also an outstanding diving catch of a 23-yard Bigger pass by end Paul Biermaier at the Prowlers' 2-yard line. The Pirates were set back briefly on a procedure panelty, but Bigger reached the goal line on a fourth down snap — something that the Prowlers, as it was pointed out, failed to do later in the quarter. A repeat of the first Crookston conversion attempt — penalty on the Prowlers that enabled the Pirates to replace the kicking unit with a running play, found Bigger using the option to the right for the two-pointer.

"That was a big play, too," said Schmitz in reference to Bigger's fourth down touchdown run. "We just had too many penalties at the wrong time. We did some dumb things."

First possession that didn't result in a touchdown instead ended with a 28-yard Ryan Bakke punt to the Thief River Falls 43-yard line with 8:30 left in the first half, and the Pirates scored in eight plays as Bang came from the inside and went to his left on a three-yard scoring run with 4:57 to go. This time Jon Drechsel stayed on the field and kicked the extra point for that 23-8 cushion.

Crookston finished with 195 yards on the round, evenly spread among Bigger, Bang and Don Zammert, but only 61 of those came in the second half when the Pirates netted just three first downs.

"Our offense sputtered in the second half," admitted Drechsel, "but I think Thief River's defense had a little bit to do with that."

"We made a little adjustment on defense," acknowledged Schmitz. "Their option was killing us in the first half, but we defensed it a little different and shut it down in the second half."

Only real scoring opportunities in the second half belonged to the Prowlers. A nine-yard punt return by Bottem was aided by a 15-yard Crookston penalty on the play that set Thief River Falls up at the Pirates' 29-yard line near the midway mark of the third quarter. Bottem carried to the 26, but his impromptu lateral to center Roger Gonsorowski when he was trapped behind the line on a reverse wound up in a seven-yard loss on second down, and quarterback Mitch Samanko was sacked for a 10-yard line back to the 43 on third down to the Prowlers' scoring threat.

Another 15-yard Crookston penalty on the very next punt by the Pirates was tagged on to a 13-yard return by Bottem and began a Thief River Falls scoring drive from the Prowlers' 45-yard line. They scored in 14 plays, which included an 18-yard Semanko-to-Spong pass play to the Crookston 18-yard line on a fourth-and-seven call. Bottem cut off tackle on a pitch to the left for the touchdown from the Crookston 2-yard line with 9:26 to play. But Bigger came across to nail Spong before he got going on the two-point conversion try that would have narrowed the gap to seven points.

"I was happy with our defense," mentioned Dreschsel. "We've got some kids out there that played really well for us on defense."

"Frustrating. It was very frustrating," said Schmitz as the Prowlers closed out the year at 3-6, just the opposite as the Pirates' 6-3 mark.

Name Ranum To Hall Of Fame

Thief River Falls native Bruce Ranum was one of four Augusburg College alumni inducted into the school's Hall of Fame for men's athletics during recent Augusburg homecoming activities. They join 60 former recipients of the award since its establishment in 1973.

This year's inductees include Ranum, now living in Lakeville; Harold Aasen, Winger; Henry Chapman, Coon Rapids; and Harvey Peterson, Bloomington. They were honored at a Hall of Fame dinner and induction ceremony Oct. 20.

Augusburg Hall of Fame was formed to recognize individuals who have participated in the college's athletic history. To be chosen for the award the athlete must be an alumnus of Augusburg. Selection is based on performance in Augsburg athletics, service to the school and for civic and professional achievements and leadership.

Ranum, a member of the 1959 Lincoln high school state tournament consolation champion hockey team, is a 1964 graduate of Augsburg where he participated in hockey. He was a starter for the Auggies as a freshman. He was named Most Valuable Player, captain and member of the MIAC All-Conference Team. He also participated in track at Augsburg. After graduating, Ranum served in the Army as First Lieutenant, and since 1969 has been in sales with Baxter Travelnol Laboratories, Gaymar Industries, and presently with Northern Medical.

Aasen is a 1924 graduate of the Augsburg Academy (high school, closed in 1933). While at the Academy he participated in basketball and baseball. He was captain of the basketball team and pitcher for the baseball team. After attending Augsburg College, he left to develop Sioux Oil Company in Winger. Aasen is now retired, but his son Lynn, operates the company.

Chapman, a 1940 graduate of Augsburg College, has retired from a 36-year career in teaching, coaching and athletic directing. He served in the McVille, N.D., Pine River and Proctor school systems. Chapman was an offer in the Navy in World War II and served for 21 years in the Naval Reserve. While at Augsburg he played basketball.

Peterson, a 1952 graduate of Augsburg College, played football in the position of quarterback, and baseball. After graduation he joined his father in business, Clutch & Transmission. Peterson is now owner of this enterprise, called CATCO, with branches in Roseville, Bloomington, Rochester, Fargo, N.D. and Eau Claire, Wisc.

DNR NEWS

Department of Natural Resources says Minnesota communities should be aware that there is an award given by the National Arbor Day Foundation to honor outstanding urban forestry programs.

Tree City USA recognition is presented to those communities that are effectively managing their urban tree resources.

To be officially recognized and designated as a Tree City USA, communities must meet four standards: Each community must have a legally constituted tree board, a community tree ordinance, an active and comprehensive community forestry program supported by a minimum of $1 per capita, and an Arbor Day proclamation and public tree planting ceremony.

Many communities that have received this award have surpassed these requirements and are exhibiting innovative urban uses of trees, said DNR forestry officials.

Tree City USA award has helped many communities realize that trees are a valuable resource and that tree care and maintenance programs are important. Tree City USA also demonstrates that urban forestry programs receive public support for tree management; that urban forestry programs can be run with limited tax expenditures; and that a good urban forestry program is an investment in the economic, social, and physical well-being of a community.

Recipients of 1982 Tree City USA awards were Anoka, Austin, Brainerd, Coon Rapids, Duluth, Eden Prairie, Fergus Falls, Hopkins, Hutchinson, Kasson, Litchfield, Little Falls, Minneapolis, Mounds View, New Brighton, Oak Park Heights, Robbinsdale, Rochester, Sleepy Eye, St. Cloud, St. Louis Park, St. Paul and Winona. These communities were recognized by Governor Rudy Perpich in an award ceremony at the capitol on Minnesota's 1982 proclaimed Arbor Day.

Communities that wish to participate in the 1983 program must complete an application and send it to the state forester. Each application is then reviewed by the state forester and forwarded to the National Arbor Day Foundation. Winning communities receive a Tree City USA flag, a walnut-mounted plaque and signs to place at city entrances.

A PLAY THAT gave Thief River Falls' defense plenty of problems in the first half of Thursday's season-ending high school football game against Crookston operated like this as Pirates' quarterback Jeff Bigger ran the close-quarters option belly series with his runningbacks. Bigger would "ride" the backs for several yards before deciding whether to hand the ball off or keep it himself. Here, Bigger (partially hidden with the ball in his grasp) kept it after going with teammate Bob Shimpa through the left side for a nine-yard pick-up in the second quarter. Thief River Falls defenders pictured include Scott Jorstad (31), Todd Ortloff (58), Gary Cornell (63), Tim Kruse (87), Steve Wiskow (96), Dan Upham (70) and Scott Fowler (34). The Pirates beat the Prowlers 23-14 to earn a post-season playoff berth.

Cardinals Beat Rockets 31-24 In Playoff Opener On Saturday

First-ever venture into post-season play for the Plummer football team was a successful one Saturday as the unbeaten North Tri-County Conference champion Cardinals outscored Northern Lights Conference winner Kenndy 31-24 in a Nine-Man playoff game at Plummer.

Sporting a 9-0 record, Plummer will now move into the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) state quarterfinals Friday with a 7:30 p.m. game against Norman County West-Climax at Halstad. The Agassiz Valley North Champion Panthers reached the state quarterfinals with a 22-14 Saturday night victory over Top of the State Conference champion Argyle.

Plummer's running game, featuring strong blocking up front and hard-running ball carriers, staked the Cardinals to a 12-0 halftime lead and built an 18-0 margin before Kennedy tried to make a game of it at the end.

"Our offensive line did a super job," reported Plummer coach Gary Brantl. "We had a great night rushing, and they deserve the credit."

Troy Gustafson carried 19 times for 118 yards to lead the ground attack, with Mike Konickson, returning to the line-up after missing three starts with a hip-pointer, carried 24 times for 99 yards and Russ Fisher carried nine times for 68 yards.

Opening the holes for that trio were offensive linemen Tony Gerardy, center; Gary Torkelson, tackle; Karl Mattison, tackle; Gene Fisher, end; and Brian Fisher, end.

"That's been our game play all year long," explained Brantl: "run the football, control the line of scrimmage and avoid mistakes."

Plummer scored on its first possession of the game, with Russ Fisher going in from 13 yards out with five minutes remaining in the first quarter. The Cardinals also scored on their second possession when a 55-yard Tim Gagner pass to Gene Fisher carried to the Kennedy 1-yard line, and Gagner went into the end zone on the next snap with 2:12 left in the opening period.

That made it 12-0 at halftime, and Plummer began the second half with another first-possession score, a five-yard run by Konickson.

Kennedy got on the scoreboard before the third quarter ended on a 21-yard Scott Johnson touchdown pass to Tommy John Deere, but a Brian Fisher interception set up a 26-yard Gagner-to-Gustafson touchdown pass that rebuilt the Plummer lead to 25-8 with 7:38 remaining in the game.

Gustafson added a three-yard touchdown run with 1:12 left, with the final Kennedy score coming with just 11 seconds to go.

While the offense got most of the credit, the Plummer defense did it's part, too, noted Brantl. "Defensively I thought we played very well, especially in the first half."

DEFENSIVE EFFORTS by Jay Weiher (77) and Jim Dillon (34) of Northland community college brought down University of Minnesota-Crookston tailback Luther Huggins behind the line of scrimmage in the third quarter of Saturday's season-ending Northwest Division football game played at Crookston. Wade Hruby (66) of the Northmen trailed the play. Huggins lost one yard here, but he gained 268 yards for the day on 34 carries, including four first-half touchdowns, to lead the Trojans past the rival Northmen 34-6.

Brainerd Will Play Vermilion In Semifinals

Northwest Division champion Brainerd will host Northeast Division winner Vermilion Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in Minnesota Community College Conference state playoff semifinal football game.

Brainerd wrapped up the Northwest Division title Saturday with 37-0 rout of Fergus Falls, while Verilion beat Itasca 22-10 Friday in a match-up of Northeast Division leaders.

Vermilion beat Brainerd 16-15 earlier this year.

Winner of the Brainerd-Verilion game will take on the winner in a Southern vs. Central Division semifinal playoff encounter, also scheduled this week, in the MCCC state playoff finals Sat., Nov. 12.

Prowlers End Volleyball Schedule With 6-11 Mark

Lincoln high school volleyball coach Helen Anderson was more than satisfied with the effort, but disappointed in the results Thursday as the Prowlers closed out their 1983 regular season schedule on the losing end of an 18-10, 18-12 match at East Grand Forks.

"The kids really played well. Really, it was a good match. We just didn't win," said Anderson.

Thief River Falls finished 5-9 in dual meet competition, 6-11 overall, counting three [illegible] mid-season Northern Lights Invitational. Region 8AA tournament will be awaiting Thief River Falls Saturday at Moorhead. Pairings haven't yet been announced.

Thursday's match found Thief River Falls leading in the early going as the Prowlers began with a 7-4 and 9-5 first-game lead. East Grand Forks gained a tie at 10-10 and slowly accumulated the final eight points for the win.

Thief River Falls came back for a 7-4 deficit on three straight Missy Bondy service points in the second game for a 7-7 tie but fell behind again at 11-7. Kim Poole served two points to narrow the gap to 11-9, but that's as close as the Prowlers got.

"There were long volleys and good plays on both sides," explained Anderson, "but we just didn't get the points."

A senior rewarded with a starting spot for the first time since early in the season, Poole led the Prowlers with 10 service points. "She did an excellent job both on offense and defense," praised Anderson, who also cited the play of senior Nora Hushagen and sophomore Pauline Lindberg.

"I was very happy with the way the girls played, mentioned Anderson.

East Grand Forks won both preliminary matches — 18-8, 18-7 in the C squad encounter and 18-14, 18-4 in the junior varsity match.

Deer Hunters' Organization To Stress Safety

Minnesota Deer Hunters Association (MDHA), a statewide organization of 8,000-plus members and 32 chapters dedicated to deer and deer hunting in Minnesota, reminds all deer hunters and other firearms hunters of the following "Ten Commandments of Shooting Safety:"

1. Treat every gun with the respect due to a loaded gun.
2. Watch that muzzle. Carry your gun safely; keep safety on until ready to shoot.
3. Unload guns when not in use, take down or have actions open; guns should be carried in cases to shooting area.
4. Be sure barrel is clear of obstruction, and that you have ammunition only of the proper size for the gun you carry.
5. Be sure of target before you pull the trigger, know identifying features of game you hunt.
6. Never point a gun at anytime you do not want to shoot, avoid all horseplay.
7. Never climb a tree, fence, or jump a ditch with a loaded gun, never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle.
8. Never shoot a bullet at a flat, hard surface or water; at target practice be sure your backstop is adeuate.
9. Store guns and ammunition separately, beyond the reach of children.
10. Avoid alcoholic beverages, before or during shooting.

Minnesota Deer Hunters Association headquarters can be reached by writing to the MDHA at P.O. Box 413, Grand Rapids, MN 55744.

More moose are bagged in Minnesota during an average hunting season than in any other of the lower 48 states.

DNR hotline

1. What are the regulations in regards to winter regulations in the state parks?

All state parks are open for use year round, although some may not have facilities open. Contact the park manager at the park you wish to visit for more information.

Most parks have winter trails groomed for skiing or snowmobiling along with pit toilets. Some parks have camping facilities and a few have modern toilets winterized. An entrance permit is required on each vehicle and camping fees are collected. Also, a new law requiring a license for each skier has been passed by the legislature to maintain and groom ski trails. These licenses will be available at state parks and other places. Skiers are encouraged and advised that their support is essential to assure that this fund will grow to guarantee their trails will remain open. No other funds will be available for maintenance and grooming in the future. Merle DeBoer, regional parks supervisor.

2. Do I need to buy a separate permit to enter state parks during the winter months?

Annual motor vehicle permits are good throughout the calendar year. 1984 permits are one sale now and are valid through the rest of 1983 and through December 30, 1984. Bryce Anderson, regional naturalist.

3. Got a question, a complaint or a suggestion regarding how your natural resources are managed?

Supply-Side Economics: Two Years After

It has now been two years since the Economic Recovery Tax Act (ERTA) began to take effect and perhaps it is appropriate to take stock of its effect on our economic well-being.

Did the 25 per cent across-the-board cut in marginal tax rates work? Was supply-side economics everything it was cracked up to be? Or, was its critics predicted, did it make us all worse off than we were before?

Now, some might argue that it is unfair to judge the 1981 tax cut so soon. After all, the 25 per cent cut in rates was spread out over three years. The first cut was only five per cent in October 1981 and was overwhelmed by increases in the Social Security tax enacted by the previous administration. The second cut of 10 per cent was July 1, 1982 and only a few months ago, on July 1, 1983, did American taxpayers finally receive another 10 per cent cut for a total of 25 per cent.

This, of course, is a fair argument. President Reagan had originally asked for a 30 per cent cut in rates to begin January 1, 1981. Congress watered down the proposed tax cut and delayed its implementation. Yet, keeping this in mind, I believe we can begin to draw some conclusions about the effectiveness of tax cuts — supply-side economics.

During the 1980 presidential debate, former President Jimmy Carter predicted that the "Reagan-Kemp-Roth" proposal to cut taxes was the "most highly inflationary proposal that has been presented to the American people."

Two years after its partial enactment we find that inflation is down from its levels of 13.3 per cent in 1979 and 12.4 per cent in 1980 to an 16-year low of 2.6 per cent for the past 12 months.

The prime interest rate has fallen from 21.5 per cent — its highest level since the Civil War — to 11 per cent and is expected to fall further.

On the employment front, there are now 101.9 million Americans at work — more Americans with jobs than at any time in our history, wartime or peacetime. Since December, the economic recovery has created 2.9 million new jobs and continues to increase employment at the rate of 300,000 each month. (Not bad for the first two years of a tax cut that was supposed to cause a depression.)

For the median income family, this combination of lower inflation, lower taxes and more jobs means $3,200 more in purchasing power per family in 1983 than would be the case if past economic policies had continued. ($2,500 due to lower inflation and $700 due to lower federal taxes.)

Remember George McGovern's promise to give every American $1,000? Well, supply-side economics, a combination of low inflation, low tax policies, has already put $3,200 in the pockets of the average family this year — and will continue to do so every year in the future.

Other trends: More than 1.2 million new businesses incorporated over the past two years and research and development spending, a key factor in keeping American workers competitive in the world economy, jumped 16 per cent in 1981 and 17 per cent in 1982.

Looking at the big picture, the Gross National Product, the sum total of all goods and services produced, surged ahead 9.7 per cent in the second quarter of 1983 and jumped 7.9 per cent in the third quarter. And the stock market has weighed in with a strong vote of confidence climbing from 777 last August to over 1,200 hitting historic highs on a daily basis.

Economists like to look at a whole host of numbers in discussing the economy: the index of leading indicators, productivity, industrial production, etc. All those vital signs look good and are getting better. The number that impresses me the most is the fact that the median income family is $3,200 richer this year than it would have been without our "experiment" in supply-side economics. Based on that evidence, I'd say the experiment was a smashing success.

Now, some may still call tax cuts "voodoo economics." Maybe, it is. But I like it.

Investigations conducted by the U.S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour Division under the Fair Labor Standards Act during the 1981 fiscal year revealed $52.8 million in minimum wage underpayments due 396,000 workers and $74.5 million in overtime due 291,000 employees, according to the department's annual report.

Begin Drive To Build Home For Hjemkomst Ship

Red River Valley Heritage society has named two Moorhead businessmen co-chairmen of the Red River Valley heritage interpretive center fund drive.

Robert and James Stenerson, owners of Stenerson Lumber Co., Moorhead, will direct the campaign to raise money to build an interpretive center in Moorhead. The center, planned on 11 acres of original townsite land given by the city of Moorhead, will house the Hjemkomst ship and will be the home of the Red River Valley Heritage society and Clay county historical society.

The Hjemkomst is a replica Viking ship built by the late Bob Asp, a Moorhead junior high school counselor, and sailed last year to Norway by relatives and friends. Asp died of leukemia in December of 1980.

Architect Royce Yeater of Moorhead designed the center, planned on First av. N. near the Red river, to include 8,000 square feet for historical exhibits to interpret valley history. Yeater's plan also includes an auditorium, a lounge area with fireplace, office and storage space in the basement, and a museum shop.

Most imposing and unusual of the design of the building is the roof. From the center a fabric canopy roof will reach 105 feet to accomodate the Hjemkomst with its erect mast and yardarm. Rising like a sail from the rest of the building's roof, the fiberglass and Teflon bonded material will be light enough to illuminate the ship during the day. At night spotlights from the inside will shine through the fabric to make the interpretive center resemble a beacon.

"The roof will appear to glow, and provide a significant landmark to our community, representing a dream but being firmly anchored in Red river valley soil," Yeater told a meeting of the interpretive center's citizen advisory committee.

Gary Phillips, director of the heritage society, said the interpretive center will not be a museum. "The purpose is to teach us faith and to allay our fears. We can look at all our pioneers, our ancestors, who have faced challenges. They dealt with the frontier and they won. We must find out how they did it, and teach that to our young people."

Between his goal and plans made today is the cost: $3,765,000 for building and exhibits. Of that Gov. Rudy Perpich of Minnesota will ask the state legislature to appropriate $1 million in bonds. The city of Moorhead will contribute land and funding worth $475,000. Clay county has promised $50,000. The rest will come from the campaign for donations, totalling $2.2 million.

Thomas Miller, a professional fundraiser hired to coordinate the campaign, said he hopes enough of the money will be raised to allow building to start next spring.

"I think we all realize that to go on a campaign of $2.2 million we've got to get our act together," warned Willis Kingsbury, a Moorhead developer who is chairman of the building committee. "We will have people equipped to assist people, train people. We'll have tax people to assist donors. We'll be trying to accomplish our goal in the next 30 to 36 weeks."

Free Cancer Screening At Medicine Shoppe

Thief River Falls' Medicine Shoppe pharmacy will be part of a nation screening for colon-rectal cancer on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 10-12.

Often called, "the cancer nobody talks about" because of its location in the body, colon-rectal cancer is the second most common cancer in both men and women, following lung cancer. Unlike lung cancer, early colon-rectal cancer stymptoms aren't noticeable.

This form of cancer strikes 126,000 people yearly and contributes to the deaths of 55,000.

The screening kit given to people in November is a simple, painless test which is conveniently prepared at home. The test does not directly detect colon-rectal cancer. Instead, it can show trace amounts of blood in the stool which is the leading sign of colon-rectal cancer and related intestinal disorders.

The completed test is mailed to the AMC cancer research center in Denver, CO, for a free analysis, and results are returned directly to participants. People with a positive reading are mailed a second free screening kit for retesting to guard against the possibility of false positive readings. Any persons with a positive test are strongly urged to seek medical advice from their physician.

Tips Given For A Safe Halloween

Five million children are treated for poisonings each year in the U.S.; 80 per cent of those children are under the age of five.

Over the past 10 years, there has been a significant increase in the incidence of children who are poisoned on Halloween. Last year; however, in Minnesota there were no reports of poisoned candy.

"We want Halloween to be a safe holiday for all children," said Dr. Samuel Hall, medical director of the Minnesota poison control system (MPC-S). "So we need to remind all adults, and especially parents, about some common-sense guidelines for ensuring children's safety while trick or treating."

These guidelines have been developed in cooperation with the Minnesota department of education, U.S. consumer products safety commission and are being distributed in schools throughout the state. Some things to keep in mind include:

1: Feed your children before they go out trick or treating. They will be less likely to snack before you have a chance to inspect their candy.

2. Talk to your children about the importance of not eating their candy until you have had the chance to check it.

3. Parents should inspect all of the "goodies." Do not allow your children to eat anything that is in an unfamiliar packaging, is an unfamiliar product, is unwrapped, or looks homemade.

4. Limit the trick or treating area to your own neighborhood.

5. Give the children smaller trick or treating bags. Small bag filled with candy decreases the urge for children to go beyond their own neighborhood to collect more treats.

6. An adult should accompany all trick or treaters.

7. Adult accompanying the children should bring along some candy from home to give the children if they become hungry on their journey.

8. Leave before dark so that children will be home earlier. Darkness may add to the "spookiness" of Halloween but it also adds to the danger.

9. Trim Costumes and trick or treat bags with reflective tape. Wear light colored clothing.

10. All masks, wigs, beards should fit securely. Make sure they allow for full vision and won't slip over the eyes.

11. Garments should not drag on the ground because child may stumble. Avoid cumbersome outfits.

12. If your child carries accessories, such as toy guns or swords, make sure they are constructed of harmless material.

If any adult should suspect a problem or have a poison emergency on Halloween they should call the Minnesota poison control system immediately. Toll-free state WATTS number is 1-800-222-1222.

Published Twice A Week

THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES 20¢

Volume 72 (USPS 627-360) Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota Wednesday, November 2, 1983 Number 86

BEAUTIFUL BIRDS were these cock pheasants which paid a visit to residential Thief River Falls last Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Ruth Jensen noted the gaudy pair in her yard at 501 Duluth av. S. near the Dairy Queen on highway 32 and called the Times. The birds pulled a disappearing act (a common situation for pheasants) when the Times photographer arrived, but later reappeared and strolled around a two-block area extending north to the south edge of the Lincoln high school property. The reappearance afforded this Times photo but left the photographer and neighborhood residents who saw the birds wondering where they came from and where they went. Pheasants are no longer common in this area and these birds obviously escaped or were released in the immediate area recently.

Hospital Board Votes To Sell Ambulance Service

Unsuccessful in its efforts to obtain a $56,000 annual subsidy to maintain its current level of service, Northwestern Hospital association board of trustees voted 7-5 Monday evening to negotiate the final sale of the ambulance service to a private party.

In announcing the board decision Tuesday afternoon, hospital administrator Richard Spyhalski said the board had determined that sale of the service to a private party would cause the least financial hardship on both the hospital and Pennington county "while still providing a quality emergency transportation service to citizens of this area".

Pennington county board of commissioners had agreed earlier to increase the annual subsidy to $25,000 from the $12,132 granted in the current operating year, but the hospital administration had indicated it would have to cover , its anticipated operating losses with the subsidy or divest itself of the service.

Spyhalski said that an adhoc committee is being formed within the board of trustees to negotiate the sale of the ambulance service, and it is expected the sale will be completed by December 31 of this year when the current contract with the county expires.

Three private operators have already expressed an interest in purchasing the service, Spyhalski said. They include Life Star Systems of Hill City and Aitkin, Foreman Bus company of Miller, SD, and Jim Carlson of Sioux Falls, SD. Life Star operates ambulance services at its two locations in Aitkin and Hill City. Foreman operates several ambulance services and Carlson has been involved in contract transportation for the Veterans Administration in Sioux Falls, Spyhalski noted.

The hospital committee will now further publicize the sale of the service and will consider offers from other prospective buyers, the administrator said. Spyhalski added that he considered the negotiations with the county board of commissioners to have been very appropriate over the past months and that he and the board of trustees has the highest regard for the county board in its decision regarding inability to fund the full request for subsidy.

While the hospital would very much like to continue operation of the ambulance service, the administrator said, he believes that a private operator could well provide a very high level transportation service. He said the hospital would work with a private 25-Year Policeman Retires . . .

Swanson Prepared But Never Used Gun on Duty

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Sgt. Irving Swanson has retired from a 25-year career in law enforcement during which he was an avid competitive pistol shooter but never had to fire his weapon once in performance of his duties. And he likes it that way.

"I started with the Thief River Falls police department on June 6, 1958, at 12 noon," he recalls quite vividly. "It was a couple of years later that I realized I was carrying a gun and couldn't hit anything with it, and I got to thinking that I better learn because some time I might have to use it."

The time never came, fortunately, but the initial target practice presented a challenge, and fostered an interest which continued to grow. Over the years Swanson has accumulated a number of trophies and plaques, served in a number of capacities encouraging competitive shooting and safety, and had a barrel of fun punching holes in paper or clanging slugs off metallic targets.

And while many competitive shooters give up the sport at age 40 or so when the hand and eye coordination isn't what it once was, Swanson shot his best competitive score of his life last year at age 59. He scored 272 out of a possible 300 to place second in the sharpshooter class of the Minnesota Police and Peace Officers association state shoot.

Swanson dismisses his accumulation of trophies as incidental to activity. "I started shooting in 1962 and

AFTER 25 YEARS with the Thief River Falls police department, during which he won a number of trophies in handgun shooting competition, Sgt. Irving Swanson has retired from law enforcement. Now he can spend more of his time in competitive shooting, and one of his first retirement activities will be to participate in an international metallic silhouette match in Arizona. Some of his trophies and plaques are shown above.

St. Hilaire's Election Tues.

St. Hilaire's city election will be held Tuesday, with the polls open from 4 to 8 p.m. in the city hall. All three incumbents whose terms will be expiring have filed for reelection.

Voters will have the choice of either writing in names of their choices to represent them on the city council, or voting to reelect Mayor Earl Frazer for another two year term, and council members Karen Young and-or Dennis Mills for four-year terms.

City Election Interest Centers On City-Wide Races

Interest in the Thief River Falls city election Tuesday centers on the two races where all of the city voters will have a chance to cast their ballot for one of the candidates. Mayor Bob Carlson is opposed by Dave Strong as a write-in candidate and alderman at large J. J. Womack is opposed by Glenn Espe for that position.

Only one race has developed among the three alderman positions open within the city's wards. Veteran alderman Ambrose Wysoski is opposed in the third ward by Tony Madunich. First ward alderman Milan Borsheim and fifth ward alderman Clayton Restad are unopposed in their reelection bids.

Polls for the election will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the following locations: Ward I, Northrop school; Wards II and III, city auditorium; Ward IV, Knox school; and Ward V, Franklin school.

Local WCTU Hears Report Of State Convention

Report of the Minnesota Women's Christian Temperance Union state convention held in Wannaska, was given at meeting of the local union held October 28, at the Riverside Terrace community room.

Of special significance were the recommendations submitted at the convention by National President Mrs. Kermit S. Edgar. She recommended the rededication to the education of the nation's youth to the harmful effects of beverage alcohol, narcotic drugs and tobacco by making films, filmstrips, and printed materials available to schools, churches and the news media. She also suggested that subscriptions to the monthly magazine, "The Union Signal" be given to public officials, local educators and professional persons.

To effectively combat the sale of beverage alcohol and other narcotic drugs, Mrs. Edgar stressed attending council or town meetings and expressing opinions when opportune; and to write to senators, congressmen and state legislators asking for support in combating the use of alcohol and drugs.

In order to continue the work of the WCTU, Mrs. Edgar stated that funds are needed and that new recruits are necessary. She urged that each union organize a union where there are none.

State President Pearl Loe of Wannaska presided at the state meet. In her address to the group, she compared "The Good Old Days," to the present time, noting the advancement since that time. "People then, had a vision. They were looking to the future and as a result progress changed circumstances." She traced the crusade of women against alcoholic beverages from 1873 in Ohio, to the organization of the WCTU in St. Paul in 1875 and to the present, saying that the WCTU today faces the same challenges.

She emphasized each word in the Women's Christian Temperance Union, saying that although it was a women's organization, men are admitted as honorary members. In stressing the word, Christian, she read Prov. 3:5-6, the year's theme verses, and Phil. 4:5-7 and 9. For Temperance, she gave Frances Willard's definition, "Moderation in things that are good and abstinence from things that are harmful," and Webster's "Moderation in action, thought or feeling." She noted that the WCTU believes that total abstinence is the only safe way of avoiding alcoholism.

In the last word, "Union," which means oneness, Mrs. Loe stated, "We are banding together for a purpose, not as a social club, but as an organization to make our world a better place to live, because we are concerned. We must do everything in our power to build a generation of people who do not drink. How will be meet that challenge? As negative, as indifferent, as a defeatist, or with a positive attitude, saying, "Here Am I, Send Me."

At the memorial services for members who had died during the year, those from District 7 North, which includes Thief River Falls, were Mrs. Minnie Mellem, Thief River Falls; Luella Bjorkman, Roseau; Mrs. Olga Peterson, Warren; Mrs. Florence Norberg, Crookston; and Martin Jacobson and Arthur Gunderson, honorary members, both of Wannaska.

Banquet speakers were "Mom" Poston, chairman of the Youth Temperance camp; Juanita Whisler, national promotion secretary; and Rev. Ron Becklund pastor of the Riverside Lutheran church in Wannaska, where the convention was held.

Local delegates to the convention were Valborg Hanson and Elaine Ose.

Leading the devotional meditation at the local meeting was Mrs. Olga Larson. She read Rom. 13:13-14. In referring to the work of the WCTU, said that total abstinence is not a new thought as references to abstinence are made in the Bible. She cited references by Solomon to his people, of the Lord to Aaron and Moses and of the angel to Zacharias, regarding John the Baptist who would neither drink wine or strong drink.

Read to the local group was the article from the Red Lake Falls Gazette: "A teenager talks: Alcohol can destroy the entire family." written by Theresa Teed, Plummer high school student. She noted the five stages of intoxication: Happiness, excitement, confusion, stuper and unconsciousness. In addition to the easy availability of alcoholic beverages she said that peer pressure was the teenager's worst enemy. The article in its entirety was read by Mrs. Hildur Lian.

A birthday card was signed for Olga Larson, whose 91st birthday was October 30. A potluck lunch concluded the afternoon.

Set Education Week Events Nov. 13-19

American Education week in Thief River Falls November 13-19 will open with a distribution of tokens of appreciation from the sponsoring American Legion and Auxiliary to all area school faculty members on November 14. Post commander and auxiliary president will handle the distribution.

Open houses at the local schools are being arranged during the week, according to Robert Reeve, Americanism chairman for Ecklund-Holmstrom Post 117 in Thief River Falls and education chairman of the Minnesota department of the American Legion.

The week has also been proclaimed by Mayor Bob Carlson who noted that the public school is critically important to our American way of life and "the concept of a free and equal education is in the American tradition and the foundation of our nation's strength".

The mayor added that the students of today are the leaders of tomorrow and that everyone has the responsibility to support the public schools. He urged all citizens to reaffirm their commitment to improving and supporting education at all levels, translate the commitment into action by visiting the local schools and donating time and talent to help make the public schools even better.

Genetics Is Subject Of Pastoral Meet

Genetic decision making within the context of pastoral care is the topic of an upcoming conference jointly sponsored by the March of Dimes birth defects foundation (MOD) and American citizens concerned for life (ACCL). Day-long conference, to be held on November 17 at the Radisson South Hotel, is intended for religious leaders and pastoral counselors of all denominations. Conference is entitled "The pastoral bridge: Genetics and families."

Genetic decision making has become more complex in recent years. Advances in medical genetics and in medical technology now give many more options to individuals and couples at risk of producing children with genetic defects. Pastoral caregivers will have the opportunity to learn more about the process of genetic counseling, through which couples are made aware of the disease or disorder in question, the risk of having a child with the condition, and the alternatives that are medically and legally available.

More importantly, participants will be encouraged to supplement this technical assistance through counseling that enables individuals and couples to engage in their deliberations within an ethical and spiritual perspective. Support of a pastoral counselor is especially needed whenever the morality of one's choice is questionable.

MOD and ACCL hope that representatives of all religious persuasions will take advantage of this unique conference. Additional information and registration forms are available from the MOD (861-3261) or ACCL (925-4395).

Project 120 Is Announced By Legislators

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer and Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls this week announced the schedule for the annual Project 120 program at the State Capitol next session. Project 120 gives qualifying high school students the opportunity to study the state's policy-making process first-hand.

"I was certainly happy to hear that Project 120 would be getting off the ground so soon again," Stumpf said, "since it is a worthwhile program that lets high school juniors and seniors participate more directly in the legislative, judicial and state administrative processes that govern much of their lives."

Project 120 is an annual program that brings the students to the Capitol for a week-long learning experience on state government and politics. Students are given the opportunity to get a closer look at the inner workings of the process and to meet with the key decision-makers to discover how and why public decisions are made. The students observe floor sessions, committee meetings and Supreme Court hearings and visit state departments and resource centers.

"I understand that Project 120 will begin January 15 and run concurrently with the legislative session which begins March 6 for a 10-week period," Sparby said. "Project 120 is sponsored by Urban Concerns Workshop, a non-partisan political education organization dedicated to educating students on this important process."

The program, which ends April 8-13, costs each participant $100 and includes meals, lodging, special events and transportation. Scholarships are available based on need, with the application deadline set for November 22.

For more information on Project 120, contact high school social studies teachers or Urban Concerns Workshops at 1821 University Avenue, Suite 222, St. Paul, 55104 or call (612) 645-0653.

Swanson Never Needed To Use Gun On Duty

attended about six shoots a year," he said. "I have been at every Minnesota state shoot for the past 20 years. Somewhere along the way a guy has to pick up a few trophies and they just sort of pile up after awhile."

Best competitive year for Swanson was in 1968 when he classified as sharpshooter with the National Rifle association. He presently shoots in the police expert class.

Chairman of the shoot committee of the Red River Valley Peace Officers association for eight years, Swanson also served as president of the association which includes an area two counties wide on both sides of the Red river from the Canadian border to Wahpeton-Breckenridge and also includes some Canadian members. The association has a large membership since anyone who has a connection with law enforcement can belong, including clerks, dispatchers, county attorneys and others.

Swanson served on the shoot committee of the Minnesota Police and Peace Officers association as northwestern Minnesota representative. He is certified as a classroom instructor for continuing education and was a member of the Association of Training Officers of Minnesota. He is also a certified firearms instructor with the Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension after completing a one-week course.

Born eight miles north of Thief River Falls and a 1940 graduate of Lincoln high school, Swanson said he never had to ask for a job. Someone always asked him if he wanted to work for them. So it was when he was employed by Fred Mittelstadt and Darrell Wood at their Mobil Oil station that he was encouraged to take the local police department exam. He passed it, was hired and spent the next 25 years on the force, being advanced to sergeant in 1970.

Irv and his wife Darlene have reared four children. Larry is married and living just outside of Thief River Falls; Lee is serving in the navy in Bermuda; Marsha is married to Richard Quigley and lives in Thief River Falls; and Loren is at home. The Swansons also have 10 grandchildren.

COLLETTE THUNE of Happy Acres 4-H club was the recipient of the Judge Kjos award for clothing, the Danforth Foundation "I Dare You" award and the Fashion Revue award during the annual Pennington county 4-H awards night program at city auditorium on Thursday.

Swanson has had a long-standing interest in scouting and was both cubmaster and scoutmaster of packs and troops at Trinity Lutheran church. He served on the Pack 60 committee for many years and in 1979 assisted with the formation of Explorer Post 200, a group of boys and girls with law enforcement interest. He intends to continue his association with that group and to put more time into the project. For three years he also served on the board of the Lake Agassiz council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Certified as a youth firearms training instructor, he has been active in conducting those programs here over the years. He is also a past president and presently secretary of the Pennington county sportsmen club.

In the four years the Minnesott Silhouette association has been in existence, he has been active in that organization. He presently serves as state president and the local chapter will host the annual meeting of the state association here on January 14.

Swanson says he has seen a cycle of attitude toward law enforcement during his 25 years in uniform. The pendulum has swung from a situation of respect for law enforcement officers at the time he joined the force to a period of defiance, especially by young people, about midway through his service. Now there seems to be an increase in the public respect for law enforcement again.

The only time in his 25 years of service when he unholstered his gun on duty was one time when he and other officers had seen that the driver of a car they had stopped also possessed a gun. But the situation was resolved without any shots being fired through simple conversation.

"Time is almost always on your side," Swanson said of law enforcement service. "There are times when people are trying to start something, to create an incident, to goad you into taking some inappropriate action. If you don't panic, just keep on talking and let things run their course, pretty soon there isn't any dispute any more. It's when you try to rush things that you get in trouble."

"Swanny" is going to try not to rush things for awhile. One of his first priorities during retirement is to spend five days taking part and watching the international silhouette match at the Black Canyon range near Tucson, AZ, in November.

Hospital Board Votes To Sell Ambulance

purchaser to assure a smooth transition in ownership but that he expects a private operator to locate the service in facilitiees other than the hospital.

Spyhalski said he looks on ambulance service as a form of health insurance and it is difficult to speculate on the value of comparative response time of a hospital-based service versus a privately-based service. He said he would also expect a private operation to seek a public subsidy in order to provide the service here.

In its earlier presentation to the county board, the hospital projected expense of the ambulance service in 1984 to be $172,266 and patient revenue to be only $88,107, leaving a loss of $86,159. If 80 per cent of the indirect expenses of the service ($18,040) were deducted as probably existing whether the service is operated or not, and if employee replacement saved $10,000, the county subsidy of $56,000 as requested would still result in a $4,119 operating loss.

Presently the hospital ambulance service operates with six full-time trained attendants, all of whom have now passed their emergency medical technician and paramedic tests. It is expected that a private service will have a maximum of three full-time people, all of whom would likely have other duties when not on ambulance runs.

Spyhalski said a private service would have to assure the hospital it would have a paramedic personnel before a sale would be considered. All three of the initial prospective buyers have given that assurance.

Method of determining a buyer has not been decided, the administrator added, except that the equipment owned by the hospital would not be sold for less than its current value. Spyhalski placed the depreciated value of equipment — which includes three vehicles and specialized equipment — at $57,000.

Travel Panel Advertising Funds Boosted

Tourism, travel information and a healthy economy go hand in hand. Travel information kiosks located at 15 rest areas along Minnesota's highways link them together and create added income for state road improvements, said Commissioner Richard P. Braun, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

"In addition to providing a free service to tourists," he said, "the kiosks are a good way for local businesses to get their message across to the traveling public."

Mn-DOT provides space at the rest areas for the information kiosks, as authorized by the legislature. Heritage Communications, Inc., St. Paul, builds and maintains them, sells advertising space to local businesses and returns a percentage of the revenues to the Minnesota highway user tax distribution fund.

Advertising space for restaurants, resorts, campgrounds, hotels, motels, service stations and local attractions is provided. Included are map displays, travel information and safety tips.

Selling advertising space in the kiosks to private businesses provided $2,718 in revenues for the state during the fiscal year ending June 30.

Revenues generated for the state the previous year were $462. Although some information kiosks were in use for only part of that year, the revenue increase is still significant, Braun said. "It's nearly six times that of 1981, the first year of operation. I think we'll see even more significant increases in the future."

The program was recommended by the Federal highway administration as a way to conform with the Federal highway beautification act of 1965 and provide information to the traveling public.

When completed, it will include information displays at a majority of rest areas on Minnesota's interstate and trunk highway system.

State To Get Increase In Surplus Food

Governor Rudy Perpich has received word from Agriculture Secretary John R. Block that Minnesota will receive a significant increase in allotment of surplus cheese and milk from the U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) for distribution to low-income families.

Perpich said the state expects to receive increased surplus USDA cheddar cheese and non-fat dry milk in bulk form in November. Packaging and distrubition should occur in December, Perpich said.

Normally Minnesota receives a monthly allotment of 630,000 pounds of cheese, 105,000 pounds of non-fat dry milk and 190,000 pounds of butter.

Increase will mean an additional 800,000 pounds of cheese and 300,000 pounds of non-fat dry milk each month. Minnesota's allocation of surplus butter will not be increased, the USDA said.

Both Gov. Perpich and Barbara Beerhalter, commissioner of the Minnesota department of economic security which administers the surplus food distribution program, had requested additional allotments from the USDA to handle the state's surplus food needs.

Perpich said the increase was necessary because the original allotment only would have served 150,000 of Minnesota's 220,000 households which traditionally benefit from the surplus commodity program.

The event will be conducted from 9 p.m. November 18 to 7 a.m. November 19 under sponsorship of the Thief River Falls Jaycee Women chapter.

Members of the Jaycee Women as well as rink guards will be in attendance throughout the skateathon and free refreshments will be served. Registration is $3 per person and participants must have obtained at least three pledges to be eligible. Pledge sheets are available at local schools, churches, radio stations, the Times and The Place.

Skaters are eligible for prizes based on the money they raise through pledges. Persons may win more than one prize by obtaining pledges in an amount equal to the amount required for each. Pledges are based on a stated amount per mile skated and are collectable after the skateathon.

News Council Reviews Star And Trib Case

Minnesota news council found recently that the 'Minneapolis Star and Tribune' did not act irresponsibly and unreasonably in publishing the name and city of residence of a swindle victim who had specifically asked the paper not to be identified."

The victim, a 55-year-old woman from Brooklyn Center, was one of 11 victims who complained last February to the St. Louis county attorney's office about being swindled by a "fortune teller" operating in the Duluth area.

On February 21, the newspaper published an article about the case, naming the woman and two women from the Duluth area as victims. Among other things, the article described the highly unusual manner in which the victims were duped into turning their money over to the fortune teller to have it "cleansed of evil."

Complaint was brought to the council by assistant St. Louis county attorney Mark S. Rubin who, at the request of the Brooklyn Center victim, also asked the paper not to publish her name.

At an August 5 hearing before the council, Rubin contended that publication of the victim's name was unnecessary and needlessly caused great embarrassment, humiliation and mental anguish to her. He also argued that the publication of the names of victims in such instances discourages victims from cooperating with prosecuting authorities and prejudices prosecution of other cases in the future.

Frank Wright, 'Star and Tribune' managing editor, told the council it was the newspaper's policy to publish names of crime victims in such cases, assuming that there is no overriding reason weighing against publication. He said the newspaper does not publish the names of rape victims nor the names of witnesses who law enforcement officials can demonstrate are in clear danger of bodily harm or property damage. In this case, he said, none of the exceptions to the general rule to publish names applied.

Rubin, however, contended that swindle victims should be treated no differently than victims of sex offenses.

In rejecting this complaint, nine of the 14 council members who heard the complaint noted that the newspaper is the recorder of public events. "If it yields to every request not to publish a name already part of the public record because it would be embarrassing to the person involved, the newspaper, particularly a large metropolitan daily as here, would not be fulfilling its expected role to keep the public informed," the council said. "To report the news with the persons involved remaining anonymous leaves the news incomplete, lacking a concreteness and, at times, raises questions about the credibility of the news reported."

The council also said it did not find Rubin's analogy to the rape victim cases "sufficiently compelling." The council noted that in this case "the victim's subjective embarrassment, though real and painful, does not attain that kind or degree where it can be said the newspaper exceeded a proper exercise of its discretion in electing to publish the victim's name. Prosecution of the fortune teller proceeded to a successful conclusion. Following its established procedures, the newspaper carefully considered the request not to publish and reasonably concluded that the grievant had not shown that an exception should be made to the general rule to publish."

Four council members, however, dissented from the majority and concluded that although the newspaper followed its guidelines, the victim "had already suffered unnecessary loss of dignity and privacy. Publication of her name added to this suffering." The four dissenters also said they felt that the newspaper may have given precedence in its February 21 story to the unusual nature of the swindling case over "judgment and taste." While the publication of the Brooklyn Heights' victim's name added a "local slant" to the newspaper's story, the four members said, "it did so at the emotional expense of the victim, and of no particular gain to the newspaper."

Another council member concurred in part with the majority, but dissented in part on the grounds that if any names of victims were to be published, all names should have been included in the story.

JAYCEE WOMEN'S carnival on Friday evening was declared a huge success by the organizers, who credited the many volunteers who participated. One of the popular events was the costume contest which offered cash prizes for top two costumes and balloons for all the winners. Judges Hardy and Mary Ann Hodge posed with their selections at the conclusion of the contest. Winners included: Brad Flynn as E.T. ($5 first place); Menalie Johnson as a princess ($2 second place); Jason and Jeremy Breiland as mice; Megan Mestery as a bee; Heather Torstveit as a rabbit; Tammy Mooney as an Indian; Christopher Kvarnlov as Big Bird; Billie Lynn Bergquist as a witch; Rochelle Hagnek as a housewife; and Darcy Caswell as a bear. Missing from the picture was Reid Frolland.

Pilot Safety Seminars Set For This Area

Two Minnesota pilot safety seminars are planned for northwestern Minnesota November 16 and 17, the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) aeronautics division announced.

First will be from 7 to 10 p.m. November 16 in Kiehle auditorium at the University of Minnesota-Crookston, US 2 and US 75 north. The program is co-sponsored by the university.

Second will be from 7 to 10 p.m. November 17 in Hagen hall auditorium (room 105) at Moorhead State university, Sixth avenue and 11th street. Program is co-sponsored by the university.

Both programs are the same and are co-sponsored by the Federal Aviation administration (FAA). Mn-DOT aviation representative Neil Hyink's topic is "Winter Wonderland." He also will explain Mn-DOT's new statewide computer weather terminal system and demonstrate how pilots may obtain instant weather information, weather graphics and computerized flight plans from the computer.

FAA air traffic controller, Joe Jerich, Minneapolis, will speak on "Terminal Control Area in Minneapolis" and "Rebuilding of the Air Traffic Control System." Verdon Kleimenhaugen, accident prevention specialist, Minneapolis general aviation district office, will discuss "Predicting the Unpredictable — Takeoffs and Landings."

There is no charge for these seminars and advance registration is not necessary. If additional information is desired, contact Hyink, Mn-DOT Aeronautics Division, St. Paul Downtown Airport (612) 296-1141.

Open Forum On Education At Moorhead Sat.

Congressman Arlan Stangeland will sponsor an open forum on education from 10:30 a.m. to 12 noon on Saturday at the Moorhead area vocational-technical institute, 1900 28th Avenue South. Participants are asked to use the west entrance.

"No task is more important for private citizens and government than the education of our young people," Congressman Stangeland said. "Unless our children are prepared to meet a rapidly changing world, all our work to improve and protect our Republic will have been for naught."

The Congressman noted that people have had time to digest the report by the national commission on excellence in education. Released this spring and entitled "A Nation at Risk," the report warned:

"Each generation of Americans has outstripped its parents in education, in literacy and in economic attainment. For the first time in the history of our country, the educational skills of one generation will not surpass, will not equal, will not even approach, those of their parents."

"Although the task of education is best handled at the state and local level, I am so concerned about this trend that I feel a special meeting should be held so parents, educators and other taxpayers can discuss this report," Congressman Stangeland said. "I hope that by discussing our problems, we can find ways to improve our schools."

Dr. Robert J. Brown, expert consultant to U.S. Secretary of Education T. H. Bell, will participate in the Moorhead forum.

Dr. Brown, who has served in several Washington posts, was a professor and director of graduate programs in school administration at the College of St. Thomas in St. Paul.

Soc. Security Men Here Tues.

Neil Rowe and Ted Hoverstén, field representatives of the Grand Forks social security office, will be in Thief River Falls at the city auditorium on Tuesday from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Abandoned Rail Line Purchased For Operation

Freight trains began operating recently from Hanley Falls to Madison, on the first abandoned rail line in the state purchased by a local rail authority, Commissioner Richard Braun, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) announced.

Newly formed Lac qui Parle regional rail authority (LQP) purchased the 36-mile segment from the Chicago and North Western railroad, which had received permission from the Interstate commerce commission to abandon this portion. Through a multi-party agreement, the line has been purchased and will be rehabilitated and operated, Braun noted.

Total cost of the agreement is $2,607,250 which will be divided as follows: Agri-Rail Corp. (ARC), a shippers' group using the line and others, a loan of $391,088; federal rail service construction program grant, $1,062,148; and a state loan of $1,154,014 which is to be paid back from rental fees. The ARC is composed of the Cities of Dawson and Madison, Lac qui Parle County, a soybean processing mill, seven elevators and other shippers in Lac qui Parle and Yellow Medicine counties.

Burlington Northern railroad (BN) will operate the line. Agreement calls for upgrading the line to handle up to 50-car unit trains at 25 mph. The ARC and the state loans will be repaid from rental fees received from the BN for operational rights over the line.

Within three years another contract is expected to replace 20 miles of the light rail with continuous welded rail.

Keith Springer, Dawson, ARC president who is also LQP chairman, said, "I'm very excited about this. The new rehabilitated line is expected to lower the cost of rail service to grain shippers and others and eventually to the consumer. The larger unit trains will enable expansion of our industries providing more employment opportunities with increased payrolls in this area," he said.

The major industry served by the rail line is a soybean processing plant at Dawson.

Medical Meet Attended By A. Carriere

Arnold L. Carriere, administrator of Falls clinic P.A., Thief River Falls, recently attended the medical group management association (MGMA) 57th annual conference "Directing Our Future" held in Washington, D.C.

The conference centered around strengthening skills and strategies employed in medical groups in order to shape and direct the future of those organizations. Attention was directed to the legislative, societal and environmental issues facing the healthcare market. Speakers represented the healthcare community, business and government.

Carriere went to Washington, D.C. two days prior to the start of the conference to take a comprehensive written and oral examination administered annually by the American college of medical group administrators.

Purpose of the "college" is to recognize excellence in the field of group practice management.

Only a small percentage of group administrators achieve "fellow" status in the college and the comprehensive examination is a major step in the process of achieving such recognition.

Results of the examination will be released in January. There were 112 people who took all or portions of the examination at this year's conference.

During the workshop participants heard speakers and took part in small group sessions, idea exchanges and information sessions to help library trustees promote public awareness of libraries and library services.

The biennial event is cosponsored by the Northwest Educational Improvement association and college liaison committee of the Crookston Chamber of Commerce. 11 Members To Be Elected To Corn Council

November 29, has been set as the date for a statewide election of an 11-member Minnesota corn research and promotion council, according to agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols.

There have been 24 candidates nominated, assuring contests for all of the positions to be filled. Polls will be open from 8:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. in all county agricultural extension offices except in Cook and Lake counties and the Hibbing and Virginia offices in St. Louis county.

Each of Minnesota's estimated 70,000 commercial corn producing farm units are eligible to vote in the election. Each producer unit is entitled to only one vote, by either spouse or a designated representative.

Minnesota department of agriculture expects to complete the official canvass of ballots by December 5 and has tentatively scheduled an organization meeting for the council by mid-December. Boschwitz And Glenn Bill Passes Senate

A resolution introduced by Senators Rudy Boschwitz of Minnesota and John Glenn of Ohio that calls for the halt of any sale of nuclear components parts to three nations unless they provide stronger non-proliferation guarantees, has passed the U.S. Senate.

The resolution focuses on the sale to India of nuclear component parts for a reactor at Tarapur, the retransfer of so-called "heavy water" to Argentina and the proposed long-term maintenance contracts between American firms and South Africa for nuclear reactors scheduled to begin operation in January of 1984.

None of these nations has agreed to the safeguards of the nuclear non-proliferation treaty. The Boschwitz-Glenn resolution states that those nations should agree, at a minimum, to (1) reliable assurances that they will not engage in a program to develop nuclear weapons and will not explode additional nuclear devices; and (2) that they will extend the safeguards in the United States-Indian nuclear cooperation agreement in perpetuity.

BSU To Present Choral Concert Thurs., Nov. 6

Annual fall choral concert performed by the Bemidji state university singing groups will be presented at 3 and 7 p.m., November 6 at St. Philip's church, 702 Beltrami avenue in Bemidji.

Choral groups performing include the Bemidji choir and the Chamber singers, under the direction of Dr. Paul Brandvik, and the University Men's chorus and the Varsity choir under the direction of David Castonguary, BSU music instructor.

Brandvik said, "The fall choral concert is a tradition that began with Carol O. Thompson in 1937. The concert was held closer to Christmas, but since the change of our quarter calendar it has been more convenient to schedule it before the end of fall quarter."

Bemidji choir's performance will include Christmas motets by the 20th century composer Frances Poulence and "Of a Rose is All My Song" by English composer Kenneth Leighton. The Chamber singers will perform three songs from the upcoming Madrigal Dinners.

University Men's chorus will, "Observe the 50th anniversary of the repeal of prohibition with three temperance songs," according to Castonguay. The Varsity choir is scheduled to perform several numbers including, "Der Hunderste Psalm" (Psalm 100) by Mendelssohn.

Choral concerts this season are to be held at St. Philips because of the quality of the acoustics in that church. The annual fall choral concert is scheduled for two performances in order to accommodate more people, according to Brandvik.

Tickets for the performances are free and may be obtained in advance at Melody Shop, Stereo One, the student union, the BSU residence halls and the BSU music office. Tickets will also be available at the door. The tickets will be distributed in envelopes which may be used for contributions to the choral groups. More information may be obtained by contacting the Bemidji State university music office at 218-755-2915.

Letters to the Editor

TO The Editor:

I was pleased to see Superintendent Block's letter printed in the October 17 issue of the Times. It is a start toward improving communication and rapport between the school board and the public. Better communications will lead to a better understanding of each one's problems and needs.

I would agree that the lack of a gymnasium and lunchroom for the elementary students at Mark Twain is a pressing problem. My solution would be to utilize the existing gymnasium-lunchroom facility at Knox rather than build an addition to Mark Twain. There is an adequate number of classrooms at Knox which could house the elementary students presently attending Mark Twain. Although Knox is an older building that needs some repair and improvements, this solution seems more economical than an addition to Mark Twain.

I value education highly and am willing to support a bond issue that will bring about improvement in the quality of education for our young people. It should be apparent to anyone who has seen Lincoln high school that some building is necessary. It would be most economical to retain those parts of Lincoln which are still usable and build on the present site.

However, I would not support a program that provides new buildings at the further sacrifice of curriculum and quality education. We need to decrease the swelling class sizes and bolster our curriculum so that Lincoln graduates will not be at a disadvantage when competing in the job market or for college positions.

The distrust and bad feelings between the teachers and the school board and between the teachers and the public apparently has developed over a period of many years. These three groups need to work together toward a common goal of providing quality education for the young people of Thief River Falls. It is time to set aside resentments and grudges from the past and support one another.

Parents need to realize that basic attitudes about learning are established in the home; teachers need to sympathize with the budget limitations of the local school district; the school board needs to communicate the problems of running the district to involve the public in its decision-making process. Improving relationships does not cost money yet the benefits to our educational system would be great.

As a community, we need to make every effort to be a better school district and to stimulate economic support toward this goal. Only through a united effort will Thief River Falls be able to provide its young people with the high quality education they deserve.

Sincerely,
Laura Mattsson

Veterans Day Is Observed November 11

Official state observance of Veterans day will be held at 10 a.m. on Friday, November 11 in the auditorium of the Minnesota Veterans' home, 51st Street and Minnehaha avenue, according to Robert Ball, North Saint Paul, state chairman appointed by Governor Perpich and representing the Veterans of Foriegn Wars.

"Each state governor appoints a committee to establish an official observance of Veterans Day in each state as part of a nationwide observance of the day," Ball stated.

"Governor Perpich will issue a proclamation in Minnesota and President Reagan will also issue a proclamation to make the day an official state and Federal holiday," he continued.

"There are over 485,000 wartime veterans in Minnesota and it is only fitting that we pause once a year to pay tribute to those men and women who performed the highest duty of citizenship to preserve our American way of life in our country's time of need," Ball concluded.

Public is invited to attend this observance of Veterans Day, recognizing the service veterans have given to their country.

home located at 515 State av. N.

I am a graduate of St. Cloud state teachers college with a degree in social studies and psychology and a minor in business administration. My entire career has been in management and a majority of this in government or governmental related positions. Several of the agencies I managed received both federal and state recognition as outstanding projects. I have had considerable experience in writing and securing government grants and have a good past working relationship with area, state and national government officials.

My past and present accomplishments include, in addition to the above mentioned positions, a past membership of Northland community college's scholarship loan fund committee and a past member of the board of directors and treasurer of the Falls Day Activity center. I am a present member of the board of directors of Jobs, Inc., and chairman of its industry contact committee.

A present member of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce ad hoc committee and chamber "Ambassadors", I am also a past state president of the county probation officers association, a past president of the Thief River Falls PTA council and a past board member of the Agassiz Area Health Planning council.

I am the present chairman of the community development advisory board (revolving loan fund) and a chairman of the recently approved enterprise zone committee. I am currently the national vice president of a 50,000-member Automobile Historical society. These are, in my opinion, the more important positions I have or am currently responsible for and which add to my knowledge and proven ability to further benefit our city as your mayor.

My father was mayor of my home city for over 10 years, part of which time I was still living in my parental home. This experience has provided me with considerable understanding of the many responsibilities and demands of a mayor's office. I feel that my varied business and governmental experiences have provided me with the skills necessary to keep our city in the forefront as it concerns an ever changing job market, in assisting our present industries and in seeking new employment potentials.

As a single person I have no current family obligations, permitting me to devote the majority of my excess time to the office of mayor. Through the cooperation of my employer, I would devote a set period of time each day to the office of mayor and would be able to meet additional city responsibilities as required.

I will strive to fulfill all past commitments and obligations made to the senior citizens of our city and Pennington county. I will work to provide the citizens of our city with a sound, respected and economically efficient city government, at the most reasonable cost possible, yet being fair to both labor and management.

Last, but by no means my least priority, will be my endeavor to assist in improving our city's various transportation systems, with emphasis on our new airline. I ask that you will permit me the opportunity to serve you these next four years.

Carlson . . .

great honor and privilege for me to have had this opportunity to serve the fine citizens of Thief River Falls.

I believe Thief River Falls to be one of the finest cities in Minnesota, a city that is now on the move with our designation as an Enterprise Zone City. I am proud to have played a most important role in this city receiving that recognition. It will enable us to move forward in securing new industry, expanding present industry, but most of all creating more jobs for our unemployed citizens.

No one has worked harder than I to see to it that Thief River Falls and northwestern Minnesota have the best airline service available to our citizens under the conditions set down by the Civil Aeronautics board. No one is more concerned than I am in trying to hold the line for the benefit of the taxpayers of this city in the area of any property tax increases or increases in service fees to our citizens.

I have a deep concern for two factions — the senior citizens and the youth of our city. I will continue to support adequate senior programs such as transportation, housing, meals and most of all, to work with the standing committee in support of a senior center.

We must not forget the youth of our city for they are tomorrow's leaders. I have been a worker and dedicated supporter for a long time of all recreation programs for our youth.

Priorities that I visualize in the next few years that your mayor and council are going to have to deal with to make Thief River Falls a better city, and to solve some of the problems we will face are:

Constantly working for ways to create new jobs; recognizing the great need for a new bridge, thus solving some of the serious local traffic problems we have; and completion of our five-year economic development plan, which would make Thief River Falls more eligible for state and federal grants.

New opportunities are here and I know with my vast experience as your mayor we can capitalize on these opportunities.

Many thanks should go to a good working city council and the excellent cooperation of the citizens of this city. I enjoy very much serving as your mayor, for it has become a personal part of my life.

I promise you I will work hard and long for a better Thief River Falls. Experience is the most important asset I can offer you. I know I am qualified and I ask for your continued loyal support on election day, November 8.

My sincere thanks to the editor and staff of the Thief River Falls Times for the opportunity afforded me to express some of my views in this public service article.

During my term of office I was privileged to be involved in many worthwhile projects improving life in Thief River Falls, such as the sports arena, new library, Skylite apartments, regional airport, new fire hall and the city's participation in the law enforcement center, and the location for the Riverside Terrace apartments.

We also have made great strides in our street improvement, sewage and lagoon and water treatment plant and our involvement with the Northwest Power Agency to ensure us electric power for the next 20 years.

One of my current projects is working with the senior citizen building committee with the intent to help them build a new senior center. Also, I would like to work with all organizations and governing bodies to create more jobs and business in Thief River Falls.

I would like to continue as your third ward alderman and feel my experience over the past years is an asset in the attainment of completing our goals in further improving our great city.

A special "Thank You" to the Times newspaper for the opportunity to express myself.

public.

I am 52 years old, married, have two children, have been a resident of Thief River Falls since 1957 and a resident of the fifth ward since 1962. I am a member of Zion Lutheran church and the American Legion, having served as commander, vice commander and adjutant.

I also belong to the Elks lodge, the Minnesota Driver and Traffic Safety Education association and the National, Minnesota and Thief River Falls Education associations.

I hold a bachelor of science degree from Moorhead state university and a masters degree in education from the University of North Dakota. I have been teaching mathematics in the public school system since 1957 and driver education since 1959.

I was first elected to the city council in 1975, having been elected alderman-at-large. In 1979 I was elected as the fifth ward alderman and am seeking re-election to this position.

I currently serve on the labor committee, tax and assessment committee, finance committee and chair the street committee. Serving on these committees, and the council as a whole, has provided me with experience in the workings of city government. It is with these experiences I seek re-election from the fifth ward as councilman and urge everyone to exercise their vote on November 8.

Thank you.

way of service for what the community has given to me during my lifetime.

I grew up in the area of Red Lake boulevard, East Eighth street and Horace avenue. I bought my first home on Horace avenue in the 700 block and now own my own business and reside at 422 Horace av. N. I am a graduate of Lincoln high school in 1951 and served four years in the U.S. air force.

In 1960 my brother and I purchased Schuster Job Printing from my stepfather, Harry Schuster, and we started Borsheim Printing. In 1972 I purchased the business and now own and operate it myself. My sons Mark and Wayne are ages 14 and 12 and attend the Thief River Falls schools.

In the past I have been active in the Pennington county fair association, serving as secretary for 10 years, and have also had an active interest in the Pennington county sportsmen club. I am a member of Trinity Lutheran church, the chamber of commerce, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Elks and Eagles.

While my interests may be varied, my main concern since I was first elected to the council eight years ago was to serve the interests of the people of the first ward. I believe that I have done this during my two terms in office and I want people in my ward to know that my door is always open to them and I encourage them to bring me their concerns.

It has been a pleasure for me to work with the present city council which I feel has done an excellent job of conducting the business of the city of Thief River Falls. It has been thrilling to see community progress and to have had a hand in developing some of the gains that have been made in a number of areas.

While it is true there have been some economic setbacks due to the closing of Arctic Enterprises, I feel that we are on the road to recovery, and things that the city has been able to do, such as the enterprise zone designation, will continue to be important to development of business and industry here. I continue to refer to Thief River Falls as the hub of activity for northwestern Minnesota and I sincerely believe we will continue to be just that.

City council service has been an opportunity, a challenge, an eventful experience and an education for me. I feel that my eight years of service on the council have been important learning years and that my experience will be of ever increasing value to the city and to the residents of the first ward.

While the past eight years have been active and successful ones for the council and the city of Thief River Falls, new challenges and opportunities still remain. I want very much to be a part of these and that is why I am seeking reelection for a third term. I would like to commend all of the city department heads and city employees for their dedicated service and their very important role in community progress.

Thanks once again to the Times for permitting the candidates to express their opinions and become better acquainted through these articles.

during the school year and during summer vacations and received my bachelor of science degree the spring of 1967.

Later I taught school at New Prague, and during that time began my master degree program in elementary administration at Bemidji state college. In 1971 I was hired as full-time elementary principal at the Newfolden and Viking elementary schools and graduated from Bemidji with a masters degree in elementary administration in 1974.

My duties as an elementary principal in Thief River Falls began in 1976. During this time I finished my specialist degree in public school administration at St. Cloud state university.

My experiences in various areas have been rewarding to me over the years. They range from being chairman on the church council at First Lutheran in Middle River and being a deacon on the church council at the Westaker Lutheran church in Newfolden to serving as president of the Northern Division Elementary School Principals association and serving on the state board of the Minnesota Elementary School Principals association (MESPA). Singing with the King's Men Gospel Team has been a source of therapy and inspiration for me over the past 10 years.

This fall I had the unique experience of being on an evaluation team for the state education department. Our main task was to evaluate an elementary school at North Branch.

I was president of the Kiwanis club of Thief River Falls for one year following a year of serving as president-elect. Presently I serve as chairman of the deacon board at Our Saviour's Lutheran church and teach an adult Sunday school class. I also serve on the board of directors for the Thief River Falls Concert association.

My wife, Marjorie, teaches home economics and occupational foods at the Middle River community school. Our daughter, Karmon, is attending UND and is studying to be a physical therapist. KayLyn, Karla and son Thane are attending public school at Lincoln, Franklin and Northrop here in Thief River Falls. My family is 100 per cent behind this endeavor and I'm grateful for their support.

Students and teachers are and have been a large part of my entire life. It thrills me to see the relationships that form and develop through a school year between a student, a teacher, and the parents. The miracle of learning takes place and new and exciting worlds open for these children on a daily basis.

I have been encouraged to run for alderman-at-large primarily because of the great opportunities I see ahead for our young people. My wife and I are privileged still to have children in the public school system. As I see them and their friends and the children I come in contact with on a daily basis, I am inspired to help them have a better future.

Since the day I filed as a candidate for alderman-at-large in the city of Thief River Falls, I have heard various comments ranging from, "Are you feeling OK?" to "You have my support!" These comments are valued and enlightening. I feel that people understand that being on the city council is time consuming and just plain hard work, and if elected I'd be filling very large shoes.

Some areas that I feel are important and need much research and study are:

(A) To halt the increasing break-down of the American family and its effects on children;

(B) To encourage new business and industry to locate in our city;

(C) To plan activities and facilities to meet the needs of our senior citizens; and

(D) To help prevent the problems America's young people are having with drugs and alcohol.

With my background and experiences over the past 25 years working with young people and adults, I'm ready to face the challenges that are before us straight on.

With an ear to the people and an eye to the future I am happy to be a candidate for alderman-at-large in Thief River Falls.

later assigned as supervisor of the St. Cloud office.

In 1968 I accepted the position of appraiser with the State of Minnesota department of revenue. I retired after 32 years service with the state as a senior appraiser in December of 1979.

My wife, Neoma, and I were married 42 years ago and we have four children. Marlys, married and with two children, lives in Newberry, MI. Tony is married and lives in Spokane, WA. Marcie is married, has two children and lives here in Thief River Falls and Kerry is living at home.

As for my qualifications for the office of alderman in addition to my past experiences with the department of public safety, my experience as an appraiser with the local government aids division of the department of revenue would, I believe, bring a valuable experience to the city council. I have also had five weeks of continuing education in the field of assessing, administration and appraising at the university of Minnesota in St. Paul and two weeks at St. Thomas university in St. Paul in the same field.

I am currently certified as a Minnesota assessing officer and am also currently a fee appraiser on the fee panel for the Veterans Administration in St. Paul.

As for my volunteer experiences, I've been a member of the Pennington county safety council for 25 years and am currently serving as president. I am a charter member of the Golden K Kiwanis club, member and past commander of the local American Legion post and I have served as a volunteer for the past several years for the kidney foundation drive. I have also served on the meals on wheels committee for the American Legion and Kiwanis.

To the Thief River Falls Times for this opportunity, my sincere thanks.

city council four most rewarding years.

In Thief River Falls we need jobs which result in a broad and better tax base generating funds to provide services and facilities required and desired — these at the least possible economic cost. I have worked towards these ends and being semi-retired will continue to give as much time as is needed to achieve their fulfillment.

Your City Council has initiated positive action toward these ends — the finance committee, which I chair, was the catalyst relative to Northern Outerwear staying in Thief River Falls — 26 jobs. Similar action and encouragement applies to Arctco — 60 jobs. Another plus is our designation as a Competitive Enterprise Zone — I was the council representative on the application committee — it was successful.

Experience, time, and desire are qualities of my commitment to serve and represent you, the citizens of Thief River Falls. My wife and I like Thief River Falls — we enjoy life here. Your support and you and your family's voting for my re-election as Councilman-At-Large on November 8th will be appreciated.

Northland community college football season record will go into the books as 0-8 for the 1983 season instead of 1-7 because of the Northmen were ruled to have used an ineligible player this fall.

It was reported by Northland athletic director Al Adams Tuesday — three days after the Northmen closed out their 1983 season with a 34-6 loss at the University of Minnesoata-Crookston on Saturday afternoon — that John Dahl, a 5-10, 180-pound freshman lineman from Clearbrook, had been ruled scholastically ineligible.

Dahl had attended bible school after high school graduation. A ruling was requested from state officials, who said the bible school studies did indeed constitute a school of higher education and Dahl subsequently needed a transcript of his grades to be eligible to compete athletically at Northland. Transcrips for Dahl, who withdrew from the bible school before the program was completed, were never received, thus making him ineligible.

It was an unfortunate turn of events, explained Adams. "We weren't trying to cheat, otherwise I wouldn't tell anybody," he noted.

Only Northland win this fall was a 27-6 decision over Hibbing Oct. 1. That was turned into a loss this week, making the Northmen winless in seven Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) games and 0-8 overall. Hibbing, meanwhile, traded records with Northland, going from 0-7 to 1-7. Ironically, the only points the Cardinals mustered all year was that single touchdown against Northland. Otherwise the shorthanded Hibbing squad was shut out by Brainerd 38-0, University of Minnesota-Crookston 44-0, Fergus Falls 45-0, Vermilion 66-0, Itasca 21-0 and Mesabi 50-0.

Otters Protest Playoff Selection

Nine Lincoln high school football opponents this fall fashioned a combined 49-27 won-lost record, and five of them qualified for post-season play.

Fergus Falls and Breckenridge both went 8-1, Mahnomen 7-1, Grand Forks Red River 7-2, Moorhead 6-2, Crookston 6-3, Bemidji 3-5, Detroit Lakes 3-6 and East Grand Forks 1-6.

Breckenridge, Moorhead, Mahnomen, Crookston and Red River all qualified for the playoffs. Fergus Falls, at 8-1, didn't, and officials there were upset enough about the situation to hire an attorney to challenge the right of Moorhead to represent the area independents in the Class AA playoffs.

Since both Moorhead and Fergus Falls met the criteria set down by the Minnesota State High School League, the Spuds were thought to be playoff-bound by virtue of their head-to-head 34-7 victory over Fergus Falls during the season.

But now Fergus Falls claims the Otters' better record (8-1 compared to 6-2 for the Spuds) should give Fergus Falls the post-season berth in spite of the results when the two met back on Oct. 7.

The matter will go to the board of directors of the Minnesota State High School League Friday for determination. In the MSHSL state Class AA quarterfinals, the qualifying independent is scheduled to host Northern Lakes Conference champion St. Cloud Tech Friday at 7:30 p.m.

During the course of the 1983 season the Prowlers' nine opponents had the following results:

Red River (7-2) — defeated Thief River Falls 21-12, East Grand Forks 63-6, Wahpeton 54-6, Grand Forks Central 16-8, West Fargo 16-15, Fargo North 41-29, Jamestown 43-6; lost to Fargo South 17-9, Fargo Shanley 20-0.

Cardinals Face Panthers In Quarterfinals

Next playoff step for the Plummer high school football team will take the 9-0 Cardinals to Halstad Friday for a 7:30 p.m. Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) state quarterfinal game against Norman County West-Climax.

North Tri-County Conference champion Plummer reached the quarterfinals with a 31-24 Saturday night victory over Northern Lights Conference winner Kennedy. Agassiz Valley North Conference champion Norman County West-Climax advanced with a 22-14 win that same night over Top of the State Conference winner Argyle. The Panthers are 10-0.

For maybe the first time this fall Plummer won't be going into the game as the favorite. But Cardinals coach Gary Brantl doesn't think that will affect his team.

"They're a very good football team, of course," he said of Norman County West-Climax. "At this point we have to be considered the underdog, I guess. But we don't mind. We're going into the game thinking we can win, and we'll do our best to do just that."

Plummer didn't need any of the magic Saturday night that helped carry the Cardinals through the North Tri-County Conference regular season schedule unscathed for the first time since 1969. Four of the eight wins were by a touchdown margin or less, and a couple of them came right down to the very end before a winner was decided.

Those wins came against Gonvick-Trail 40-14, Grygla-Goodridge 14-8, Erskine-Mentor 28-22, Fisher 22-18, McIntosh-Winger 33-0, Middle River 34-0, Oklee 20-8 and Clearbrook 20-14 in overtime to end it.

Plummer opened with an 18-0 lead Saturday at home against Kennedy and had a 31-18 cushion when the Rockets scored a final touchdown to close the gap.

In the other upper-bracket MSHSL quarterfinal game Friday, St. Louis County Conference champion Wrenshall will play Heartland Six Conference Champion Hill City at the later's home site. Those winners will be paired in the state semifinals the following week. In last week's play, Wrenshall eliminated Longbow Conference champion Kelliher from the playoffs 44-14 and Hill City sidelined Agassiz Valley South Conference winner Lake Park 35-28.

First round games were still scheduled last night (Tuesday) in the Nine-Man bottom-bracket, with Mini Conference champion Raymond at Circle Eight Conference winner Silver Lake; Buffalo Ridge Conference champion Hills-Beaver Creek at Red Rock Conference winner Brewster; and Border West Conference champion Welcome at Border East Conference winner Delavan. Starbuck earned a spot in the bottom-bracket quarterfinals Saturday when the Pheasant North Conference champion Bucks outscored Pheasant South Conference winner Milan 35-25.

Three northwestern Minnesota teams were involved in playoff activity Tuesday. In Class A competition, area independent Crookston lost a 13-9 road decision to Mid-State Conference champion Park Rapids, while, in Class B, area independent Mahnomen edged Far North Conference champion Warren 14-6 at Warren.

Mahnomen moves into the Class B quarterfinals Saturday when the Indians travel to Mountain Iron-Buhl, the Arrowhead Conference champion and a 37-13 winner last night over Blackduck.

Finals in all five MSHSL football classes — AA, A, B, C and Nine-Man — will be played Sat., Nov. 19, at the Metrodome in Minneapolis. Schedule that day will feature the Class B championship game at 10:10 a.m.; Class C at 12:30 p.m.; Nine-Man at 3:15 p.m.; Class A at 5:30 p.m.; and Class AA at 8:30 p.m.

8AA Volleyball Is Set Saturday

North Sub-Region 8AA high school volleyball tournament will be played Saturday at Moorhead high school.

First round matches will find No. 4-seeded Bemidji playing No. 5-seeded Fergus Falls at 10 a.m., with No. 3-seeded Thief River Falls playing No. 6-seeded Detroit Lakes at 11:30 a.m.

In the semifinals, it'll be the Fergus Falls-Bemidji winner playing No. 1-seeded Moorhead at 1 p.m., with the Thief River Falls-Detroit Lakes winner playing No. 2-seeded Park Rapids at 2:30.

Championship match will be played at 4 that afternoon.

Seeding positions were made by a vote of the coaches, and Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson said she was more than satisfied with the results.

"I am really optimistic," she noted. "It looks pretty good for us right now."

A berth in the finals is the goal for the 8-11 Prowlers, pointed out Anderson, and once there, "You never know what might happen," she noted.

South Sub-Region 8AA tournament will be played at St. Cloud State University beginning Thursday.

In the quarterfinals, Brainerd plays Sauk Rapids, No. 1-seeded Rocori meets St. Cloud Apollo, St. Cloud Tech tackles Little Falls and Alexandria is paired against Melrose.

TRF Expected Better Than 3-6 Record . . .

Prowlers Disappointed In Outcome Of '83 Season

It's no secret that the 1983 season was a bust as far as the won-lost record goes for the Lincoln high school football team.

Thief River Falls finished 3-6. That's a marked improvement over back-to-back winless campaigns the Prowlers struggled through in 1981 and 1982. But they expected more.

"We were disappointed. We expected a better season," confirmed out-going head coach John Schmitz, who has resigned from his post of four years. "We had high hopes of being in the playoffs."

To qualify for the playoffs, though, the Prowlers needed at least a 5-4 finish, plus wins over East Grand Forks and Crookston. They were just 1-for-3 in that department with a victory over the Green Wave to their credit.

There were three main reasons why the pre-season goals weren't reached, explained Schmitz: No. 1 — turnovers; No. 2 — penalties; No. 3 — mistakes. He shouldered much of the blame for the later as he second-guessed himself in such matters as play selection.

"When you look at the whole season, a wrong play here or there, a fumble or an interception and a penalty — they all add up," he mentioned.

Thief River Falls opened the season with a 21-12 setback at the hands of Grand Forks Red River, extending a frustrating losing streak that covered all or parts of four seasons to 22 games. The string of losses finally ended in the second week of the season with a 20-0 shutout of Detroit Lakes, an outcome that had many believing the Prowlers could reach their preseason goals.

But instead of picking up additional wins, the Prowlers lost their next three starts, falling to Mahnomen 13-0, Breckenridge 7-6 and Moorhead 28-6. All three of them wound up in the playoffs. The Prowlers didn't.

Thief River Falls rebounded with a strong performance in a 14-6 homecoming victory over rival Bemidji in a game that was more one-sided than the score would indicate, but in the seventh week of the season the Prowlers suffered their worst beating of the year in a 41-8 rout at Fergus Falls. That result was reversed with a lopsided 46-6 victory over East Grand Forks, but hopes of ending the season with three wins in their final four games met with failure when the Prowlers dropped the 1983 finale to Crookston 23-14.

"Overall, we played well at times," pointed out Schmitz. "The kids never gave up. They wanted to play football. They wanted to win. They wanted to win the Crookston game regardless of whether or not they had a shot at the playoffs. I'm very satisfied with the player's efforts. Things just didn't work out for them."

After several years of very little, if any, success at moving the football, the Prowlers found success offensively this year. Runningback Tim Bottem and wide receiver Steve Wiskow were the most visable players offensively with fine 1983 seasons, but they had help, obviously.

"It took us a while to develop things, but we improved as the season went along. Toward the end we were able to accomplish things we had hoped to do all year. It was just a little too late, though," pointed out Schmitz.

Defensively it was an up-and-down season for the Prowlers. They had their moments, but the opposition had some too. "Overall defensively we played well," said Schmitz, "but we did run into stretches where we had problems."

There were 14 seniors on the 1983 Thief River Falls squad and 13 of them started at least one game either offensively or defensively, including Mitch Semanko, Jeff Langan, Rick Spong, Scott Jorstad, Bottem, Todd Ortloff, Gary Cornell, Ryan Bakke, Jeff Hamerlinck, Lee Genereux, Lynn Johnson, Tim Kruse and Wiskow.

Six juniors got starting duty at least part of the season, including Dan Upham, Shannon Kezar, Roger Gonsorowski, Ryan Drees, Scott Fowler and Mark Bondy.

TRF Will Host Cross Country World Series

Tim Berg of Corcoran, president of Central Cross Country, Inc. (CCC), a Minnesota-based snowmobile racing association, has announced that Thief River Falls will be the site of the 1984 CCC World Series February 25-26.

"CCC feels that the enthusiasm for the sport that has been displayed by the community of Thief River Falls and the surrounding area entitles them to such a premier event," says Berg.

Officially known as the Schmidt Cross Country Racing Circuit, which includes a number of races throughout the Midwest, the CCC finale here will feature drivers from across the country and Canada who will be accumulating points during the racing season in order to receive an invitation to the World Series competition.

Races here will be held on the river, according to race officials, enabling spectators to watch the competition from the river banks and the public access area.

Competitors expected to appear here include 1983 CCC point champion Todd Elmer on his Ski-Doo, who will be challenged by the likes of Lee Falck, Bob Danahue, Tim Bender and Guy Ueldinger of Grand Forks.

In addition to the pro classes, the entire format of junior and sport classes will be offered.

Post-Season Community College Football Games Start This Week

Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) state football playoff semifinal games will be played Saturday, matching regular season winners in the four state-wide divisions.

Northwest Division champion Brainerd (6-2) will be playing Northeast Division winner Vermilion (5-3), while Central Division titlist Normandale (7-1) meet Southern Division representative Rochester (8-1) in the two semifinal games.

Those winners will meet the following week in the MCCC state championship game.

Brainerd and Vermilion meet earlier this year when the Ironmen edged the Red Raiders 16-15.

That was the only MCCC Northwest Division-counting loss for the Red Raiders, who lost a nonconference season-opener to Anoka-Ramsey 17-12, but beat Hibbing 38-0, Mesabi 23-0, Itasca 26-15, Northland 31-7, University of Minnesota-Crookston 9-7 and Fergus Falls 37-0.

Vermilion, meanwhile, opened with back-to-back losses to the University of Minnesota-Duluth junior varsity 26-20 and the University of Minnesota-Crookston 19-3 before beating Northland 35-7, Fergus Falls 32-6, Brainerd 16-15, and Hibbing 26-0. The Ironmen lost to Mesabi 14-7 in the seventh week of the year, but bounced back to beat Itasca 22-10 in a season-ending Northeast Division title showdown.

Fish Contamination Study Is Completed

Analysis of fish and turtle samples from around the state has detected no contamination with 2, 3, 7, 8, tetrachlorodibenzo-p-dioxin (TCDD), the Minnesota Pollution Congrol Agency (MPCA) announced.

This chemical is the most toxic form known of a family of chemicals called polychlorinated dibenzodioxins (PCDDs) and is the most likely form to accumulate in the bodies of living organisms. (These chemicals have been incorrectly called "dioxins," a term which refers to a simpler chemical that is one of the building blocks of PCDDs.)

MPCA initiated the study as a precaution in July after TCDD and other PCDDs were discovered in Wisconsin and Michigan rivers. Fish in a portion of the Wisconsin River were contaminated with TCDD despite the absence of an industrial pollution source likely to have produced these byproduct chemicals.

"We had no evidence of similar contamination in Minnesota, and the results of this study make us confident that we do not have a widespread problem with TCDD," MPCA Executive Director Sandra Gardebring said. "However, we will continue to look at specific industrial sites that have a potential for contamination with these chemicals."

Twelve samples of fish and turtle tissue had been collected from seven locations as part of the agency's regular monitoring for mercury and polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs). In a cooperative program, the MPCA provided the frozen tissue samples, and the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) Environmental Research Laboratory in Duluth did the analysis.

Analysis of the samples detected no TCDD contamination down to a level of five parts per trillion (ppt). U.S. Food and Drug Administration recommends limiting consumption of fish containing over 25 ppt of TCDD and not consuming fish with more than 50 ppt.

Fish tissue samples were collected from the St. Louis River near Thomson; the upper and lower St. Louis Bay; Mississippi River at Sartell, Spring Lake and Red Wing; Minnesota River near Shakopee; Zumbro Lake near Zumbrota; Agate Lake near Brainerd; and Lake Superior near French River. Two turtle tissue samples from the Mississippi River at Spring Lake and Red Wing were also included.

Fish sample from Agate Lake, near an illegal PCB incineration site, was also analyzed for tetrachlorodibenzofurans (TCDFs), toxic chemicals related to PCDDs, but none were detected in the sample. Both of these byproducts are sometimes created when PCBs are heated.

MPCA will participate in an EPA regional and national study of PCDD contamination. Preparations for that study are underway, with state pollution control agencies providing comments on the proposed procedures.

"The EPA study will be very important in establishing background levels of PCDDs for uncontaminated areas and in determining the extent of the PCDD problem nationwide," Gardebring said. "It will also allow us to gather more monitoring data within Minnesota."

PCDDs are 75 related chemicals that occur as unwanted byproducts in the manufacture of some frequently-used chemicals. For example, TCDD commonly occurs as a contaminant in 2, 4, 5 herbicides, such as 2, 4, 5-T and silvex. Combustion sources, such as municipal and industrial incinerators, may also create PCDDs depending on operating temperatures and the types of wastes burned.

Animal studies have shown that TCDD is extremely toxic, causes cancer, and increases susceptibility to other carcinogens. However, the effects very greatly among different animal species, and many of the other 74 PCDDs appear to be much less toxic and carcinogenic. Studies of humans accidentally exposed to PCDDs suggest that animal data may not be directly applicable to humans.

In humans, PCDDs have caused skin rashes, liver and nervous system disorders, and fatigue. Generally, these conditions disappear within several years of the exposure. While little is known about the long-term human health effects, the EPA has concluded that evidence suggests PCDDs are a human carcinogen.

Hunter's Code Of Ethics Is Presented

"Hunting is a privelege, not a right," stresses the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association (MDHA), a nonprofit group dedicated to deer and deer hunting in Minnesota, "and it is the cornerstone upon which the future of hunting rests."

In a state-wide press release, MDHA State President Rod Dimich, Grand Rapids, strongly urges deer hunters, as well as other hunters, to develop a "hunting ethic," a code of honor to cover their behavior in the field. As advocated by the DNR's Hunter Education program, the MDHA encourages hunters to follow this "code of ethics":

1. Practice conservation in your hunting. Know and abide by annual bag limits and regulations. Avoid phrases like "We slaughtered them," or "We really murdered them last weekend." Take the quick, humane shot, and avoid taking "risk shots," like the long distance poke at a deer. Even though occasionally you'll hear the story of a 500-yard kill, the risk of stray bullets, hunter in line of fire, or wounding and losing an animal are too great.

2. Don't litter, vandalize property, or alter your hunting terrain in an extreme manner. When you leave your hunting area, leave only footprints. Respect the land and its owner. Don't proliferate the area with deer stands to prememt numerous areas. Find an area, hunt it, and leave it as natural as you found it.

3. Respect yourself as a hunter. Hunting, like other physical activities, is often physically, mentally, and emotionally taxing. The harder you work at hunting, the more you'll enjoy the successes it has to offer. Keep yourself in good physical condition. Learn the woods, its tracks, trees and plants. Develop self-control. Spend some time pre-hunting before season in the field. It will prepare you for the excitement of seeing a deer close-up during season. Many accidents occur because of hunter over-excitement. Be patient with your hunting success. Don't score your hunt by the number of deer taken, rather, measure the total hunting experience in the sights, sounds and feelings of the hunt. Taking a deer is an objective, but not an absolute must. Try to discount "stories" of hunting progress written to impress readers and sell articles. Your hunt is your hunt, you need not compare it to anyone else's.

4. Respect your hunting companions and other hunters. Hunting has statistically been proven to be a safer sport than swimming or fishing. The fact remains, however, that hunting entails the use of a powerful instrument that can kill or maim other humans. Thus, hunting demands constant awareness of hunter actions and strict adherence of rules of muzzle control, and a treatment of every firearm as if it was loaded. It's also important that we consider some other ethical considerations. For instance, don't belittle your companion for the type of firearm or clothing he wears. Always be courteous and safety conscious while hunting. Never handle another's firearm without permission. Be ready and anxious to pitch in with more than your share of work on hunting ventures. Don't select a stand closer than 300 yards from someone else, the greater the distance apart, the safer the hunt, and the more rewarding the hunting experience. Respect the rights of others. Don't infringe on their rights for a quality hunt.

5. Plan your hunt with your group. Keep all hunters informed as to location of party members. Consider what each hunter will do if one kills or wounds a deer. Be punctual at predetermined meeting places. Develop a signal system for communcation (like whistling with an empty shell).

6. Respect the rule of "first blood" in hunting. The hunter that made the first vital shot should get the animal, though this is not the case in a legal sense. Fighting over a deer has no place in hunter sportsmanship.

7. Be quiet in a hunting area, even if you are done hunting. Never talk in anything but a whisper voice, except in emergencies, when afield. Sounds carry a long way in the field.

8. A special area of concern between hunting companions occurs when someone brings along new hunting companions: inexperienced sons, daughters, or friends. Generally, these inexperienced hunters should be taught attitudes of respect. Before an inexperienced hunter is taken along, however, the rest of the hunting party should be consulted. And be considerate of novice hunters. Remember that you, too, were once "inexperienced," and novices must learn sometime.

9. If a hunting companion takes you to a "hot spot," don't return later with other hunters. Many friendships are lost and family squabbles have started over disagreements over this issue.

10. Respect owners of hunting lands. Minnesota game animals are legally owned by all residents of the state, and so are all public lands. However, much game is found on lands for which private individuals and corporations have legal title.

Travel Tips Are Given For State Hunters

On a typical weekend during the fall hunting season it is not unusual for 250,000 hunters to be venturing out on Minnesota's highways. For the opening of deer hunting season over 500,000 may be traveling to their favorite spot.

While most hunters carefully plan for a safe time in the woods, it is also important for them to prepare to follow common sense rules of highway safety. Minnesota department of public safety offers these reminders for a safe trip to the hunting sites.

— Avoid driver fatigue. Frequent stops and changes of drivers are recommended. Avoid non-stop marathon drives leaving directly from work. Stops for alcoholic drinks or "pick-me-ups" are always a bad idea.

— Drinking in a van, motorhome or any motor vehicle is illegal. Open bottles can not be carried inside an automobile. They must be placed in trunks. Open bottles in vans, motorhomes or station wagons must be in areas inaccessible to the driver or passengers.

— Take extra care in passing especially on two-lane roads. Drive defensively by taking for granted that the other driver isn't going to be as careful as you.

— Minnesota's theater of seasons can bring unpredicatable weather. Early snow, frost or rain mixed with fall leaves can cause poor visibility and slippery conditions. Decreasing speed to match weather and road conditions is a must.

— Driving in the early morning or early evening before sunrise or sunset can involve semi-darkness that makes it difficult to see. Use your headlights to your advantage. Also remember to dim high-beam lights when meeting oncoming traffic.

— Be careful when traveling through sections of highway marked with deer crossing signs, or other areas that are likely to be frequently used wildlife crossings.

— Whether a driver or a passenger, it is always a good idea to use safety belts.

Ontario Fees Increase

Minnesotans planning to fish in Ontario next year have been told that the non-resident angling license will increase January 1.

Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources has announced that visitors from the U.S. will be offered a new 21-day license for $20, renewable for an additional 21 days at a further charge of $10.

Current fee for a full season of fishing by a non-resident is $15. However, Ontario officials say that 94 per cent of all U.S. residents who fish in the province do so for less than 21 days.

For these anglers, the new fee is only a $5 increase over the old one, they point out.

But non-residents will also have to buy special $5 stamps if they wish to fish for muskellunge or lake trout.

"These species are highly prized and subject to heavy over-fishing in some areas," according to Alan Pope, Ontario Natural Resources Minister.

DNR Road Checks

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) enforcement officers arrested 56 hunters at three highway checking stations on Sunday, October 23. Officials said many of the arrests were for transporting waterfowl and upland game birds cleaned and dressed so as to make identification impossible.

Regulations require that waterfowl be transported with at least one fully feathered wing attached. Upland birds must have both the head and feet attached.

Fred Hammer, DNR Enforcement Director, said the rules are essential because of the various limits on different species of ducks, the law prohibiting shooting of hen pheasants, the ban on hunting of prairie chickens and other regulations.

Road checks were conducted south of Walker, at Morris and Danvers. Minnesota's pheasant season opened that Saturday.

In addition to arrests made for transporting dressed birds, officers issued citations for possessing hen pheasants, exceeding the bag limits on fish and ducks, transporting loaded and uncased firearms in a motor vehicle, and failure to have an angling license, pheasant stamp or state and federal duck stamps.

Hunter Education Program

Hunter education classes and clinics for adults, conducted under the direction of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, are proving popular with sportsmen this fall.

Roger Grosslein of the DNR's Bureau of Information and Education said about 2,500 persons are expected to attend at least one of the sessions between now and December 1.

Actual instruction is provided by 192 volunteer instructors. Grosslein said that the number varies since new instructors are added as other "retire."

This fall in Minnesota there are 45 one-day clinics, focusing on a single game species, and nine classes, involving up to six sessions, where game species are studied in depth together with hunter behavior, hunting methods, game laws and related topics.

Grosslein said classes and clinics are available both in the Twin Cities area and outstate. Information can be obtained by contacting Grosslein at the DNR Bureau of Information and Education, Third Floor, Centennial Bldg, St. Paul; phone 296-3336.

He said purpose of the program is to train hunters to be ethical, courteous, skillfull and knowledgable.

One of its primary objectives, he said, is to encourage a code of conduct among hunters that will make it easier for them to obtain permission to hunt on private lands and to insure hunting in the future.

Roger Holmes, DNR wildlife chief, said that he has "noticed a significant change in hunters' attitudes the past few years" and he credits the Advanced Hunter Education Program with playing an important role in that change.

Fishing Programs

Department of Natural Resources fish management programs will be discussed at length at a meeting of the Minnesota Sportfishing Congress December 3.

DNR Commissioner Joseph Alexander and Department Fisheries Chief Richard Hassinger will explain the expanded fish management projects using additional revenue from the surcharge of fishing licenses. Increase in funds resulted from passage of $2.50 surcharge in the fishing license during the last session of the legislature.

MSC President Frank Schneider said the meeting will be held at the Hopkins House, one mile east of Highway 7 off I-494 starting at 9 a.m.

Four Local 4-Hers Attend Horse Shows

4-H district and state horse shows were held recently with four Pennington county 4-H'ers participating in these events.

Jackie Thune of the Happy Acres 4-H club participated in the state horse show, earning the right to do so by receiving blue ribbons in specified events at the county show. She placed first in the western riding class for youth 14 years and over at the state show.

Participating at the district horse show at Crookston were Lisa Rahn and Loralee Iverson of Happy Acres club and Stephanie Clow of Steiner 4-H. District horse show is open to anyone in the northwest district.

4-H horse project helps members learn about their horses and how to care for and train them. Members learn about grooming, feeding and training in showmanship as well as in horsemanship and have the opportunity to participate in a county horse show where they may show their horse at halter or in saddle. They may also participate in games such as poles, barrels or egg and spoon.

The horse project is one of the many projects available for a learning-by-doing experience.

Quin County Health Board Holds Meeting

Quin county board of health met recently in Newfolden with eight board members and administrator Viola Rud present.

Betty Hulst, Roseau county, and Albert Koop, Pennington county, were elected to serve on the executive committee the remainder of 1983 with officers JoAnn Thibert, Red Lake county; Ellen Johnson, Kittson county; and Marcella Gonsorowski, Marshall county.

The 1984 budget for administration was approved at $49,858 and for the Four-County EPS-WIC services at $62,458.75.

Board exercised review and comment privilege on twelve maternal and child health grant applications and supported the applications submitted by Courage center, University of Minnesota-Duluth; Gillette childrens hospital; planned parenthood of Minnesota, Bemidji and Thief River Falls; and the agricultural extension service.

Next regular meeting of the board will be in January.

PROGRESS
Congratulations!

INTERIOR REMODELING of the Fountain of Jewels store at 309 LaBree Avenue North, was recognized as more progress for Thief River Falls by the Chamber Ambassadors recently. Ambassador Rocky Ammerman, left, is shown presenting signs acknowledging the progress to store employee Steve Narverud, who accepted on behalf of owner Elaine Loberg. New carpeting, display cases and shelving along the walls have increased the usable space in the store, adding to both customer and employee convenience.

Inter-County On-The-Job Training Set

Inter-County community council, Inc. has a program for youth ages 16 to 19 years of age called on the job training or OJT.

"OJT is an excellent opportunity for the private sector businesses to involve themselves," states Mary Lou Harthum of the council office. Some of the advantages to the employer are:

(1) It saves money because the employer is reimbursed for 50 per cent of the wages.

(2) Individuals have been pre-screened for skills and interest.

(3) No valuable time is lost searching for the right person for the job.

(4) Minimal paperwork.

(5) No advertising costs for the employer.

(6) Even though we reimburse for half of the salary, the employer is the boss.

(7) If problems arise with the student, we will assist in any manner that the employer requests.

"Many private employers in the seven county area have already used this program very successfully," Harthum said.

For more information you can contact: Inter-County community council, Inc. P.O. Box 187, Oklee, Minnesota 56742, (218) 796-5144.

5 Commissions Do Studies On Transportation

Five state regional development commissions (RDC) serving 28 counties will begin studies of grassroots transportation topics of importance to their area made possible by state grants, the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) announced.

Fourteen proposals were submitted with five selected for state funding for projects ranging from commodity movements management to township road maintenance and management study, said Douglas Differt, assistant commissioner, Mn-DOT's program management division.

State grants provide from $10,000 to $20,000 for each study with the RDC supplying from $6,667 to $11,666, he said.

Five proposals, which will be studied for 1983-84 beginning in October, includes Northwest regional development commission one, which serves Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties. Commodity movements will be studied making comparison of dollar value of transporting agricultural products on certain highways versus maintenance of those roads. State grant for the project amounts to $20,000, while the local share is $6,759.

Motorists To Look Out For Frosty Bridges

Motorists should be alert to the danger of frost-covered bridges at this time of year, warns the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Frost — sometimes not visible — can form any time that the bridge deck temperature is below freezing. Drivers should cautiously approach bridges, particularly when they look wet or frosty. Slowing down immediately without applying brakes is advised.

In one bridge is slippery, look out. The rest are probably slippery too, frequently when the roadway is not.

He will be earning credits toward an associate in applied science degree through the community college of the air force while attending basic and other air force technical training schools.

People With Psoriasis May Have Arthritis

Many people have a skin condition called psoriasis, which causes scaly red patches on the body. As is true for the general population, people with psoriasis may also develop any one of a variety of different forms of arthritis. But, according to the arthritis foundation, there is one type of arthritis that is directly related to the skin condition. It is called psoriatic arthritis.

In the majority of people with psoriatic arthritis, their symptoms of arthritis are mild, an arthritis foundation spokesman reported. In a few, psoriatic arthritis can be severe. Whether mild or severe, psoriatic arthritis must be diagnosed accurately so that proper treatment can be started.

Often psoriatic arthritis shows up in the fingers, usually affecting the last joints. Sometimes the spine is affected. Major complaint may be several sore fingers or soreness of any other joints. Depending on the severity of the illness, treatment may include measures to keep the skin condition under control, medication for the joints, and special exercise.

Arthritis foundation has a special message on psoriatic arthritis that may be heard by calling their toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278. Callers may request free literature on psoriatic arthritis, or other arthritis problems.

We deal in real estate
But our real business is PEOPLE

Real estate is not just "three bedrooms, two baths, double garage." Or "18,000 sq. ft. zoned industrial, near railroad siding."

It's welcoming a new family to town and helping them feel at home as well as find a home. It's helping someone who wants to start a business find the best location in terms of purpose, place and price.

It's working with other concerned citizens in the community to improve the quality of life by helping prevent vandalism, revitalizing a rundown neighborhood or doing whatever else we must.

It's helping protect the rights of homeowners by becoming politically involved on the issues that affect them, and advising the lawmakers of our interest and concerns.

We're the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS® — an organization with more than 700,000 members nationwide. We're real estate professionals, but our real business is people.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls water utility announced today that the State maximum allowable limit for turbidity in drinking water is being exceeded.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity levels, do not create any health hazard because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with State Health Department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen Lamm at the Water Plant, phone number 681-1809.

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank the nurses, staff and doctors at Northwestern hospital for the excellent care I received while I was hospitalized. I especially would like to thank Rev. Ostrom and my many friends who visited and sent cards.

There were three door prizes given away. They were won by Polly, Ann Holmstrom and Mabel Borsvold.

We want to acknowledge some gifts that have come to us, Karen Skadsem gave us some boxes of rummage, and I want to correct a statement in last weeks paper. Lorraine Bengtson did not give us some good rummage, it was Evelyn and Vicky Stalock who gave it to us. Sorry about the mistake but it was given wrong to me, now I am correcting it. Leona Chwialkowski gave us many lovely quilt tops she had made and also some rummage. Thank you all. Anna Rud brought some clothes hangers she had crocheted on. Thanks Anna.

A Notice of Appearance must be filed with the Hearing Examiner within 20 days of the date of service of this Notice if any party intends to appear at the hearing. The Notice of Appearance is not required if the hearing date is less than 20 days from the date of this Notice.

Potential intervenors shall attend the Prehearing Conference scheduled above with information which will facilitate the scheduling of hearings permitting all of the parties to present their evidentiary views in a manner and within a time frame which would be as fair and expeditious as possible. Matters which may be discussed include: the reasonable time period required to prepare direct testimony for filing on all of the issues; the time period for preparation of direct testimony by intervenors; recommended areas for hearings to receive public input regarding the petition, time required for parties to prepare for depositions and other discovery; and other matters that will facilitate full and fair hearings on the Petition.

Persons wishing to participate in the Prehearing Conference are encouraged to file with the Hearing Examiner and serve upon all known parties a Prehearing Statement indicating the person's or group's recommendations regarding the issues to be discussed at the Prehearing Conference. A list of the parties in this proceeding may be obtained by contacting Hearing Examiner Bruce Campbell at 612/341-7602.

FOLLOWING THE CONTESTED HEARING, THE COMMISSION MAY APPROVE ALL OR ANY PART OF THE PROPOSED RATE INCREASE BUT MAY NOT APPROVE AN OVERALL INCREASE GREATER THAN THAT PROPOSED BY THE COMPANY. HOWEVER, THE COMMISSION MAY ADJUST RATES FOR CLASSES OF CUSTOMERS TO LEVELS GREATER OR LESS THAN THOSE PROPOSED BY THE COMPANY AND MAKE OTHER RATE ADJUSTMENTS BASED UPON THE TESTIMONY OF OTHER PARTIES. IF NO PERSON CONTESTS THE PROPOSED RATE INCREASE AT THE HEARING, THE RATES MAY BE APPROVED AS PROPOSED.

"THE CONTROL FACTOR" is the title of a program being conducted through St. Cloud state university to help teenagers make well-founded decisions regarding alcohol and driving. One of the sessions was held in Thief River Falls last week with selected students from a number of area high schools in attendance. Dr. John Palmer, assistant professor of driver education at St. Cloud state university, directs the program. He is shown above reviewing some of the materials used with Lincoln high school students Tonie Swanson, Lori Jorgenson and Cindi Solem. Students also attended from Alvarado, Erskine, Fisher, Greenbush, McIntosh, Roseau, Lancaster, Mentor and Fosston. "The records show that teenagers today start drinking at about the age of 13. By age 15, even before they are old enough for a driver's license, they have already made a choice to be drinkers or non-drinkers," Dr. Palmer said. Now in its third year, "The Control Factor" has reached more than 8,000 high school teenagers. Students who received information on the legal, social and cultural implications of drinking and driving at the session here will provide the same information to students in their own school classes.

Farmers Union Annual Meeting Held At Grygla

Marshall county Farmers Union annual meeting was held at the Grygla community center on Friday, October 28. Beef roast dinner was served by the ladies of St. Clement's church, after which the business meeting was conducted by President Norman Hanson, Goodridge.

Officers for 1983 were introduced, along with guests, Wallace Sistad, manager of the Grygla Farmer's Union Oil Co., and Representative Wallace Sparby and his wife Ione. Sparby was called on to make a few remarks, and told about efforts to seek disaster assistance for farmers in Marshall, Red Lake, Pennington, Beltrami and Polk counties. He also told about the problems of unemployment, and described some of the ways legislators are trying to get help for both farmers and businesses who are affected by problems of the farmers.

Norma Hanson spoke about the need for strong membership in the Farmers Union organization, noting the slogan for 1984 is "Every County Over The Top in 1984." Hanson asked for discussion regarding the merits of a proposal to dissolve small inactive locals such as Gatzke, Thief Lake, Middle River and possibly Ringbo, and forming one large local by combining with the Grygla local, which is the largest.

Dennis Sjodin, Cambridge, assistant to the president of Minnesota Farmer's Union at St. Paul, was the guest speaker. He spoke about the need for cooperation between the farmer and the city businessman. Stating that our country is one of three in the world that has never had a famine, he noted that 28 people in the world die every minute because of malnutrition. He suggested that we need to work together to prevent food being taken for granted until it is not available.

Election of officers was held with the following results: President Norma Hanson, Vice President Bruce Lunsetter, Secretary Carol Anderson and Treasurer Mrs. Leo Orpen.

Crime Victims Now Have Role In Prosecution

Justice in Minnesota officially became a little more evenhanded last month when the new Victims' Rights Act went into effect on August 1. The law is one of several additions and changes the Minnesota legislature made to the state's criminal justice statutes this past legislative session, according to the Minnesota attorney general's office.

One thing the new act does is to include — in a limited way — crime victims in the plea bargaining process. The Victims' Rights Act requires that a prosecutor tell a victim of the terms of a plea agreement and inform the victim of his or her right to be present at the sentencing hearing. If the victim objects to the plea agreement or the proposed disposition, he or she has the right to express that objection in writing. If the victim can't be present when the court considers the recommendation, the prosecutor must inform the court of the victim's written objection. Either way the court becomes aware of the victim's viewpoint.

The act also grants a victim the right to request restitution. If you are a crime victim and you wish to exercise this right, you must submit a written affidavit specifying what was lost, the amount of restitution claimed, and how you came up with those figures. You have to make your request to the court three days before the sentencing or dispositional hearing (the hearing where the case is settled). You must give a copy of the request to the prosecutor and the offender at least 24 hours before the hearing. If such a request is made, the court, in determining sentence, must state its reasons for either granting or denying restitution. If restitution is granted, you can still bring a civil action against the offender. The offender will be given credit for restitution paid, however, if the victim wins a money judgment.

The Victims' Rights Act also mandates that the presentence investigation report includes a summary of the harm done to you, a statement of what you believe is the appropriate punishment or disposition and your objections, if any, to the proposed disposition.

Another feature of the act requires that you be notified by the commissioner of corrections or other responsible custodial authority about the impending release (other than work release) of the offender. You assert this right to be notified by mailing to the proper authority a written request for notice.

In addition to the rights summarized above, the legislature provided for more positive ways of assisting crime victims. By February 1, 1984, the commissioner of corrections must present to the legislature a plan to provide victims with information about victim services — i.e., victim crisis centers, programs for victims of sexual assault, victim witness programs, elderly victims projects, victim assistance hotlines, incest abuse programs and domestic violence shelters and programs.

The Victims' Rights Act also toughens the state's existing witness tampering laws. It encourages witnesses in trails to testify against defendants who on their own or through agents try to influence witness testimony through intimidation and coercoin. The act increases the situations which comprise such behavior.

With the passage of the Victim's Rights Act, Minnesota joins a growing number of other states which are attempting to give crime victims a legitimate sense that the criminal justice system both recognizes and cares about their needs and concerns.

For further information about the Victim's Rights Act, contact the Minnesota Attorney General's Office, 102 State Capitol, St. Paul, MN 55155.

$600 Million Loan Program Is Offered

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has applauded a decision by the U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) to implement a $600 million loan program for farmers stricken by economic emergencies.

"I requested direct action on this back in August," Congressman Stangeland said. "Hopefully, these loans will help many farm families to spring back from economic disasters."

Announcement of the economic emergency loan program came from assistant secretary of agriculture Frank Naylor at a hearing of the Senate agriculture subcommittee on ag production, marketing and stabilization of prices.

Naylor said that loans of up to $400,000 would be available to qualified farmers. Interest rates would be set at USDA's cost to borrow the funds plus a slight administrative charge. Under present conditions, this should translate into interest rates of 11¼ per cent for production loans and 11¾ per cent for real estate loans.

The USDA official said that criteria would be set for loan qualifications in November and the funds should be available by mid-December.

Criteria would probably cover farmers who pursued good management practices but were hit hard by adverse economic conditions, including the cost-price squeeze or a lack of credit, Naylor said.

Congressman Stangeland urged farmers to contact their local Farmers Home administration (FmHA) office in mid-November for details. He said he pushed for this program when it was authorized in the 1981 farm bill. The USDA did not implement the program in 1982, and a U.S. district court recently ordered the department to gear up for the program. Naylor said the USDA would not appeal that decision.

"In meetings with northwest Minnesota farmers this summer, I was asked to get a new FmHA office opened in Crookston, new FmHA disaster teams trained for the area, the $600 million in loans made available, and disaster declarations issued for 1983 crop damage," Congressman Stangeland said. "We now have the first three, and I am working on the 1983 disaster relief."

Fuel For Home Heat Exempt From Sales Tax

Users of natural gas or electricity do not have to pay sales tax on fuel purchases for the billing months of November of 1983 through April of 1984, State Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls reminded constituents recently.

"Ushers should remember that the fuel must be a preimary source of residential heat," Sparby said. "Remember to check heating bills and see that the exemption is made," he said.

Also exempt are purchases of fuel oil, coal, steam, propane gas, L.P. gas and kerosene devellered to residential customers. Users who pick up purchases of these home heating fuels are reminded that they are required to have a written statement that the fuels are to be used for residential use. Retailers will keep these statements on file.

Representative Sparby also said that firewood for residential use is exempt whether delivered or picked up by users, but firewood for commercial use is taxable. Sales of artificial fireplace logs are taxable.

Becuase of law change made during the 1983 legislative session, users of electricity for agricultural purposes will no longer be able to claim credit on their state income tax return for sales tax paid on electricity, Sparby said.

Instead, users must now apply directly with the sales tax division for a refund on sales tax paid on electricity used in agricultural production, Sparby said.

To save time and reduce paperwork, Sparby recommended agricultural users of electricity apply directly to the electrical retailer for examption. Upon receiving the properly completed fuels and energy exemption certificate, the electrical retailer will grant exemption for the percentage of electricity used for other purposes, said Sparby.

Refund forms are available at the Minnesota Department of Revenue, Sales Tax Division, St. Paul, MN 55155 or call 296-6181, or toll-free 1-800-652-9747.

You can't help loving this little pup. Maybe it's because he seems so out of proportion. If he somehow were able to flop those ears he might fly away.

Perhaps there is a little fellow in your home who is "all ears" in another sense . . . a youngster who takes in everything that's said, including some things he isn't meant to hear.

Most children are eager to listen . . . hungry to learn. That is why the early years are so important in the molding of a child's character.

The things he hears, whether right or wrong, make a deep impression on his mind. They are soon reflected in his actions and words.

Wise parents take advantage of the Church's program of religious education in implanting those early impressions. They know there is no surer builder of character than religious faith.

NOW . . . while your child is eager to hear and to learn, bring him to church . . . and support the Church in its great undertaking.

ASK THE STATE PATROL

Col. Roger Ledding

Q. I don't drink beer, so my friends want me to drive when we go out. They claim they can drink in my car if I'm driving and not drinking. Are they right? How about if I use our van?
—D. T., New Ulm

A. No one in a private motor vehicle on a public highway may have in his posession a container of intoxicating beverage or non-intoxicating malt liquor if the seal has been broken, the cap removed, or the contents partially removed. The owner — or the driver if the owner is not present — can be held responsible if passengers violate that law. Drinking is prohibited in all motor vehicles, including vans, buses and recreational vehicles.

Q. Can I pull my boat trailer behind my pickup and trailer? I see big trucks with two trailers.
—V. S., Sandstone

A. No. Twin trailers are limited to truck-tractor and trailer combinations regularly engaged in transporting goods. They have to travel designated routes. There are also two exceptions for farm trailers. One is for bulk milk haulers on their first haul. The other is that two empty farm trailers or fertilizer tanks may be towed behind a farm pickup within 35 miles of the farmer's post office no faster than 35 mph.

Of interest last week. . .
It appears that many motorists have allowed their no fault insurance to lapse. The penalties for that can be severe. Your license plates may be suspended or confiscated. Under certain circumstances, your driver's license could also be suspended. A new state law says that you have to give the name of your insurance company, its address, and the name of its local agent to other drivers involved in an accident or to the law enforcement officer at the scene. If you don't have the information with you, you will have to provide it within 72 hours. It is also a misdemeanor to falsely claim to have no fault insurance when registering a vehicle.

Remember. . .
At an uncontrolled intersection, always yield the right of way to the motorist on your right.

It's the law. . .
Minnesota law requires that every vehicle carrying liquefied petroleum (LP) gas or natural gas in a concealed tank attached to the vehicle has to display the words "Pressurized Flammable Gas" in letters of contrasting colors at least two inches high, or a standard abbreviation or symbol approved by the Minnesota Department of Public Safety, placed as near as possible to the area where the tank is located.

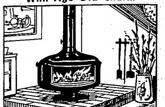
Wood Heating —

New Technologies Mixed With Age-Old Charm



Milder winters have helped many Americans adjust to high fossil fuel prices for home heating. In the meantime, solid-fuel technology has made the age-old tradition of warming American homes an increasingly sophisticated industry.

The words energy efficiency have taken on new meaning. Fireplace manufacturers, not content with sharpening the performance level of heat circulating models to a remarkable 50+ percent efficiency, are concentrating once again on aesthetics. Ironically, they are making an efficient fireplace look less efficient and more decorative.

Stove manufacturers, also affected by the demand for aesthetics, are producing decorator models, although the traditional "black box" is still preferred in some cases.

But woodburning stoves were never really expected to be pretty like a fireplace. They've always had to perform. And, the "ugly black box" has been the subject of accusations focusing on safety and the environment. What has resulted is the catalyst — similar to what is found in modern automobiles. Catalytic stoves were introduced about three years ago. Manufacturers claim these products significantly boost heating efficiency while decreasing wood-smoke pollution and creosote buildup.

What above the seven or eight million stoves warming American's homes without benefit of the catalyst? Manufacturers have responded to this need by introducing the catalytic retrofit — an accessory that attaches to a woodstove not already manufactured with the catalyst, priced between $100 and $200. Labeled by industry trade magazines as "the accessory of the year", catalytic retrofits are in early stages of safety testing. In fact, the industry association, the Wood Heating Alliance, is developing safety standards with Underwriter's Laboratory at this time.

Wood heating has been around longer than history books can record. But sophistication has just recently come to this industry in the last decade. Rising fossil fuel prices and threats of oil embargos have made wood, America's renewable alternative fuel, one hope for energy independence.

Time To Vote Again

In a political climate where campaigns tend to run longer and longer and cost more and more money, the pace associated with local elections are a refreshing change of pace. The campaigning duration is short, the candidates are generally well known and the issues, if any, are usually understood.

More importantly, local elections provide the individual voter with the greatest opportunity to have an impact on the outcome. The one vote cast can make a big different in an election and the support of a candidate by an individual can sway other voters to increase the extent of that impact.

We would encourage all eligible voters in the city of Thief River Falls to go to the polls Tuesday in the city election. Polls are open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. for the convenience of voters. Polling places are Northrop school for Ward I, the city auditorium for Wards II and III, Knox school for Ward IV and Franklin for Ward V.

There are two city-wide races this year with Mayor Bob Carlson opposed by Dave Strong on a write-in campaign and alderman-at-large J.J. Womack opposed by Glenn Espe. In the third ward Ambrose Wysoski is opposed by Tony Maunich. Incumbents Milan Borsheim in the first ward and Clayton Restad in the fifth ward are unopposed.

Without comment on any of the candidates in the races where there are more than one candidate, it is good to see enough interest in city government that an election contest is created. This is also stimulates voter interest and usually results in a larger turn-out of voters at the polls — a positive result in any election.

Our congratulations and encouragement to each of the candidates, incumbents and challengers alike, for their willingness to serve in public office. It shouldn't be too much to ask for voters to go to the polls and cast their ballots for the candidates of their choice.

Ethical Outdoor Conduct

Following editorial is from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

Hunting is such an important part of life in this area that it is easy to overlook the simple fact that a majority of Americans do not participate.

No figures are available on the number of non-hunters who are also opposed to the sport, but it is clear that there is growing pressure to control or halt hunting in many areas.

That pressure, right or wrong, makes it imperative for those who thrill to the hunt to make certain that their conduct in the field is beyond reproach. It is pointless to scoff at those who disagree with us as their voices become stronger and more effective.

Major studies have been completed to determine the attitude of the general public toward hunting and hunters. Participants were asked in 1967 to select from a long list of adjectives those that they thought best described hunters. A similar study was conducted 13 years later to determine if those attitudes have changed.

Hunters went down slightly as respecters of the law in the most recent survey. They ranked about the same as in 1967 as far as being careful in concerned. They gained ground in respectability and friendliness but lost points as "good sports."

An alarming trend was detected — the unfavorable adjectives of "tough, cruel, careless, inconsiderate and irresponsible" were selected about twice as often as they had been in 1967. Derogatory words were not chosen as often as the favorable terms, but a change is apparent.

Much of that change is probably connected to the rapid proliferation of active, well-financed anti-hunting organizations. Such groups are capitalizing on the foolish behavior of a minority of hunters — people who don't really deserve that title — and publicizing their mistakes in a manner that reflects on all who enjoy the sport.

Hunters must realize that a growing share of the public is watching and weighing our behavior. Violators hurt everyone. [illegible] ners on the lakes and in the woods or field do great harm.

Minnesota has effective programs for Youth Firearms Safety Training and Adult Hunter Education. Both emphasize the importance of law-abiding, sportsmanlike behavior and respect for the game hunted. The Izaak Walton League has long promoted outdoor ethics, and numerous conservation-minded groups have similar goals.

Men, women and children who hunt should take a careful look at their own behavior. If we wish to continue enjoying this great outdoor sport, we had better make sure we do nothing to discredit it.

Why Court Adversaries?

Columnist Patrick Buchanan makes a very valid point in a recent column when he states that "those women for reproductive rights and ERA are not the criterion of political support. They are lost forever to Ronald Reagan. Forget them. They are beyond recovery."

Buchanan was referring to the flap caused when Barbara Honneger, a lower level employee in the justice department, publicly denounced the President's plan to cleanse the federal code of sexist content as a "sham". Instantly the young woman with one month remaining on a consulting contract had been summoned for comment on all the major television networks and was being sought for book contracts and lecture tours.

Honneger's cause was aided by public comments from within the administration that referred to her as a "low level munchkin" and recalled her identity as the Easter bunny on the Easter egg hunt. Those comments, while accurately depicting Honneger's relative significance as a critic, were not the brightest under the circumstances.

Buchanan said they reminded him of Casey Stengel, after going from manager of the New York Yankees to the New York Mets, crying aloud from the dugout, "Can't anyone here play this game?"

"How many times does it need saying?" Buchanan asks. " 'Gender gap' like 'hunger in America' is a media issue, a no-win issue for the President. It is being managed and manipulated by the press and framed in a fashion as always to leave the President on the defensive. 'Mr. President, why is it that women are so opposed to your administration?' ".

He asks when was the last time anyone has seen Walter Mondale asked on national television: "Mr. Mondale, why is it your party got only a little more than one third of the male vote in American in 1980' Is the Democratic party not being perceived as too weak on national security and too wimpish toward the Russians and how do you propose to change this image?"

The columnist notes that not only are several of the feminist groups irretrievably lost to the president, there is no hard evidence that Ronald Reagan is on the wrong side politically. He suggests that the right to life movement remains a more dangerous political adversary than the NARAL and NOW. People tend to give one answer to the pollsters and another in the polling booth. In liberal New York state, where ERA had every trendy endorsement, it was defeated by 400,000 votes.

"Assume, for argument's sake," he writes, "that the votes are now on the feminist side. There is still no way Ronald Reagan can cross over and compete with Walter 'I Am a Feminist' Mondale. To make the attempt is to demoralize his people, to ask to be judged by a standard by which any traditionalist convervative will fall short. . .

"As a voting bloc, the feminist movement is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Democratic National committee. Nor is it an unmixed blessing to that party. All those mannish women and feminist men it produces in such numbers and exhibits from the podiums of its national conventions helped to drive millions of rednecks and blue collars into the Republican ranks, giving the party the historic landslides of 1972 and 1980."

What should be clear to the President and his aides is that there is no point in attempting to court his adversaries. They are obnoxiously unappreciative of any effort directed in their behalf and seem to be more intent on complaining than achieving. Buchanan is right: "Forget them. They are beyond recovery."

Borrowed Nonsense:

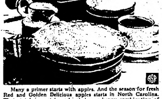
Words of Wisdom: If you systematically save a part of your income every month for 20 years, at [illegible] of that time you'll be an exception.

The carnival pitchman was touting the life-sustaining properties of his bottled elixir. "You too can be like me," he promised, "200 years old and never felt better in my life."

The skeptical listener pulled the pitchman's young assistant aside. "Say," he asked the sweet young lady, "is he really 200 years old?"

"I really don't know," the beauty whispered. "I've only been with him for 80 years."

'A' Is For Apples From North Carolina



Many a primer starts with apples. And the season for fresh Red and Golden Delicious apples starts in North Carolina. That state's mountain orchards have a happy combination of warm days and cool nights which get the fruit ready for market sooner than crops from other parts of the country.

The United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association recommends eating apples out-of-hand as snacks that act as "Nature's toothbrush." For fresh apple pie, try this biscuit topped deep-dish recipe with North Carolina apples.

Deep-Dish Delicious Apple Pie

- 8 cups pared, cored and thinly sliced Red or Golden Delicious apples (about 8 medium)
- ¾ cup packed light brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
- ¼ cup flour
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon grated fresh lemon rind

Topping:

- 2 cups prepared biscuit mix
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- ⅔ cup milk

To prepare filling, pare, core and thinly slice apples. Place in 1-quart casserole. Sprinkle with brown sugar, lemon juice, flour, salt, nutmeg, and lemon rind.

To prepare topping, mix biscuit mix, sugar and milk in bowl until smooth. Form into a ball and roll out on floured surface to a circle 9 inches in diameter, or 2 inches larger than diameter of casserole. Place over apples and seal around edge. Bake in 400° F. oven 45 minutes until topping is browned and apples are tender. Serve warm with cream or ice cream.

Makes: 6 servings.

MAYOR & COUNCIL PRESIDENT
BOB CARLSON

Dear Voters:

In the next two weeks much is going to be said by the candidates running for the position of Mayor in the upcoming election on Nov. 8, 1983. I am running for re-election and I will stand on my record in serving you these past ten years as your Mayor. It has been the most rewarding experience of my life. I feel that I have given this city and its citizens the leadership that is required of a Mayor, and at all times have tried to be a representative, for you the citizens, that you could be proud of. I ask you not to take this position of Mayor lightly. It is a position that requires experience, ability to lead and to motivate, one that requires that you be able to be free to give of your time in carrying out the duties of Mayor. This I have done and will be able to continue to do. We have been able to accomplish many things and have made much progress these past ten years. New opportunities are here, and the future looks brighter for our city in the coming years.

I want to continue to be your Mayor and I ask you for your loyal support that you have given me in the past.

Sincerely yours,
Bob Carlson

Four TRF Scouts Advance To Ranking As Eagles

Four Thief River Falls young men received the ranking of Eagle scout during the past several months at ceremonies conducted in Thief River Falls and at the 15th world scout jamboree at Kananaskis county, Alberta.

James VanSchaick, son of Mrs. Bonnie VanSchaick, received his Eagle scout award from Lord Robert Baden-Powell, grandson of the founder of the Boy scouts, at the jamboree. It was the first Eagle scout award ever presented by the British scouting leader who said he was very pleased to be asked to present the award.

Receiving their Eagle awards locally were Paul Cuppett, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cuppett; Rodney Helm, son of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Helm; and Michael Melby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Melby.

Hospital Gets Full Three Year Accreditation

Northwestern hospital services in Thief River Falls recently has been awarded a full three-year accreditation by the joint commission on accreditation of hospitals as a result of surveys which were conducted in June and July of this year.

"The joint commission awards varying levels of accreditation and I am extremely pleased that a three-year accreditation was received," stated Richard Spyhalski, hospital administrator.

The JCAH consists of the American College of Physicians, American College of Surgeons, American Hospital association, American Dental association and the American Medical association. Their offices are based in Chicago, IL, and they conducted surveys of health care facilities to compare each facility to nationally accepted standards for health care. In this way, individual health care facilities are compared to the standards versus being compared to neighboring hospitals.

Spyhalski stated, "This accreditation would not have been possible without the assistance of our employees and medical staff." The three-year accreditation is the longest awarded by the joint commission.

Veterans Day Program Includes Special Events

Special Veterans day observance in Thief River Falls will include a brief parade and a memorial service, special ringing of church bells and sounding of the city fire siren. Sounding of the siren and bells at 11 a.m. will signal opening of the memorial service and remind others of the special remembrance of our nation's veterans.

Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion color guards, auxiliary units, Cooties and other units will assemble at the American Legion club rooms at 10 a.m. for the morning parade Friday. All veterans are encouraged to march in the parade and to wear their service uniforms if possible.

At 10:30 a.m. the parade will begin at the American Legion club rooms and proceed north down Main avenue to Second street, turning east on Second street and proceeding to the Veterans of Foreign Wars club rooms at the corner of Second and Horace. The memorial service will be held there at the flagpole on the east side of the building.

Following the special sounding of the fire siren and church bells, Rev. Berton R. Hushagen of Trinity Lutheran church will give the invocation, Mayor Bob Carlson, commanders and auxiliary presidents of the American Legion and VFW will give brief addresses and students from St. Bernard's school will sing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." Taps will also be played.

Mrs. Donna Olson, who has been arranging the observance locally, said that the parade will include Boy scouts and Girl scouts as well as color guards and military veterans. Three drummers from Lincoln high school will participate and a riderless horse will signify the nation's war dead.

"Today there is, and perhaps there always will be, conflict in the world," Mrs. Olson said. "Like other things of great value, our nation's security did not come cheaply. Part of the cost has already been paid by Americans who answered the call to military duty and never returned. Those that have returned need their country's help — even as their country once needed their's — to readjust, to recover from wounds or to overcome hardships of age and infirmity.

"Many need nor ask anything in repayment of their sacrifices," she added. "Let us continue to help those veterans in need with the greatest possible compassion and efficiency. For the rest, since they ask no special thanks, we can best pay tribute to them by recognizing what they have achived and in joining them in their resolve to keep America strong and free.

"Our military men are still fighting and dying in Lebanon and Grenada, so when the whistle blows and the church bells ring on the 11th hour of the 11th day of November, take a moment for silent prayer. American remains number one because of our veterans."

Coverage of the parade will be carried live on KTRF radio and broadcast on Channel 3 TV at 6:30 p.m. Friday.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Brenda Kay Hesse And Daniel Larson Are Wed

Brenda Kay Hesse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Hesse, Plummer, and Daniel Alvin Larson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Larson, Oklee, exchanged marriage vows recently at a three o'clock ceremony at the Salem Lutheran church, rural Oklee.

Rev. Charles Gunderson officiated at the double-ring ceremony. At the organ was Pam Hesse, Fargo, N.D., a cousin of the bride. Debbie Koskela and DeeAnn Huotari, friends of the couple, sang "Through the Eyes of Love," "Wedding Song," and "You and I."

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a white organza gown sttyled with a molded Chantilly lace bodice featuring Venice lace appliques at the Queen Anne neckline and on the long,tapered lace sleeves. Attached at the empire waistline was a bouffant skirt complemented by verticle bands of reembroidered scalloped lace, trimmed with iridescents. In back were multi-tiers of ruffled lace which breated a bustle effect and flowed into a semi-cathedral train. Double lace ruffles edged the skirt and train. Her lace-edged mantilla of imported bridal illusion was held by a lace headpiece trimmed with pearls and iridescents. She carried a bouquet of silk roses and stephanotis in shades of pink, rose and white, made by Florence Tvedt of Plummer.

Connie Christianson, Thermopolis, Wyo., a cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Kelly Flatgard, a friend of the bride; Debbie Dahl, Middle River, a cousin of the bride, and Heidi Larson, sister of the groom. They wore light dusty rose, floor-length, spaghetti-strap gowns topped by jackets with short, ruffled sleeves. They carried bouquets of silk roses and carnations in dusty rose, white and burgundy.

Amamda Grinde, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Her white, floor-length gown with pink ribbons on the sleeves, was designed by Vickie Hesse. To complete her attire, she wore a wreath of flowers in her hair and carried a bouquet similar to those carried by the bridesmaids.

The rings were carried by Seth Culkins, also a cousin of the bride. Like the groom's attendants, he wore a gray tuxedo with a rosebud boutonniere.

The groom wore a gray tuxedo with trails, a white ruffled shirt, and a triple rosebud boutonniere. His best man was Henry Klases, a friend. Groomsmen were Dale Flatgard, a friend; Dan Hesse, brother of the bride; and Don Christianson, Thermopolis, Wyo., a friend. Serving as ushers were Joel Kvasager, Oklee, a cousin of the groom, and Dean Hesse, Red Lake Falls, a brother of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Hesse was attired in a light blue, floor-length gown with long-sheer sleeves. The groom's mother wore a blue, short-sleeved floor-length gown. Their corsages were of shaded dusty rose roses together with white and burgundy carnations.

Honored guests were Mrs. Esther Dahl, Middle River, grandmother of the bride; Mrs. Diane Grinde, Red Lake Falls and Bill Simpson, Thief River Falls, godparents of the bride; Harold and Alpha Halvorson, godparents of the groom; and Linda Kay Hesse, the bride's cousin, who served as personal attendant.

A reception followed the ceremony. Host couples were Clarence and Diane Dahl, uncle and aunt of the bride, and Harold and Alpha Halvorson, uncle and aunt of the groom. Vickie Hesse and Jodi Malwitz, cousins of the bride, served the punch and Wendy Larson, a sister of the groom, was at the guest book. Serving as gift bearers were Tom Hesse and Wade Grinde, cousins of the bride.

At the coffee service were Donna Kvasager, aunt of the groom, and Diane Grinde, aunt and godmother of the bride. Doris Malwitz, aunt of the bride, and Bdrb Culkins, cousin of the bride, cut and served the pillard, three-tiered wedding cake decorated with roses and topped by a bride and groom, centered in a heart. The cake was baked and decorated by Diane Dahl.

Waitresses were Kari and Kathy Larson, cousins of the groom, and Nancy Jo Hesse and Karen Dahl, cousins of the bride.

Connie Dahl, Middle River, a cousin of the bride, was in charge of the flowers at the ceremony and reception. She made all corsages, boutonnieres, bridesmaids' bouquets, flower girl's headpiece, candle centerpieces for the head table and arranged the roses in vases for the tables and around the unity candle.

The evening prior to the wedding, the groom's parents hosted a dinner at Third Base in Brooks for the entire wedding party.

The bride is a graduate of Plummer high school and the Thief River Falls AVTI and is employed by ASC in Red Lake Falls. The groom received his high school equivalency certificate at the Thief River Falls AVTI, where he completed the course in auto mechanics. The couple is residing in rural Oklee, where the groom is farming with his father.

4-H Members To Attend Focus In Washington

4-H members from the counties throughout the United States are now making plans to attend one of the cooperative extension service's most exciting and successful programs offered — 'Citizenship Washington Focus.' Over 5,600 15 to 18 year olds are expected to attend this 25 year old program next summer in Washington, D.C.

Members will attend one-week sessions in June, July or August. Many of these teenagers will have an opportunity to meet their senators and representatives to discuss problems and possible solutions to real life concerns related to economics, agriculture, energy, conservation and more.

Their home base for the week will be the national 4-H center, a beautiful 12-acre campus located on the outskirts of Washington. Last summer participants learned about the election process by running their own political campaigns and elections. They also toured federal agencies and visited historical sites. But most of all, they met other 4-H members from all around the United States and shared ideas, concerns and friendships.

Those who attended from Pennington county were: Jerry Bjerke, Silverton 4-H; John Hamre, Smiley 4-H; and Scott Muzzy, Steiner 4-H clubs. The program inspires teenagers to become active, involved citizens in their communities when they return home.

Tax Managing Letter Course To Be Offered

Farm income tax management isn't getting any simpler. Every year legislation brings new changes in the rules. In Minnesota, with the highest marginal tax rate, tax management becomes a particularly important component of overall farm management. Because of this, extension economists in farm management, Earl Fuller, Perry Fales and Paul Hasbargen, are putting together a series of home study letters that farmers can subscribe to.

Topics covered include income shifting and averaging, managing the depreciation schedule, capital gains tax, and ways to divide the income among family members. Tax effects of alternative ways of doing business will also be covered. There will be a discussion of things farmers can do after year-end and options as they fill in the forms. Though it is not a course in how to fill in the tax forms, the letters will discuss in some detail the farmer's tax guide example farm situation and what can be done to save taxes, even at tax time.

To sign up, send a check for $10, to cover reproduction and mailing costs, payable to the University of Minnesota, Extension Farm Management, 249 Classroom Office Bldg., 1994 Buford, St. Paul, MN 55108. Cut-off date for subscriptions is November 30.

Changes Being Made In FmHA Offices Here

Administrative changes are being made in the Thief River Falls farmers home administration (FmHA) office. As of November 15, the Thief River Falls FmHA office will no longer handle Red Lake county and the McIntosh FmHA office will have jurisdiction of the FmHA loans in Red Lake county. All of the present Red Lake county FmHA borrowers will conduct their business through the office in McIntosh.

Another change that will take place later is that the Thief River Falls FmHA office will assume jurisdiction of FmHA business in that part of Marshall county located east of highway 32. Thief River Falls FmHA office will take over the Marshall county files on or about December 1.

TRF Area Beef Producers Aid At Institute

After the usual beef supper, Terry Courneya, Pennington county extension director, moderated a panel of livestock producers who showed slides and explained how they have proceeded into the 1980's with their production and marketing systems.

Loiell Dyrud, Thief River Falls, explained his system of cross-breeding, recordkeeping and progress in coming up with the "perfect cow". Dyrud noted that he maintains a purebred polled Hereford herd as well as a commercial herd largely with Tarantaise crosses.

Dyrud's system of management includes a heavy emphasis on artificial breeding. He noted that his herd has not grown very rapidly because he has culled extensively, being concerned to a high degree with milk production and udder and teat conformation. Another goal which was set early in the operation was to have a cow that would produce a calf that would be 60 per cent of the mother's weight at weaning. This required Dyrud to back off the somewhat larger cows that he had started with and work toward a cow of approximately 1,200 pounds genetically suited to a large calf.

Allen Ruzicka, Lankin, ND, showed pictures of his operation and explained his feedlot marketing strategies. Ruzicka noted that he was in a good location having several local slaughtering markets near at hand. He explained that although the local markets did not take large numbers, they bought cattle almost weekly and paid near "top of the market" prices for his cattle. He was satisfied that this has given him a good average price regardless of the wide variation which cattle producers have had to deal with in the marketplace.

Ruzicka obtains his cattle from several sources and introduces them into his feedlot from varied backgrounds and primarily finishes them to slaughter weight. One farmer in particular in his area supplies him with stock that he has brought along from weaning age in the fall to a spring feeders market. He keeps cattle in his feedlot year around turning over approximately 250 head at three different intervals with diminishing numbers as his local market absorbs the finished product. He feeds mostly steers.

Ruzicka feeds a lot of alfalfa and has recently put up two Harvestore silos which are as yet untested in his operation. He feeds approximately one pound of barley for every 100 pounds of body weight along with a pound of 22 per cent protein supplement as well as Rumensin in his feed.

The final speaker on the panel was Howard Hanson who presented information on the cow-calf operation which he and his father Harry Hanson have developed in eastern Pennington county. Hanson noted that they try to feed a lot of forage to their 150 cows. They utilize and even fertilize some of the quackgrass growing on heavy peat soils in their area, using this area for pasture because it is difficult to crop in any other manner.

They use a chopper-stacker unit and place all the stacks in convenient locations with their moving equipment. They do not try to house all of the livestock during the winter but promote areas which are sheltered and protected and build deep straw and manure packs which provide comfort for beef animals throughout the winter.

In some years, they pasture yearling steers for part of the season and at times pasture at least the lighter end of the yearling steer selection. Hanson indicated that they try to have good fall pasture which takes the place of some creep feeding.

The feeder cattle demonstration by the Central Livestock association of West Fargo was introduced by Carl Spong who has represented Central Livestock association for all of the cattlemen's institute sessions since it began. He was assisted by Lee Ebsen, Bert Hagel, Roy Ernst and Dan Treangen of West Fargo.

The feedlot commentary was presented by Wallace Elde and Mel Kirkeide, extension livestock specialists, NDSU, Fargo, ND. Each animal presented for discussion had been graded, characterized and the economic payoff calculated on the basis of feed costs and likely rate of gain for each class.

Sam Bigger, West Polk county extension director, presided over the 21st annual institute. He introduced the program committee and thanked the institute sponsors who were the Northwest experiment station, Crookston; Minnesota agricultural extension service; North Dakota agricultural extension service; Central Livestock association, Fargo; and many of the northwest Minnesota banks who had provided dinner tickets for their customers attending the institute.

For 10 years his family and friends worked on construction of the ship, using more than 100 cut and molded white oak trees. Hjemkomst means homecoming in Norwegian. The ship reached Bergen, Norway after sailing 6,100 miles from Duluth across the Atlantic ocean this summer. coming summer in Canada?"

Following Baden-Powell's conducting of the award ceremony, he said, "I've never presented an Eagle Scout award before in my life. Anybody who becomes an Eagle scout is a very special person. I feel very humble because they are very special." He thanked VanSchaick for asking him, saying the request was "super."

A recognition ceremony was conducted August 21 at United Methodist church in Thief River Falls with Jim Hoks, scoutmaster of Troop 59, giving the welcome. Scoutmaster Bob Puetz recognized special guests and the Eagle charge was given by Quentin Jones, Voyageur Trails district Eagle advancement chairman. Jeffrey Smidt, president of the Seven Oaks district at Winnipeg, brought a greeting from the Venturer Scouts there and special remarks were made by Adolphe Smidt, parent and Venturer advisor.

Additional international scouting comments were made by Walter Carter, scouter with the Interlake District Manitoba council. Other scouting awards include Order of the Arrow, Ordeal Member and Brotherhood Member. Ushers were Andy Melby and Tony Hoffard and Becky Melby was at the guest book.

Michael became a Cub scout in Pack 59 in 1975, became a Webelos and earned 10 activity badges. He received his arrow of light award in 1979 and his God and Family award as a Cub scout. After becoming a Boy scout in 1979, he advanced through tenderfoot, second class, first class, star and life ranks, receiving 34 merit badges.

He has served as senior patrol leader, patrol leader, den chief, leadership corps, quartermaster, assistant patrol leader, bugler, scribe and assistant quartermaster. He is a member of the Order of the Arrow, an Ordeal member and treasurer of Pa-hin Lodge 27.

He has received his Pro Deo et Patria award, Paul Bunyan axman award, mile swim and international crest and participated in a number of camps and other scouting activities.

A sophomore at Lincoln high school he is active in band, stage band, wind ensemble, marching and pep bands, German club, stage and lighting crew, basketball, football, honor student and student manager for football.

For his Eagle project he made 75 Bible or book desk stands for residents of Valley home, assisted by Bill Carlson, Bill Nygaard, Greg Hall, Andy Melby and Mark and Wayne Borsheim. Michael put 103 hours into the project himself.

THIS GROUP OF SCOUTS came from scout camp as a special delegation to attend the ceremonies when Paul Cuppett of Thief River Falls became an Eagle scout. Cuppett is pictured second from right in the front row.

FIRST TIME that an Eagle scout award has been presented by Lord Baden-Powell to an American scout was when James Van Schaick of Thief River Falls received the award at the 15th world jamboree this summer. VanSchaick is pictured with the British grandson of the founder of the scouting movement in the photo above.

Jergen Bjerklie Of Gonvick Dies Saturday

Jergen Bjerklie, 74, died Saturday at his home in Gonvick.

Funeral services for Jergen Bjerklie will be held Tuesday at 11:00 a.m., at the Nazareth Lutheran church, rural Trail, with Rev. Roger Fehr officiating.

The Carlin Funeral home, Fosston, is in charge of arrangements. A complete obituary will be published in a later edition of the Times.

Correction

In the Byron Dirks obituary published in the October 31st edition of the Times, there were several errors. Dirks was born Feb. 17, 1900 (not 1980) has a step-son Marland Johnson (not Marlan) and six step-great-grandchildren, (not three). The Times regrets the errors.

REFLECTI NS

There is nothing more magical than being loved. The secure knowledge that you are cared for deeply gives you an inner peace that no other emotion can match. Let the people you care about know they are loved. It is the most precious gift you can bestow and it provides an inner strength that helps cope with hard times. Love is indeed the most magical of gifts . . . bestow it generously.

TRF Mother Of Marine Spends Anxious Days

When Mrs. Eva Ayers of rural Thief River Falls received a call from her son Randall Tuesday, it provided a release of anxiety which had built up over a number of days. Randall is a Lance Corporal in the U.S. Marines and had been stationed in Okinawa on a first alert readiness basis.

Bombing of the marine corps headquarters in Lebanon and the U.S. invasion of Grenada were foremost in the news and Mrs. Ayers hadn't received a letter from her son in two weeks. Usually he writes nearly every day.

"I didn't think troops from the Pacific would be sent to either place," Mrs. Ayers said, "but when I realized his last letter was dated October 17 I really got concerned. Several people told me they had heard that marines from Okinawa were going to Lebanon and Grenada.

"We receive many letters a week and when they stopped coming I began to worry. Packages he told us he had planned to send did not arrive and I thought he may have been transferred without having time to send them," she added.

Tuesday morning she called the marine corps office in Grand Forks to see if she could get any information. The recruiter said marine corps personnel here had orders to provide as much information to parents and spend as much time talking with them as possible. He said he was quite sure that Ayers was not in Grenada or Lebanon but said that if no word was received by the weekend he would call further to see if he could find out where Randall was.

About 3:15 p.m. Randall called from California where he had returned to Camp Pendleton at San Mateo. He explained that a hectic schedule prior to leaving after a six-month tour in the Pacific was completed was his reason for not writing more letters. The Pacific tour included training in the Philippine Islands and time in Hong Kong. The 18-hour flight home included a stop in Anchorage, AK.

Letters and packages began arriving late last week, Mrs. Ayers said, and Lance Corporal Ayers will be heading home in six weeks for a Christmas leave with his mother, brothers and sisters.

Veterans Day To Be Observed This Friday

"America is number one thanks to our veterans," is the theme of the 1983 veterans day ceremonies at Arlington national cemetery and other sites nationally.

The 30th annual veterans day observance at Arlington on Friday, November 11, will begin at 11 a.m. with the presidential wreath-laying ceremony at the tomb of the unknown soldier, with other activities to follow in the recently-renovated amphitheatre at the cemetery.

Administrator of Veterans Affairs Harry N. Walters, who serves as the veterans day national committee chairman, said that while Arlington captures much of the national attention on veterans day, the rest of the nation's observances are as meaningful. "While the veterans administration is the means by which all Americans are able to express the spirit of veterans day all year long, it is on this special day that we all can gather to voice our thankfulness," Walters said.

To support nationwide activities, Walters has asked all state governors to name veterans day chairpersons for activities in their respective states. Person appointed will be responsible for coordinating the various activities throughout the state and will represent the governor in dealing with the service organizations, military officials, active members of many communities and the myriad of other citizens who recognize veterans day as a very special occasion.

Some 6,000 packages of promotional materials including posters, booklets with information on proper display of the flag and a veterans day history have been mailed to the states for intra-state distribution. Another 25,000 promotional kits have been mailed to schools across the country to enlist the support and understanding of America's youth in this annual observance.

FACTUAL NEWS REPORTING
EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

A Forgotten Word

News media coined the term "Reagonamics" when dealing with President Ronald Reagan's program to reduce inflation, increase productivity and get the nation's economy on the move again. For the most part the term was used in derogatory fashion to discredit the President and his program.

The television networks and the large daily newspapers aren't talking or printing much about Reaganomics any more, and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States suggests that it's because it is working and the U.S. business recovery is one of the strongest on record.

"While the economy is still not out of the woods, signs are growing that it may succeed where past recoveries have failed — achieving full recovery without re-igniting high rates of inflation," states Dr. Richard W. Rahn, the U.S. chamber's chief economist.

Much will depend on whether President Reagan's economic policies, particularly his program of tax and spending cuts, can run their full course, Dr. Rahn adds, and what mischief congress, which is all fired up over budget deficits, creates for the economy.

"Its biggest mistake, of course," the economist notes, "would be to attempt to solve the budget problems by raising taxes. Much of the credit for our current economic strength should go to the original economic game plan, which this year is being put into play to a greater extent than ever. The plan called for reduction in taxes, outlays and regulation, along with a moderate and stable monetary growth."

In Rahn's words, here is what has been happening:

+ U.S. output for the first six months of 1983 grew by 2.9 per cent, compared to an average growth of 2.4 per cent in the five last business comebacks.

+ With 300,000 new workers employed in July, U.S. payrolls have added 2.5 million workers since the first of the year, an unprecedented increase for the beginning of a recovery. Grain is approximately double that of the comparable period following the 1974 recession.

+ For 1983, inflation is expected to average 3.3 per cent, a far cry from the double-digit rates before the Reagan economic plan was put into place. Although prices may rise five per cent in 1984 and 1985, the decline in inflation remains the great success story.

What about federal spending and taxes, which together helped push the nation into an economic slump?

That's the bad news. Depiste a series of three reductions in individual income tax rates and unprecedented curbs on spending growth — not cuts in spending, which are out of the question — here is the sad story:

+ Taxes still eat up 19 per cent of the gross national product (GNP), all we produce in goods and services.

+ Spending has skyrocketed to 25 per cent of GNP.

Best that can be said is that neither taxes nor spending is as great as it would be without Reaganomics.

And that's good news.

Something To Cheer About

Publisher Bob Johnson of the Wadena Pioneer-Journal wonders why, since cheerleaders seem to be so successful in boosting spirits at high school, college and professional athletic events, that they couldn't help out in the everyday world as well.

"There's nobody out there cheering for us when we pay the second half of our property taxes this fall or doing cartwheels April 15," he laments. Then he provides a suggested group of yells that could be used for various times and occasions. On that April 15 income tax due date, for instance, he suggests the yell:

"We sold our farm and broke our backs
So we could pay our income tax.
Yes, yes, yes, I-R-S!"

He says cheerleaders in the supermarkets would be a nice touch, cheering:

"Buy a dozen cans of soup,
Some carrots and zucchinis!
See if frozen food's on sale
And don't forget the wienies!
Yay, stomach cramps and Gold Bond stamps!!"

Hospitals wouldn't seem as gloomy if patients were greeted at the front door, he says, by a squad of cheerleaders shouting:

"Feeling poorly? Feeling sickly?
Tummy-hurt and head all ickly?
Welcome! Welcome! Poor sick baby!
We will make you better —
We will charge you lots of money
For one Band-Aid! Ain't that funny?
So have a good time being ill,
But don't die 'til you pay our bill!
Yay, bedpans!"

Johnson even has a cheer for oft-maligned cigarette smokers who he says could use some cheer and rah-rah support:

"Cough, cough, cough!
And hack, hack, hack
Better buy another pack!
Else your good health might come back!
Ihale, exhale, puff, puff, puff!
Yay, lung x-rays!"

So what about the atheltes: Johnson has a cheer for the college football players while they're trying to stay eligible in the classroom:

"Basketweaving, basketweaving 103!
Snap course! Snap course! Get that D!
If your head is like a rock,
Pick a teacher who's a jock!
PE courses! Study hall!
Take them! Take them! Take tham all!
Just stay eligible through the fall!
Go, Bonehead Maths, go! !

But there is probably no cheerleading that would help pep up Minnesota's farmers. We used to say we were cash-crop farmers. When the prices went bad, we became no-cash crop farmers. Now PIK comes along and we're cash no-crop farmers.

Not All Bad

Following editorial is from the Bemidji Pioneer:

We face wear and tear on the nerves from warnings about danger from nuclear power plants which usually turn out to be unjustified. Are we going to go through the wringer again with the so-called greenhouse effect?

If a study prepared for the Environmental Protection Agency is correct, the accumulation of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere is going to produce a rise in temperatures which could cause havoc in various parts of the world. The burning of fossil fuels, mainly coal and oil, is causing the buildup.

What distinguishes the EPA report from some others on the same subject is that it does not treat the greenhouse effect as a theoretical possibility but as a certainty. It also warns that the rise in temperature, which might eventually cause the level of the ocean to rise by several feet because of the melting of the polar ice cap, will begin to occur sooner than anyone thought — possibly in the 1990s.

Now, if the scientific community subscribed unanimously to the EPA findings, the way scientists believe, for instance, in the law of gravity — we could get busy building dikes to hold back the sea and plan for major changes in the way we feel ourselves. In the atmospheric greenhouse, some farming areas would become too hot for the crops they now produce.

But no sooner is the EPA report released than we hear that its warnings are highly exaggerated. Scientists who seem to be as familiar with the carbon dioxide problem as those who contributed to the EPA study have reached quite different conclusions. One of them, Charles Keeling of San Diego's Scripps Institution, even sees some possible beneficial effects in higher content of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere. The increase of CO2 seems to make plants grow faster. We could wind up with more food rather than less. And later the National Academy of Sciences came out with a report on the subject that did not disagree with the EPA findings but seemed to view the problem with much less alarm.

So where are we? We're back behind the eight-ball with chemicals that may or may not cause cancer, with nuclear waste that may or may not be dangerous, and all the other disputed propositions that can keep you awake at night.

Roger Revelle, a University of California professor whose scientific credentials are the best, thinks the greenhouse effect presents a "Serious, serious set of possibilities that we must begin to contend with." All right, let's contend with the possibility that the ocean will overflow, and also with the possibility that it won't. That may be the best we can do for now.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Many a man is always on his toes because his wife is always on his heels.

You would worry less about what people think of you if you knew how seldom they do.

"Any last requests?" the hangman asked the prisoner.

"Yes," he replied. "Be careful of that mole on the side of my neck."

REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

Development of Minnesota's peat resources was the topic of an unusual joint meeting held by the house appropriations, energy and environment and natural resources committees during mini-session.

The chairman of the appropriations committee, who accomanied the governor on his fact-finding visit to the peat-producing countries of Europe, opened the meeting with several comments. According to the chairman, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin and upper Michigan have more peat reserves than any country the governor's party visited in Europe with the exception of the U.S.S.R. Balanced against this fact, Ireland exports 90 per cent of its horticultural peat; the United States imports 85 per cent of its horticultural peat.

The joint committees received testimony from representatives of the department of natural resources (DNR) and the pollution control agency (PCA). The deputy commissioner of DNR said that peat development does not conflict with sound environmental policy, but development calls for a constant commitment to protect the environment.

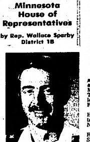
Another DNR official — the peat project director — outlined the department's involvement with peat: the history and background, current peatland management, environmental regulation and present activities.

A PCA official expanded on the state's environmental regulation of peat resources.

However, the testimony that initiated the most discussion was from two representatives of Rajso Torv — the Swedish company that was recently granted a 25-year lease on 2,265 acres of state-owned peat land to begin peat harvesting in Minnesota in 1984. The company currently produces about 50 per cent of Sweden's peat for fuel.

Some important facts were brought out during this final discussion. First, the most economical way to use peat is as a direct combustion fuel. Second, to be economically feasible, the market for peat should be within a 100 to 150-mile radius of its harvest site. And finally, although it takes three tons of peat to do the job of one ton of oil, the oil costs eight times more than peat.

The appropriations committee chairman closed the meeting by saying that there will be much more discussion in various committees in the future.



LCDR NEIL E. RONDORF, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Rondorf of route 3, Thief River Falls, was recently honored by the Honolulu council of the Navy League, for his superior performance during a six-month deployment to the Western Pacific and the Indian Ocean. His commanding officer stated, "As navigator-operations officer of a 688 class fast attack nuclear submarine, he has been instrumental in the tactical planning and execution of ships operations of special importance to the U.S." Rondorf lives with his wife Cheryl and two small sons at the naval submarine base on the island of Oahu.

He Thought That Drinking Wouldn't Make Any Difference, Even Though He Was on a New Medication. But It Did.

Now he knows that alcohol and some medicines don't mix. In fact, more than half the 100 most prescribed drugs have at least one ingredient that can cause trouble if taken while drinking alcohol. The result of mixing these drugs (alcohol is a drug) may be no more than simple temporary illness, but some combinations can be dangerous, even deadly.

So, don't make a test tube out of your body. Be sure to tell your doctor or druggist about any medications you are taking and be sure to ask about the consequences of mixing a newly prescribed drug with alcohol.

Also, make it a habit to check the label carefully when you get a drug, whether it's a prescription or over-the-counter medication.

And when you get any prescription, be sure you know—

- The name of the drug
- Its purpose — what conditions does it treat?
- How and when to take the drug — and when to stop taking it
- What food, drinks and other drugs to avoid while taking it
- What side effects may result — are they serious, short-term, long-term, etc.?

If you have any questions about your prescription, ask your doctor or pharmacist.

AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE of the Minnesota House of Representatives held a public hearing in Thief River Falls city auditorium Thursday, to gather testimony of proposed legislation which would guarantee that farmers are paid a minimum price for at least a portion of their production. The bill will be considered by the full House sometime this winter. Sitting on the House committee were: (left to right) Rep. K.J. McDonald, Rep. Sylvester Uphus, Rep. Stephen G. Wenzel, chairman; Jim Sieben, administrative assistant; Rep. Tom J. Shea, vice chairman; Laurie Stangl, administrative clerk; Rep. Wally Sparby, Rep. Jerome Peterson, Rep. Chuck Dimler, and Rep. Marcus Marsh. According to Sparby, approximately 80 per cent of the testimony heard in Thief River Falls was in opposition to the bill, compared to approximately 10 per cent opposition at previous hearings in other locations. Indicating that he felt people were not familiar enough with the legislation, Sparby stated that hearings would continue on the issue.

St. Hilaire To Get Grant For Senior Center

Construction of a senior citizen center for the city of St. Hilaire and surrounding area is expected to get underway as early as December, according to Mayor Earl Frazer.

Timetable for the project was put into effect last week, with notification from the Northwest regional development commission that funding for the design, development and construction of a multi-purpose senior center had been approved. That funding includes a $16,139 grant from the McKnight Foundation and a commitment from the city of $8,267.50 cash and an additional $3,486.50 worth of in-kind services. Frazer stated that the funding period begins in November, adding that he was hopeful the bidding process could be completed to allow construction to begin in December, with the facility ready for occupancy by May.

Plans call for utilization of a 945 square foot area in the existing municipal fire hall. Functions would vary, including senior activities, meal program, outreach services for housing improvements, fuel assistance and commodity distribution. Frazer noted that they hoped to establish the center for use by people in the surrounding rural area as well as city residents, noting that the only other senior center in Pennington county is at Goodridge.

Noting that a previous request for funding had been unsuccessful, he stated, "It's something we've been working on for a year to a year and a half." He gave credit for the successful fund seeking effort to cooperation from a large number of people in the surrounding area who organized and wrote letters in support of the project.

Crop Harvest In State Aided By Weather

Dry, sunny weather early in the week replaced clouds and drizzle, which greatly improved fieldwork conditions across the state, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. An average of four days were suitable for fieldwork during the week ending October 28. Topsoil moisture as of October 28 was rated three per cent short, 71 per cent adequate and 26 per cent surplus.

As soybean moisture levels began to go down again to harvestable levels, the bean harvest was able to resume on a large scale. Soybean combining had been held at a standstill for two weeks or more in many areas. Picking and combining of corn for grain made excellent progress.

Some hay producers took advantage of the sunshine to put up one last cutting. In southern areas, a lot of plowing of row crop stubble was done under excellent soil moisture conditions. Gopher control operations have also been favored by the recent weather.

Field corn for grain is 84 per cent picked or combined versus 23 per cent in 1982 and 50 per cent for the five-year average. Moisture content of 21 per cent compares with last year's 26 per cent and the five-year average of 24 per cent. Lincoln Football Records

In 14 years of covering Lincoln high school football teams, we've never seen the Prowlers throw as many passes as they did during the recently-completed 1983 season.

Until recent years the pass was a little-used weapon for the Prowlers, but in 1983 they put the ball in the air 129 times, surpassing the 115 attempts we've got recorded for the 1970 season.

Senior quarterback Mitch Semanko did nearly all of the passing this fall, with the left-handed thrower attempting 121 passes. That topped the 106 attempts by Roger Lee in 1970. Semanko's 48 completions and 686 yards passing rank second to Lee's 54 completions and 878 yards in 1970.

With the ball in the air, wide receiver Steve Wiskow hauled in 22 passes this fall, bettering the 16 catches we've got listed for Jim Elleson in 1974. At the same time, runningback-flanker Tim Bottem came up with 15 catches this season to rank just behind Elleson. Wiskow had 276 yards receiving in 1983, well short of the 349 yards Elleson had in 1974. Bottem had 257 yards in receptions this year.

But along with the passes, the receptions and the yardage came interceptions. The Prowlers tied the mark of 16 interceptions they had a year ago, and Semanko now has his name atop the individual charts with 15 interceptions this fall.

However, the Prowlers themselves came up with 12 interceptions this season, surpassing the 10 they recorded in 1971 and again in 1974. There was also a new high 487 yards in penalties against the opposition this fall, topping the 450-yard figure of 1977. A lot of that stems from the 1983 season finale against Crookston when records were set as Crookston accumulated 15 penalties for 165 yards and Thief River Falls saw 12 flags.

Fergus Falls hit the 500-yard mark on the nose in total yards in the Otters' 41-8 win on Oct. 14, surpassing the single game yardage figure of 477 we have recorded for Moorhead in 1976. The five passes the Otters picked off that night also is a new high — or low — for the Prowlers.

Thief River Falls didn't abandon the ground game entirely in 1983. Bottem finished with 763 yards rushing, ranking fourth on our 14-year-old chart behind Rob Swanson, who had 979 yards in 1971; Kent Smith, who had 928 in 1972; and Swenson again, who had 793 in 1970.

Bottem had a 184-yard rushing night in a 46-6 Thief River Falls late-season victory over East Grand Forks. That matched the 184 yards that Doug Dallmann netted against Stamples in 1976 and ranks just behind the 189 yards that Jeff Kosel gained against Staples in 1977 — a figure that tops our listing.

Miscellaneous

+ Thief River Falls' Jeff Storhaug is playing Junior A hockey this season with the Des Moines Buccaneers. Tim Mishler of East Grand Forks and Greg Biskup of Roseau are also on the team, with another former Prowler, Jeff Ulrich, serving as an assistant coach. Ulrich handled the team recently when Des Moines head coach Ivan Prediger was forced to sit out a one-game league suspension.

+ Former Northland community college football players who played in the Northern Intercollegiate Conference (NIC) this fall include Mike Busse, a Mahnomen native who was a starting defensive end at Bemidji State University; Ken Crouch, an Inkster, Mich. product who was a wide receiver at the University of Minnesota-Morris; and Thad Forman, a junior from Oak Park, Mich. who played as a defensive back at Morris. Those teams have completed their basic regular season schedules, but will be involved in the first Metrodome Classic in Minneapolis Sun., Nov. 20. The schedule that day will feature Bemidji State vs. Augsburg at 10 a.m.; University of Minnesota-Morris vs. Winona State at 1 p.m.; Moorhead State vs. St. Cloud State at 4; and the University of Minnesota-Duluth vs. St. John's University at 7. That's the day after Prep Bowl II at the dome when the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) will crown football champions in five classes. That day will include the Class B finals at 10:10 a.m.; Class C at 12:45 p.m.; Nine-Man at 3:15; Class A at 5:30; and Class AA at 8:30. If you want to watch football, the Metrodome would be the place to be the weekend of Nov. 19-20.

+ Northwest Division runningbacks Luther Huggins of the University of Minnesota-Crookston and Brian Winters of Brainerd both went over the 1,000-yard rushing mark this fall. Huggins was credited with hitting that figure after a 268-yard season-ending effort against Northland on 34 carries. It was reported at the time by UMC people that he had fallen short of the 1,000-yard mark despite hurried attempts to get him the yards at the end of the one-sided 34-7 UMC win. But the Trojans later said he hit that figure, apparently on the nose. Winters had 121 yards on 34 carries in the Red Raiders' 31-7 win over the Northmen. Needing a win over pass-happy Fergus Falls in the regular season finale to clinch the Northwest Division title after beating UMC 9-7 the week before, Brainerd came up with eight pass interceptions in a 38-0 rout of the Spartans. Fergus Falls quarterbacks were a busy 33-for-67 passing against Northland the previous week, good for 333 yards in a 41-13 win. Northland came up with just one interception that afternoon.

+ East Grand Forks football coach Gary Berg, whose Green Wave had two open dates on the 1983 schedule, suggested to Warren Strandell of the East Grand Forks Exponent that Thief River Falls, Crookston and East Grand Forks could alleviate some scheduling problems by playing each other twice during the season. That little-used system is utilized in the Nine-Man Top of the State Conference where home-and-home two-game series are played among the league teams.

+ Moorhead swamped Fergus Falls 103-68 recently to establish itself as the chief rival for favored Alexandria in the Section 3 girls swimming meet, scheduled to be held Friday and Saturday at Bemidji State University. Thief River Falls' 6-2 regular season dual meet record included a 101-70 loss to Moorhead and a 90-82 defeat at the hands of Fergus Falls.

Plummer ended the year at 9-1, including an 8-0 North Tri-County Conference title campaign, plus a 31-24 post-season playoff game win over Northern Lights Conference champion Kennedy.

They were so tense. The harder we tried, the worse it got. If they could have just gotten over the jitters. . ."

DNR hotline

1. Please explain the process whereby anterless permits are issued?

Anterless permits are issued on a preference basis with the aid of a computer drawing. For example, if 3,000 permits are available in a particular area and 9,000 people apply the first year, the second the 6,000 hunters who did not receive a permit have "preference" over the 3,000 hunters who received a permit the first year. The third year, the 3,000 hunters who did not receive a license in either of the two previous years will have "preference" in the drawing. The fourth year, the 3,000 hunters who received a permit the first year will have "preference" over those hunters who received a permit in the second and third years because these original 3,000 permit holders have gone without a permit for a longer period of time. Of course, if the numbers of applicants or the numbers of permits change from year to year, the odds for getting a permit change accordingly. In this situation, all applicants will receive a permit even if they received a permit the previous year. A person does not have to apply in the same permit area each year, in order to maintain preference. The important thing to remember is that one must apply each year in order to maintain preference. The applications must be filled out correctly with the proper birthdate, identification number and signature, or they will be automatically rejected. Jim Breyen, assistant regional wildlife supervisor.

2. Why does the DNR continue to have a grouse season when the population is so low?

Grouse populations fluctuate on a 10 year cycle whether hunted or not. Closing the season in years when grouse numbers are low does not mean more grouse will be available the following year. As an example, hunting seasons were held during previous low years, such as the early 1960's, but we still had some of the highest grouse populations even a few years later in the late sixties and early seventies. Only in unique situations, such as the Mille Lacs Wildlife Management Area, where hunting pressure is very heavy, does hunting have an affect on the grouse population. Jim Breyen, assistant Regional wildlife supervisor.

3. What precautions are to be taken in the application of herbicides to prepare forest lands?

First, application of herbicides is done by applicators licensed by the Minnesota Department of Agriculture. Most Division of Forestry personnel supervising herbicide applications have attended a Minnesota Department of Agriculture approved pesticide training course where proper and safe handling of pesticides is taught and emphasized. When a forester submits a project for herbicide treatment, that project is reviewed at two higher levels. Buffer strips are used to keep pesticides out of the water, and a soils specialist will inspect soil properties and distance to ground water on sites where there are water table concerns and where soil applied chemicals are used. During aerial applications, weather conditions are monitored, and the DNR supervisor on the site will shut down the operation if wind is over 5 mph, temp is above 85 degrees or humidity is below 50 per cent.

4. Do you have a question, a complaint, or a suggestion regarding how your natural resources are managed?

Coach Not Disappointed In Northland's Efforts

It was a tough year for the Northland community college football team.

How tough was it? Answer to that Johnny Carson-type questioning conveys the situation:

It was so tough that the one win the Northmen did manage to secure in eight outings was taken away at season's end when the inadvertent use of an ineligible player forced them to forfeit a 27-6 verdict over previously winless Hibbing.

On the playing field the 1983 season was a bust as far as the won-lost record goes for the Northmen. They lost to the Bemidji State University junior varsity 18-0, Itasca 32-15, Vermilion 35-7, Mesabi 33-6, Brainerd 31-7, Fergus Falls 41-13, University of Minnesota-Crookston 34-6 and now Hibbing 2-0.

Northland's small squad, numbering 23-or-so players, was generally out-manned, and head coach John Helley acknowledged the fact that the Northmen were probably "out-coached, too," during the course of the recently-completed season. A small coaching staff, without the benefit of a full-time head coach with a teaching position at the school and without the personnel to do scouting duties complicated matters, he explained.

However, Helley is far from describing it as a nightmarish season. In fact, he is quick to point out the positive aspects of the campaign. The opportunity for area high school athletes to compete at the community college level, and the drive, desire and never-give-up attitude those players displayed in the face of mounting losses gave him a great deal of satisfaction, he said.

"I wuld never have believed you could enjoy coaching with a losing record," noted Helley, "but we had a great bunch of kids this year who made it enjoyable. They showed a lot of character. Nobody wants to lose, but if you lose without giving up, it makes a big difference. They never quit."

It wasn't a lack of effort that cost the Northmen. "They played as hard as they could," pointed out Helley. "We got as much out of them as we could have."

Fact that it was a season free of major injuries made it that much more enjoyable, mentioned Helley.

While the numbers weren't there, the Northmen did have some quality ball players. Sophomore wide receiver Todd Graalum (Fargo, N.D.) led the national junior college pass receiving charts for a part of the season; freshman quarterback Steve Blanc (Columbia Heights) approached the 1,000-yard plateau passing; sophomore Bob Rockwood (Fargo, N.D.) showed that he was the club's most versatile athlete by playing in a variety of positions, including quarterback, wide receiver, runningback, defensive back, linebacker and punter; freshman runningback Kevin Roehl (Nevis) showed a hard-running style that had earned him Nine-Man all-state high school honors the year before; freshman Steve Robinson (Westland, Mich.) was an intimidating factor in the middle of the defense; freshman Wade Hruby (TRF) was considered an outstanding blocker in the offensive line; and sophomore Eric Bondy (TRF) played a strong outside linebacker.

Many others, of course, also made major contributions.

"The fellows made some big sacrifices to play football, and you have to admire them for that," said Helley. "They never folded. They stayed with it all the way; they didn't give into the temptation of turning their attention to basketball, hockey or a job when things weren't going real well for us. They really wanted to play football."

Helley stepped down as head coach at the end of the season, saying the program needed a full-time teacher-coach to be successful. In his four years as Northland head coach, Helley's teams were 1-7-1 in 1980; 3-5 in 1981; 1-7 in 1982; and 0-8 in 1983.

Nordics Lose To Eagles In District 32 Volleyball

Marshall County Central high school volleyball team reached the District 32 tournament finals Saturday, but the Nordics' dreams of a Region 8A tournament berth were spoiled by Argyle 16-18, 18-9, 18-16.

"We made way too many mistakes," reported Marshall County Central coach Julie Tunheim. "We made mistakes we shouldn't be making in that situation."

Earlier, Marshall County Central outlasted rival Middle River 18-10, 7-18, 19-10 in the Thursday quarterfinals and then defeated Kennedy 19-17, 18-14 in the semifinals to set up the title match against Argyle.

"We knew Argyle was going to be tough, and they were," said Tunheim. "Give them credit. They did things when they had to. We were disappointed. Everybody was guilty of making mistakes out there, not just one girl. We usually win as a team, and this time we lost as a team."

MCC — Middle River

It was a highly emotional renewal of an area rivalry Thursday as Marshall County Central out-scored Middle River 18-10, 7-18, 18-10 in the District 32 quarterfinals at Newfolden.

After losing the first game, Middle River made it interesting with a second game triumph when Jody Christofferson served nine straight points to break it open for the Skippers.

Marshall County Central's third game win featured three straight service points by Jodi Foss, who came off the bench to open up a 17-7 gap.

Marshall County Central charts showed the Nordics with 19 ace attacks, including eight by Becky Knutson and five by Barb Garthus.

MCC — Kennedy

A strong Marshall County Central effort carried the Nordics past Kennedy 18-13, 18-13 in Saturday afternoon's semifinals.

Marshall County Central enjoyed a 94 per cent serving success figure, then relied on Shelly Anderson (6 ace spikes), Becky Knutson (6 attacks, 2 spikes) and Stacey Gorahorowski (7 set assists) to collect the points.

MCC — Argyle

Argyle emerged as the winner in a close Saturday night championship match over Marshall County Central.

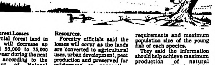
After splitting the first two games (an 18-16 Marshall County Central win, and an 18-9 Argyle win), the two teams were deadlocked at 14-14 in the third game when the Eagles' Lori Moe hit four consecutive service points, including two aces, as Argyle rallied from a 14-10 deficit.

It was deadlocked again at 15-15 and 16-16 before Argyle got the edge on the important 17th point. Marshall County Central managed to break service, but lost the ball without scoring a point and Argyle closed it out on an ace.

Bonnie Safranski was the Eagles' top attacker at the net. Becky Knutson led Marshall County Central with nine ace attacks and Jodi Nelson had five. Nancy Nelson had nine ace serves, and 19 service points for the match.

"We probably should have won," acknowledged Marshall County Central coach Julie Tunheim, but a variety of mistakes caught up with the Nordics, who served just 83 per cent. "That's rather poor for us, especially in a title game like that," she noted.

DNR NEWS



Forest Losses

Commercial forest land in Minnesota will decrease an estimated 50,000 to 75,000 acres per year during the next 17 years, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

Forestry officials said the losses will occur as the lands are converted to agricultural uses, urban development, peat production and preserved for wilderness or recreation purposes.

By far the greatest reduction in commercial forest land will result from conversion to agriculture; estimates range from 35,000 to 50,000 acres through the year 2000.

As agricultural lands are lost to urban development and other uses, the acreage lost is replaced through conversion of forest land to crop, pasture and rangeland.

Since the stability of the forest land base is essential to sustained development of timber resources, say foresters, other land use demands will increasingly threaten Minnesota's commercial forest industry and reduce significant wildlife habitat.

They point out that forest products comprise the third-largest industry in the state, following agriculture and mining.

Study Trout, Salmon

Department of Natural Resources will soon begin a study of steelhead and salmon in Lake Superior and tributary streams, it was announced recently.

Fisheries research biologists Tracy Close and Steven Colvin hope to learn about living space requirements and maximum population size of the young fish of each species.

They said the information should help achieve maximum production of natural spawning steelhead, and insure efficient use of stocked fish, mainly salmon.

Steelhead migrate from Lake Superior into the streams to spawn.

Pursuant to adjournment, the Pennington County Board of Commissioners met in the meeting room of the Courthouse in Thief River Falls, Minnesota at 10:00 a.m. on Tuesday, October 11, 1983. Members present: Hoffman, Koop, Stenberg, Tasa and Grabanski.

Minutes of the meeting held on September 13, 1983 were approved as mailed.

Roger Tunberg & Jerry Sandstrom were in to discuss Jobs Development Program. Jerry Sandstrom discussed the progress made thus far during the short period of time. Asking that the County appropriate $15,000.00 for the program for the 1984 year. No action taken by the Board at this time.

Commissioner Koop introduced the following resolution and moved for its adoption:

WHEREAS, the subsidy allocated to Pennington County for health care is $39,206.88;

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the Quin County Health Services budget be adopted and disbursed as follows: Inter County Nursing Service $23,523.00; Ambulance (Northwestern Hospital Ambulance Services) $14,183.88 and Hospice $1,500.00.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Stenberg and upon vote, declared unanimously adopted.

Dick Spyhalski, Bob Stevens and Roy Daniels were in to discuss the ambulance service — also members of the ambulance personnel were available. They again mentioned they would not operate the service under a scaled down operation. The new Medicare regulations are not going to pay what the actual costs are — will only pay on an illness basis which results in a high deficit in the ambulance services. On October 31 the Board of Directors of the Northwestern Hospital meets and the County Board members are invited to attend. A motion was made by Commissioner Koop, seconded by Commissioner Tasa to appropriate $25,000.00 to the Ambulance Service for 1984. On a call for roll call vote, the following vote was recorded: Stenberg, aye; Koop, aye; Grabanski, aye; Tasa, aye; Hoffman, aye. Unanimously approved.

This appropriation is double what was given last year. Board also encouraged the Ambulance Service to seek help from other sources such as the City of Thief River Falls, the United Way, the Hartz Foundation, the other Counties which they serve.

Jerry Sandstrom, Wayne Faust, Jack Quintivan were in to discuss writing a grant for low-interest money for outside city limits or grants for economic development. Board felt this was a good idea. Motion by Commissioner Tasa seconded by Commissioner Stenberg to have Northwest Regional Development Commission assist Pennington County in gathering information and writing a Community Development Block Grant. Motion unanimously carried.

Discussed with Jerry Sandstrom the Viking-Land USA pamphlets. Board was of the opinion we did not receive $762 worth of publicity from this. Jerry Sandstrom thought it was a good promotion and would like to see it continued. Not further action was taken on this matter.

Moved by Commissioner Tasa, seconded by Commissioner Grabanski to appoint Kermit Finstad to Region I Development Disabilities Advisory Committee for the Northwest Regional Development Commission to replace Gary Erickson. Motion unanimously carried.

Discussed the 1979 Ford car Sheriff Richards will be putting out on bids.

The annual appropriation to the Tri-Valley Opportunity Council, Inc. for Para-Transit Bus Service for 1984 was discussed. Pennington County's share is $3,396.22. This was referred to the Revenue Sharing Budget.

Commissioner Stenberg introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, the State Auditors recommend the County establish a capitalization policy for fixed assets to present on its financial statement;

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED, that only items with a cost value of $300.00 or more be recorded on the County fixed assets inventory of furniture and equipment on the County's financial statement.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Tasa and upon vote, unanimously adopted.

County Engineer Olson was in to update the Board on the progress of culvert contracts and ditch cleanings.

Moved by Commissioner Tasa, seconded by Commissioner Koop that the Road, Bridge and Culvert Committee meet on October 30, 1983, at 9:00 a.m. to inspect roads, bridges and culverts. Motion unanimously carried.

Discussed and compared the 1983 and 1984 budgets for the highway department.

Moved by Commissioner Stenberg, seconded by Commissioner Grabanski that the Revenue Sharing Proposed Use Hearing be held on October 25 at 2:00 p.m. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Commissioner Tasa, seconded by Commissioner Stenberg, to hold a budget meeting at 7:00 p.m. on October 24, 1983. Motion unanimously carried.

The following bills were presented, read and approved:

Veterans Day To Be Observed Friday . . .

Albert Larson Was Late First World War Entry

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Among the participants Friday in the Veterans Day parade and program in Thief River Falls will be Albert Larson, 88, a Holt farm boy when drafted into the infantry in August of 1918 and an experienced rifleman by the time the war ended only three months later. Larson has made his home in Thief River Falls since 1964 and is active in the World War I Veterans organization.

Veterans day will be observed in Thief River Falls on Friday with a brief parade, memorial service and sounding of the fire siren and church bells.

Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion color guards, auxiliary units, Cooties and other units will assemble at 10 a.m. at the Legion club for the parade which starts at 10:30 a.m. Parade will proceed to the VFW club, where memorial services will be held at the flagpole on the east side of the building. Sirens and church bells will sound at 11 a.m. to signal the opening of the memorial service.

Much of Larson's relationship with World War I is contained in a book published when he was with the U.S. occupation forces in Germany in 1919. The book is entitled "54th Pioneer Infantry with The Army of Occupation, Third U.S. Army".

The book chronicles how the 54th Pioneer Infantry was created at Camp Wadsworth, SC, from a nucleus of 19 officers and 183 men belonging to the 71st New York infantry and 3,300 selective service men, chiefly from Minnesota, Pennsylvania and South Carolina. The 3,300, which included Albert Larson, were assembled at the camp from August 9 to 14, 1918.

Pace of the war effort is indicated in the chronology of the unit: "August 20, left Camp Wadsworth by rail; August 21, arrived Camp Stuart, Newport News, VA; August 29, boarded transports "Duca d'Aosta" and "Caserta"; September 12, debarked at Brest, France; September 17, left Brest rest camp and entrained; September 20, arrived at Port d'Atelier, Amance, France; September 22, entertained for the front; September 23, arrived Fleury sur Aire; September 24, night hike to Cleremont woods; September 25 to November 11, Meuse-Argonne offensive."

As indicated by the record of events, it was about six weeks from the time the unit was assembled until it was on duty in the front lines of amajor war-ending offensive. Since most of the time was involved in travel, very little was provided in the way of training for combat readiness.

Albert was a member of Company G, which also included a number of other northwestern Minnesotans. Listed on the roster were Arvid N. Lindquist, Alvarado; Ole Johnson, Middle River; Louis Dufault, Argyle; Peter M. Carlson, Strandquist; Arthur and David Dufault,

ALBERT LARSON of Thief River Falls has many memories of World War I service contained in a book on the 54th Pioneer Infantry which he purchased in Germany while a member of the U.S. occupation forces in 1919. Larson was a member of Company G and was in the front lines about six weeks after being drafted into service.

RECEIVING A GIFT from Anne Frank (Laurie Polansky) is Peter Van Daan (Kenneth Frazer) in this scene from "The Diary of Anne Frank." The play will be presented Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the old gymnasium at Goodridge high school under sponsorship of the Goodridge area historical society. Estimate Area Farm Loss Of $20 Million

Statistics prepared by Terry Courneya, Pennington county extension director, for the local chamber of commerce agribusiness committee indicate the extent of economic impact on the area from the past several years of bad weather for farmers.

Courneya says the impact computes to $140 million per year or $700 million over the past five years in lost business activity. Basis for his conclusion is a "conservative estimate" of $20 per acre value for weather induced yield losses on the approximately one million acres of farmland in the Thief River Falls trade area. Applied to this $20 million loss is the commonly accepted multiplier of seven dollars for each dollar generated by sale of farm products, making the $140 million annual impact figure.

The extension director used figures from the Minnesota department of agriculture's "Minnesota Agricultural Statistics" in his computations. He showed that in 1976 through 1978 wheat averaged 35 bushels per acre and sunflowers 1,500 pounds per acre in Pennington county. For 1979 through 1983 (the 1983 yield was an estimate) the average yield for wheat is 30 bushels and for sunflowers is 1,127 pounds.

"This indicates an average of five bushels per acre yield reduction in wheat and a 373 pound yield reduction in sunflowers for the last five years when compared to normal crop years of 1976 through 1978," he said.

"Multiplying these yields by the average price received by farmers of $3.77 per bushel for wheat and $10 per hundredweight for sunflowers for the past five-year period, one gets a reduction in income of $17.75 per acre for wheat and $37 per acre for sunflowers. A comparable reduction holds true for other crops as well," he said.

"Of special impact is the record low yields estimated for 1983, coming on the heels of four well below average yields," he added. Estimated average yield for wheat in 1983 was 25 bushels and estimated sunflower yield was 1,000 pounds.

Courneya interpreted the data in consultation with Bill Penning, area extension agent in farm management, also of Thief River Falls.

Plot For LHS Drama Dep't. Play Revealed

Plot for the Lincoln high school play "Everybody Loves Opal" has been revealed as the Friday and Saturday production dates, November 18 and 19, approach. Admission prices will be $2 for adults and $1.50 for students with curtain time at 8 p.m. for both performances. The play is under the direction of Pat Johnson.

Opal Kronlie, a middle-aged recluse, lives in a tumble-down mansion at the edge of the city dump. She collects anything that can be toted home in her little red wagon. No matter how tough the lives of her friends or herself, she is an optimist, responding with unfailing kindness and an abiding faith in human nature.

Into her world came Gloria, Bradford and Solomon, sellers of bogus perfume, who are trying to avoid the authorities. Opal's residence offers a hideout and, the trio decides, her quick death after being heavily insured could help them out of their financial plight.

Their plans to effect the demise by dropping a ceiling on her unsuspecting head is foiled when she is in the collar at the time. Opal's trooper friends arrive in time to interrupt plans to drug her and burn the house. A plan for a hit-and-run accident backfires. Through it all Opal radiates kindness, affection and, strangely enough, gratitude.

In the end, there is plenty of money for all and any friend of Opal's is welcome to as much as he or she wants. All they have to do is ask.

Exceptional closeness of two city-wide races and a good turnout of voters marked the Thief River Falls city election Tuesday. All incumbents were returned to office — two without opposition — but in the mayor and alderman-at-large contests the voting was remarkably uniform throughout the city.

Mayor Bob Carlson withstood the write-in challenge of Dave Strong to win reelection with 1,308 votes to 1,230. There were 2,566 ballots cast in the election with 26 of the ballots for mayor spoiled or blank and two cast for other people.

Alderman-at-large J. J. Womack had an even narrower margin in defeating challenger Glenn Espe 1,289 to 1,231. In the only other race, third ward alderman Ambrose Wysoski was reelected with 260 votes to 186 for Tony Madunich. Unopposed alderman reelected were Milan Borsheim with 342 of 418 ballots cast in the first ward and Clayton Restad with 592 of 646 ballots cast in the fifth ward.

In winning reelection to the mayor's post and the first four-year term after six two-year terms, Mayor Bob Carlson carried four of the city's five wards. He carried the first ward by 40 votes, the second ward by 29, the fourth ward by six and the fifth ward by 13. He lost to Strong in the third ward by a 10-vote margin.

Alderman Womack carried three of the five wards in his reelection victory, gaining his widest margin in the fifth ward with 41 votes. He won the first ward by 28 and the second ward by eight, losing the third ward by three and the fourth ward by 16.

A review of voting within various precincts of the city (see table in this issue) also indicates the extreme closeness of the vote throughout all areas of the city. Precinct A of the fifth ward was a stronghold for the incumbents, giving Mayor Carlson a 47-vote margin and alderman Womack a 46-vote cushion. The mayor lost precincts 5B and 5C by 17 votes each. Alderman Womack lost precinct 5B by 17 and carried 5C by 12.

In most other precincts, with the exception of 1C where Mayor Carlson had a 40-vote margin and 1B where alderman Womack had a 21-vote edge, only a very few votes separated the candidates. Strong's greatest margin was 17 votes in precinct 5B and Espe's largest spread was also 17 votes in the same precinct.

This year's voter tunout was slightly over 50 per cent of the number of registered voters in the various wards. Number of voters in each ward includes the following with votes cast listed in parentheses: Ward I, 996 (418); Ward II, 1,106 (541) Ward III, 891 (409) Ward IV, 950 (492); and Ward V, 1,152 (646).

Two years ago the city election brought out only 501 voters as Ken Murphy defeated Bill Hogan in the second ward 166 to 77 in the only race on the ballot. Alderman-at-large Dr. Donald Goodrich relved 427 votes and fourth ward alderman William Penning received 49 votes as unopposed candidates, and Mayor Carlson

Wrong Number Was Right For Floyd Bakke

by Dave Berg
Times Reporter

Automation has radically changed the way we live, and this is probably more apparent in dealings with the telephone company than almost anywhere else. Computers which make it possible to direct-dial long distance calls, and tape recorded messages have eliminated the need for many local employees, particularly operators, with the result that service has become more centralized, and in some cases, more depersonalized.

However, you won't hear Floyd Bakke of Newfolden complaining about the telephone service he got on Thursday, October 27. He learned that operators are willing to go to great lengths to be of assistance, even when they're working in an office over 300 miles away in Minneapolis. For Floyd, dialing a wrong number might have been the best move he could have made.

Floyd says he had just had an examination for a heart problem a couple of days earlier, and had gotten a prescription from the doctor, along with instructions to come back for more tests at a later date. Home alone on Thursday morning, he had taken his medication and sat down to read the paper and have a cup of coffee. When he began to feel funny, he remembered his doctor's instructions, and took a nitroglycerine pill and reclined on his bed.

Although he thought he would feel better after a short while, he found himself feeling worse, and says that he just couldn't get his breath. Becoming frightened, he decided to call for help. Unable to find a directory, he dialed the only number he knew from memory, which was the Allis Chalmers dealership in Newfolden: 874-8888. In his excitement, he wasn't sure what he did wrong, but thought that possibly he didn't punch the last eight of the number.

When intercept operator Dorothy Prairie came on the line and asked him what number he was trying to dial, Floyd says he got pretty upset, and feared he might have even been rude. Dorothy says she didn't recall that he was rude,

FLOYD BAKKE of Newfolden received lots of flowers from his friends while he was recovering from a heart attack at Northwestern Hospital. While he was a patient, he had lots of time to think about the unique circumstances which brought him safely through the ordeal, and expressed a desire to learn the name of the telephone operator who summoned help for him from 300 miles away, resulting in a story about a unique person whose dedication keeps the personal touch in one of the largest companies in the world.

Drury Elected As Write-in In St. Hilaire

Write-in candidate Steve Drury waged a successful campaign for election to the St. Hilaire city council, earning the top number of votes in the city election there on Tuesday.

Drury had 55 write-in votes to lead all candidates as 100 voters went to the polls. Karen Young with 52 votes was reelected and Dennis Mills with 48 votes was defeated in a reelection bid in the extremely close voting.

St. Hilaire city clerk Bill Overbye said the 100 voter turn-out was very good for that community. The city has 214 registered voters on the list but the clerk said that at least 50 of those are no longer eligible voters in the community.

Earl Frazer was reelected mayor with 92 votes as he was unopposed in the election.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Linel Annette Miller And Timothy Mehus Wed

Linel Annette Miller and Timothy James Mehus were married September 10 at Christ the King Lutheran church in Moorhead.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lester Miller, Moorhead, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Mehus, Thief River Falls.

Rev. Roger Olson officiated at the 6:00 p.m., double-ring ceremony. The organist was Sue Johnk, friend of the bride. Dave Wold, the best man, gave the reading "The Wedding Prayer." Soloists were Robin Cooper, who sang "Wedding Song," during the service, "For All We Know," "Wedding Prayer," "You and I," and "Charity;" before the service; and Bob Rasmusson sang "I Love You More," which he had written for the occasion, and "The Lord's Prayer." Both played the guitar as they sang.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white Victorian styled gown with a high neckline, sheer yoke, and a fitted bodice featuring a lace overlay. Her A-line skirt which flowed into a cathedral length train was complemented by a wide lace ruffle accented with a satin ribbon. She wore a white hat trimmed with lace, silk flowers and veiling; and she carried a cascade of white, pink and plum roses, white miniature orchids and variegated ivy.

Matron of honor was Linda Bradbury, twin sister of the bride. Other attendants were Pam Vatthauer, Rochester; Dawn Berend, Moorhead; Robin Cooper, Denver, Colo.; all friends of the bride; Debbie Kennedy, Shoreview, cousin of the bride, and Mary Kay Rasmusson, Brooklyn Center, sister of the groom. Their floor length gowns featured white sheer Georgette blouses over white camisole undergowns. The blouses were fashioned with lace trimmed, square necklines and three-quarter length full sleeves. Floor-length skirts completed their attire, with the matron of honor wearing pink, and the attendants plum color. They carried cascading bouquets of shaded plum-colored roses, white wild roses, ivy and lilies of the valley.

The groom wore a white tuxedo with tails. His boutonniere was a white orchid and a plum colored rosebud. Dave Wold, a friend of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Steve Mehus, Moorhead, a brother of the groom; Mark Tarnowski, Mahtomedi, a friend of the groom; Alan Bradbury, Coon Rapids, brother-in-law of the bride; Wayne Miller, Riverside, N.D., brother of the bride; and Bob Rasmusson, Brooklyn Center, a brother-in-law of the groom. They wore charcoal gray tuxedos, white shirts with wing-tipped collars, bow ties, and white orchid boutonnieres.

Serving as ushers were Randy Trontvet, West Fargo, N.D., Mark Tarnowski, friends of the groom, Duane Miller, Minneapolis and Mark Miller, Lake Park, cousins of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a pink floor-length gown with a floral cape in shades of pink and plum. The groom's mother was attired in a blue chiffon floor-length gown. Their corsages were of wild roses in plum and white. Like all the flowers at the wedding, their corsages were of silk and were designed by Linda Bradbury, sister of the bride.

Special guests were Edith Miller, grandmother of the bride, and Erma and Bill Bradbury, Denver, Colo.

A reception followed in the church parlors. Jodi Fugleberg presided at the guest book, Lonnie Dalen, a friend of the bride, was at the gift table, Rossie Miller and Jeanette Reierson were at the coffee service and Vonnie Kuyper and Eileen Reierson cut and served the wedding cake.

After a wedding trip to Duluth and Mackinac Island, the couple is at home in Coon Rapids.

MS Awareness Project Adopted By DeCor Club

but realized he was having trouble breathing and asked if she could help. Bakke told her he thought he was having a heart attack and wanted the ambulance in Thief River. Dorothy instructed him not to hang up and asked for his name and address. When he gave a box number in Newfolden, she asked for a street address, and Floyd explained, "You don't need an address in Newfolden!" He says he got really worried when she asked where Newfolden was, and asked her where she was. When she replied "Minneapolis," he said he was going to hang up and call the ambulance himself.

Afraid that he might hang up the phone and pass out without summoning help, Dorothy urged him to stay on the line, promising, "I'll help you out."

As an intercept operator, Dorothy's job normally consists of taking calls which are not completed due to incorrect dialing or other problems. After learning the number which the customer is trying to call, she routinely keys them into a computer, which completes the call or delivers a recorded message. Although the job is routine, she says it is ideal for her, since she is legally blind. She will have 21 years with Northwestern Bell in December.

Continuing to hold Floyd on the line, she called her supervisor and another operator to assist. Utilizing computer access codes which can give them emergency numbers for anywhere in the country, they found the number for Northwestern Hospital in Thief River Falls and dispatched the ambulance to Newfolden. Dorothy calmed Floyd by reassuring him that the ambulance was on the way, and asked him who he was trying to call in the first place. When he gave her the number of the machinery dealership, she had the other operator call and explain the situation to Floyd's friend Gaylord Grandstrand, who hurried to Bakke's home to help.

In the meantime, the ambulance dispatcher had called the Newfolden fire department (part of routine procedure), and someone there called Viola Rude, supervisor of the Quin county nursing service.

Just as an example of the communication network which was involved in the incident, the ambulance crew requested further directions from the dispatcher, who was in contact with the operator, who was in contact with Dorothy. Floyd said that when Dorothy asked whether the ambulance should turn left or right at the light in Newfolden, he knew help was not far away.

Grandstrand and Rude arrived shortly before the ambulance, and barely had time to move furniture out of the way to make room for the stretcher. When Dorothy knew that Bakke was no longer alone, she said she finally dared to hang up.

Floyd says that once the ambulance crew arrived, he didn't have too much time to think about anything. He credited paramedics Dennis Carlson and Gregg Scott with "really knowing what they were doing," noting that he felt relief almost instantly when they gave him oxygen. Once in the hospital emergency room, he said he had about four nurses working on him at once, and he was on the intensive care ward within about five minutes.

Although he allows he was a "pretty sick boy there for a while," he credited the prompt treatment for his rapid recovery. He was transferred to second floor on Tuesday, and by Friday he was ready to be released. When interviewed on Tuesday, he was even considering the possibility of deer hunting on opening weekend. Noting that Friday would be his sixty-third birthday, he said he wished he could find the operator who had made it possible for him to be another day older, so he could thank her.

This reporter decided to get involved in that search, and initiated a chain of calls by asking for help from Ken Murphy, of the Northwestern Bell office in Thief River Falls. He called the Minneapolis office of James G. Keenan, general manager of customer relations, which put us in touch with John Walker, manager of information services, who contacted Bill Thelen, director of assistance and intercept operators, who checked the log books to see who had taken the emergency call from Newfolden. He called us back and allowed us to interview Dorothy, who modestly claimed she was "just doing my job and trying to be helpful."

Told that Floyd wanted to get in touch with her so that he could express his gratitude, she said she hadn't forgotten about him, and had tried to call his home to check on his condition, but had gotten no answer. She said she had planned to call the hospital, and was relieved to hear he was recovering. Told that it was his birthday, she permised she would call and congratulate hime, which she did, reaching him at his home.

Incidentally, according to Bill Thelen, there will be no charge on Bakke's phone bill for any of the long distance calls made through the intercept operator's station. "Not that I'd mind paying for them," Floyd said with a big smile. "I'm just happy to be around to get the bill."

Albert Larson Was Late Entry In World War I

Argyle; Carl E. Fjeld, Oslo; Harry I. Haughland, Grygla; Emanuel Isaacson, Strandquist; Harold A. Johnson, Middle River; and Henry A. Landreville, Argyle.

Larson's book recounts the experience of the company as follows:

"After a stormy voyage, numerous boat drills and alarms, the Caserta entered the historic port of Brest, France, September 12, 1918, at 9 a.m. Comapny disembarked at 2:30 p.m. and assembled under shelter tents near the historic Pontanezen barracks built by Napoleon for the purpose of assembling a world conquering army.

"Entrained at Brest the 17th for the front, arriving at Fleury Woods on the 23rd. The company left Fleury woods at 9 p.m. on the 24th and by 11 o'clock that night for the first time herard the whistle of Boche shells overhead.

"Arrived at Cleremont Woods on the morning of the 25th. These woods had been shelled continuously by the Germans for three days, and they were keeping up a steady shellfire in the hopes of destroying the road along side of woods, bridge and rail head on quarter mile south of the woods or troops in that vicinity.

"The following day the company was sent up near Bourulles occupied by the Germans, to repair a mine crater in the road, made by the French to stop a German advance. While repairing the crater the company was under heavy machine-gun, rifle and artillery fire. Corporal Willis Rader was wounded at this place by a bullet from a German Aeroplane battling with the Allies overhead.

"Bourulles being captured, this company left Cleremont woods for that place September 30, 1918. While working at Verennes was on the line along side the 28th Division for one day and later employed keeping the roads repaired and ammunition going forward while Apremont, Cheppy and Montbaine were captured.

"The company left Bourulles October 4 for Avocourt in the Argonne Forest. At this place we were continually under artillery fire and gas attacks were frequent from both shells and bombs. The company helped build the ducking road and keep it in repair, that led from Avocourt to Montfaucon Woods, from which point Montfaucon was captured.

"Left Avocourt the 19th day of October, making camp between Malancourt and Montfaucon, our duty being to keep the roads open between Malancourt and Montfaucon and ammunition going to the front. Built the ammunition dump and circle at Montfaucon and handled the ammunition for the big drive on Dun-sur-Meuse directed from that point.

"While working at Montfaucon this company was under the heaviest fire that it was subject to in the whole campaign. The Germans doing their utmost to destroy the ammunition dump and road at this point, realizing that their failure to do so meant that the Allied Army would be on their soil in a very short time."

On November 11, when the fighting officially ended, the company went to Vauchreville on the Verdun front. On November 16 the 54th Pioneer Infantry was again assembled as a regiment at Dun-sur-Meuse. On December 7 at Briey in Alsace Lorraine the company slept in billets for the first time since setting foot on foreign soil.

The unit then moved into Germany as part of the army of occupation and Larson was part of the group stationed at Urmitz on the Rhine river. The men in his company were quartered in private homes and he recalls that the German families seemed quite friendly. Much of the duty time was spent in hauling TNT powder, hand grenades, gas shells and other types of high explosives to the dump and exploding them. The ordnance had been concentrated by the Germans at Bassenheim and in the vicinity of Coblenz.

Despite the military action and heavy shelling, the company lost only two men during its time in France.

After his return to the United States on July 5, 1919, he was discharged at Camp Dodge, IL. He came back to the parental farm at Holt and farmed for a few years before moving to International Falls in 1928, working at the paper mill until his retirement in 1964. His primary job at the mill was as a paper cutter.

was also reelected without opposition.

Four years ago there were 1,055 votes cast with only one contest — an alderman-at-large race between J. J. Womack and Allan Nichols. Womack won 632-371 in carrying 13 of the city's 15 precincts, losing one by three votes and being deadlocked in the other.

Thief River Falls city council adjourned their meeting last night to 5 p.m. today in council chambers at city auditorium, for the primary purpose of canvassing election returns and declaring results as required by law.

Strandquist voters reelected two city officials who didn't seek the office, elected two officials who did, and turned down Sunday liquor sales by more than four-to-one margin in the city election there on Tuesday.

The Sunday liquor vote, which had been put on the ballot after a petition with 25 signatures had been presented to the city council last month, was defeated 45 to 10.

Mayor Earl Hougard was reelected with 25 write-in votes and treasurer Clarence Borsvold was reelected with 28 write-in votes. Neither filed for reelection. James Schouten received 25 votes to win election for an unexpired council term of Vern Storeby while Martin Brown and Tim Storeby, who had also both filed, received 15 and 13 votes respectively. Mark Leo was reelected with 51 votes unopposed.

Underpass For Moorhead Goes To Conference

Through the efforts of Congressman Arland Stangeland, the House of Representatives voted to approve $3 million for a rail-highway underpass for the city of Moorhead on Tuesday. The fate of the project now rests in the hands of a House and Senate conference committee.

"This is an important project for Moorhead," Congressman Stangeland said. "With longer coal trains running through town, it is more than an inconvenience to wait at a crossing station. For patients in critical condition, a few minutes' delay in the ambulance can be fatal."

Rep. Stangeland says he has been working for the project since he came to Congress in 1977. As a senior member of the House public works and transportation committee, Congressman Stangeland was able to include the Moorhead underpass in a larger bill.

The $3 million for Moorhead is part of the surface transportation technical corrections act of 1983 (H.R. 3103). If approved by the House and Senate conference committee, the project would be fully funded by the federal highway trust fund as a demonstration project for the U.S. department of transportation.

"I will now ask Senator Dave Durenberger for his help in getting Senators behind the Moorhead project," Congressman Stangeland said. Although the Minnesota Senator is not expected to be a member of the conference committee, Durenberger is a member of the Senate panel which will provide half the conferees.

In working for the Moorhead project, Congressman Stangeland pointed to studies that show 560,000 vehicles are delayed by trains in Moorhead each year for a total of 23,000 hours. The rail-highway "grade separator" would be built at 21st Street in Moorhead.

Armistice Day Program Set For Seniors

"Recognition of Armistice Day" will be the topic presented for the senior citizens program from 3 to 4 p.m. Thursday, November 10, at Northwest regional library.

Patriotic readings and music will be presented and a discussion on "What Armistice Day means to me" will be led. Refreshments will be served. Program is open to the public.

Major League Team Location Topic Of Bill

Major league baseball teams wanting to relocate in greener pastures would have to allow local buyers an opportunity to match any outside offers, and could be forced to accept those local offers under legislation to be offered by Senator Rudy Boschwitz.

Boschwitz said his interest was piqued by recent offers to buy and move the Minnesota Twins, after extensive community efforts produced a $55 million domed stadium for the team just three years ago.

"I know firsthand that the people of the upper midwest have a vested interest in the Twins," Boschwitz said. "The people of the cities in which teams reside have a lot tied up in teams through years of support, local tax benefits, and financial backing for the operating facilities. And those teams are more valuable because Congress has exempted them from antitrust laws.

"It is wrong simply to let those teams pick up and move at their own whim and caprice without recognizing the local investment," he added. "Some businessmen will say it's bad business policy, but I would agree to this arrangement if communities would build my business facilities and Congress would prevent any competition from moving in."

The Boschwitz proposal states that a team must in writing notify its home city of its intent to leave six months before the actual move, the town to which it is moving, the reason for the move, and the date the move is expected to take place.

Within 30 days of notification, a three-person arbitration board — made up of a team representative, a local government representative and another member mutually agreeable to the first two — would then receive offers from local sources. After six months, the board will publicly consider all offers, including the one to relocate, and will determine which offer is best.

If the local offer is equal or better, the team cannot move.

According to Senator Boschwitz, Congress has the right to require team owners to consider local offers before relocating their team because major league baseball has been exempted from antitrust laws.

"Actions of the federal government and the local communities add a lot of value to the franchise. It's just fair that they should consider local offers before the team is moved to another city."

Questionnaire Mailed To All VA Pensioners

Nearly two million veterans administration (VA) pensioners will have received the agency's annual income questionnaire (AIQ) around the first of November to make certain they still meet the legal eligibility rules.

Questionnaire, required by law, must be completed and returned to VA by Jan. 1, 1984. Pensioners who do not return the questionnaire could face suspension of their payments, according to VA officials.

This year the questionnaires went to all persons receiving pension or parents' dependency and indemnity compensation benefits. This includes claimants over 72 who have been receiving pension for over two years and children. In prior years, the VA said, many of these beneficiaries had not been sent income questionnaires to complete.

In the past, the income questionnaire was distributed with monthly VA pension checks by the treasury department. Under the new system, VA will separately distribute a new and simpler questionnaire that is expected to ease the confusion that the old questionnaire caused pensioners in the past. They will also receive a worksheet to assist in completing the AIQ, which may also be used as a record of information they report.

Agency reminded pension recipients that assistance in completing the annual income questionnaire is available from any VA regional office, major veterans organizations and county veterans service officers.

Ten Road And Bridge Bids Are Received

Apparent low bids totaling $7,374,805 on 10 road and bridge improvement projects in 13 counties were received by the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) recently.

"Each million spent on highway improvements," State Transportation Commissioner Richard P. Braun said, "creates directly or indirectly approximately 42 jobs."

"That means, then," he explained, "these improvement projects represent more than 300 jobs."

Included among the projects are bituminous resurfacing and shoulders, turn lanes, bridge construction, deck widening, repair, overlay, superstructure replacement and railing replacement.

To Interview Applicants For US Academies

Rep. Arlan Stangeland has announced that his academy advisory committee will hold its annual screening meetings at the Detroit Lakes Holiday Inn on November 12 and 19. This committee, chaired by John Schulling of Bemidji, meets with the young candidates who have applied for nominations to the nation's service academies.

After the screenings have been completed by the advisory committee, a principal nominee and nine alternates for each slot will be named. Those individuals will undergo physical examinations and other tests before the service academy announces which candidates receives the appointment for the class of 1988.

The Congressman received applications from approximately 50 young men and women this year and he is extremely pleased with this amount of interest in our nation's service academies. "The competition is strong and to be selected is a tremendous honor," he said.

Rep. Stangeland has a 16-member board that will spend two full Saturdays interviewing the candidates. The Congressman said, "I am extremely grateful to this advisory committee for giving of their time in this way. They are truly dedicated to the cause of securing the best talent available for our academies. I am so pleased with the makeup of this committee and I want everyone in the Seventh District to know what a great contribution they are making.

The Committee members are: John Schulling, chairman, Bemidji; Dr. David Brown, Goodridge; John Johnson, Bemidji; Walter Olson and James B. O'Toole, Little Falls; Barry Prichard, Bemidji; John Rolfe and George Maruska, Detroit Lakes; Major Gary Olson, Moorhead; Terry Stout, Fosston; Carol Silles and Noel Schroeder, Foley; Robert Mahowald Jr. and Herschuel Howell, St. Cloud; Fred Laing, Albany; and Marty Holsen, Moorhead.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

It is again my privilege to be involved in a five-day clinic to help people stop smoking. This health destroying habit has been instrumental in putting many into an early grave. In this day of enlightenment, everyone should know that the only way to deal with tobacco is to stop its use entirely. It is now known that coronary artery disease is greatly aggravated and accelerated by the use of this drug.

Many have quit smoking through the five-day plan which has been used on a world wide scale. If you wish to stop, now is your opportunity to do it with the least amount of pain. The only prerequisite is that you must sincerely want to stop.

I would like all who read this letter and who want to "kick the habit" to attend the five day plan November 14-18 nightly at 7:30 at Northwestern hospital (north entrance). I will assure you that it will be the best investment that you have made in your health for a long time, if you can divorce yourself from this disease causing and life shortening habit.

Sincerely,
Leo Herber, M.D.

If any readers of this paper are smokers and want to quit, I highly recommend the upcoming five-day plan to stop smoking.

Although this plan doesn't work for everyone, many have been able to stop. There is nothing to lose by trying it and seven minutes of life may be gained for each cigarette not smoked, not to mention many advantages that can be enjoyed immediately when smoking is discontinued.

A few months ago we held a five-day plan in Red Lake Falls and as a result many individuals have quit smoking. The current program in Thief River Falls is to start November 14. Details concerning it are announced in this paper.

Boshwitz To Amend Act On U.S. Exports

When the Senate considers the reauthorization of the export administration act in November, Senator Rudy Boschwitz of Minnesota will offer an amendment that reaffirms and clarifies existing guarantees of delivery on export contracts for agricultural commodities (contract sanctity).

Chairman of the Senate subcommittee on foreign agricultural policy, Boschwitz co-sponsored such contract sanctity legislation last year. It was introduced by Senator Dave Durenberger and became part of the futures trading act of 1982.

According to Boschwitz some people in the agricultural community have raised questions to whether certain provisions of contract sanctity would be removed when the reauthorization of the export administration act is taken up by the senate.

"It's clear that congress doesn't want to abandon the commitment to contract sanctity for agricultural products. This country's history of imposing agricultural embargoes makes it imperative that we defend the concept of contract sanctity to enhance our image as a reliable supplier," Boschwitz said.

"During this time of troubled relations with the Soviets, we can at least keep one aspect of our trading relations in place. A similar amendment was adopted in the House with broad support. I hope to receive the same support from my Senate colleagues."

Also attending were Gladwin, Mary, LuAnn and Belinda Lynne, Chris Mortensen, Russ Myers, Connie Omdahl, Sandy, Van, David and Kelly Hapka, Tom, Yoka, Dylan and Christina Omdahl, David, Dee and Chenoa Siegenthaler and Eldor and Stella Omdahl.

Sparby Points To State Gain In Population

State Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls said today that a recent study released by the state planning agency shows that Minnesota had the fourth highest population growth rate — 1.4 per cent — among the "frost belt" states in the first two years of the 1980's.

"In addition," added Sparby, "Minnesota posted the largest total increase of any of the northern states. Between April of 1980 and April of 1982 the state population increased by 57,364 people."

A senior research analyst at the state planning agency said that Minnesota had been growing steadily since the 1970's and said that made it unique among the "frost belt" states.

Overall, Minnesota ranked 25th among the 50 states in population growth. However, 21 of the top states were "sun belt" states.

"Despite Minnesota's reputation as a high energy state and perennial complaints about the business climate and high taxes, we must be doing something right," Sparby said.

SEVENTH GRADE art students of Mrs. Marilyn Adams had a special project on Monday, applying original Thanksgiving Day decorations to a number of windows at McDonald's restaurant. Students laid their designs out in advance on paper, transferring them to the windows with tempera paint. Don Fugleberg, other art instructor at Franklin middle school, assisted in guiding the students. Under a special arrangement with restaurant owner Jerry Bugliosi, the students were kept supplied with soft drinks while they worked, and fed when they had completed the job.

Proclamation For Education Week Issued

Theme of the 63d annual observance of American Education Week November 13-19 is: "A Strong Nation Needs Strong Public Schools." Gov. Rudy Perpich has issued a proclamation declaring the observance.

Cosponsoring the Minnesota observance are the state-level organizations that parallel the national sponsors: The American Legion, department of Minnesota; the Minnesota Congress of Parents, Teachers and Students (PTSA); the Minnesota Education association (MEA); the Minnesota School Boards association (MSBA); and the state department of education.

Saying he urges "citizens to reaffirm their commitment to improving education on all levels," Gov. Perpich adds: "Teachers mold the minds of future citizens, and the schools represent the best efforts of the community, the state and nation to improve the quality of life."

Teachers, explains Perpich, "are dedicated to preparing students for a better life" and defining the schools' goals and evaluating their results "are the responsibilities of an informed and involved citizenry."

Gov. Perpich declares there is a widespread need for better communication and more cooperative relationships between professional educators and the community.

Perpich concludes by urging all citizens to translate their commitment into action "by visiting and otherwise supporting our local schools."

Ojibway Book Recalls Early Indian Stories

Throughout her life, Ignatia Broker has listened to the Ojibway elders tell the tales of her people. Now a storyteller and an elder herself, she has written the life story of her great-great-grandmother, Ni-bo-wi-se-gwe or Night Flying Woman, "a great and unusual woman," who was born when "the sun and moon crossed paths and there was a pitch darkness" — at the moment of a solar eclipse.

Broker's book, "Night Flying Woman: An Ojibway Narrative," just published by the Minnesota Historical Society press, is both a tale of dramatic, sometimes traumatic, uprooting and an optimistic affirmation of the strength and continuity of the Ojibway traditions.

In words used by generations of storytellers before her, Broker recounts the experiences of Night Flying Woman — Oona, as she was called — from the 1860s through the 1940s.

The story of Oona's life follows the traditional life cycle, from the naming ceremony to the role of elders as teachers. It reveals a wealth of information about the history, customs and beliefs of the Ojibway.

More than that, Broker, an enrolled member of the White Earth reservation and a founder of the Minnesota Indian Historical society, reveals how the Ojibway people were forced to abandon their traditional forest way of life to accommodate the "new ways" of the white people.

Illustrated with ink-wash drawings by Ojibway artist Steven Premo, the book sells for $12.95 in hardcover and $7.50 in paperback. It is available from the Minnesota Historical Society Order Department, 1500 Mississippi Street, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101. Mail orders should include payment plus six per cent sales tax and $1.50 for handling.

Pick Members For Economic Advisory Group

Eight new members have been appointed to the expanded advisory council of the Minnesota department of economic security by commissioner Barbara Beerhalter.

"The council's top priority is development of a legislative package on unemployment insurance," Beerhalter said. "We will begin immediately."

Beerhalter said Governor Rudy Perpich has asked the council, which is composed of business, labor and public members, to come up with an unemployment insurance plan which keeps the program solvent and reduces the debt caused by the last three and one-half years of recession. Currently, the unemployment insurance fund is $350 million in debt.

Eight appointments represent four new positions on the council and four vacancies. The council now will have 19 members, seven each from business and labor and five from public groups.

High Figures Given For MN Draft Sign-Up

Men in Minnesota born 1960 to 1965 are signing up with selective service in increasing numbers, according to Phil Knight, Minnesot state director of selective service. "Through August, over 212,000 men in Minnesota has registered. This represents 99.6 per cent of the state's eligible population and compares with a 96.7 compliance per cent one year ago," stated Knight. National compliance is 96.5 per cent.

Knight credits much of the increase in registrations to a successful identification program. "We've been very successful in identifying the contacting men who are required to register but for some reason have not done so," said Knight. "Cross-matching our files with state driver's license records and using other governmental records and services, have produced excellent results," he said.

In addition to the identification program, H.W. Walls, selective service region director for the states of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin, cites a dramatic improvement in public awareness is partially the result of recently enacted legislation which requires registration with selective service in order to participate in some categories of federal aid," said Walls. Law now requires registration as a condition for applying for federal student aid, also, the new job training partnership act (JTPA) requires men of registration age to be registered to participate in job corps and other JTPA programs.

"We will continue current programs and develop new initiatives to ensure that 18 year old men are aware of their legal requirement to register," said Walls.

Men born in 1960 and later can register by going to any U.S. Post Office and filling out a registration form which asks only for his name, address, telephone number, date of birth and social security number.

New Weather Information Line To Begin

Improved 24-hour road information service for motorists will begin in November when a new 15-line telephone call handling system begins operation, the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) announced.

Darrell Schierman, manager of Mn-DOT's road information unit, said the added call handling capability will eliminate or greatly reduce callers having to wait or re-dial for condition reports this winter.

Service will begin November 16 or earlier if weather conditions warrant, said Schierman. Callers will hear a taped message updated hourly or as road conditions change.

For statewide road condition information, call (612) 296-3076. There is a toll charge outside the Twin Cities metropolitan area.

Persons outside the Twin Cities area may receive area road condition reports through Mn-DOT maintenance offices. Locations and telephone numbers are: Bemidji (218) 755-3816; Morris (612) 589-2001; Brainerd (218) 828-2570; Owatonna (507) 451-9000; Crookston (218) 281-5641; Rochester (507) 285-7404; Detroit Lakes (218) 847-2111; St. Cloud (612) 255-4265; Duluth (218) 723-4866; Virginia (218) 749-8090; Mankato (507) 345-8900; Willmar (612) 235-9230; Marshall (507) 537-6133; Windom (507) 831-2740; and Moorhead travel information center (218) 233-7029.

If phone numbers are busy, motorists also may obtain road condition reports by listening to the radio, Schierman advises.

REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

At a time when we believe we are seeing progress made in cleaning up our environment, there is yet another fear surfacing — a fear based on an age-old poison: lead.

Most of you probably associate lead poisoning with paint. We have all read stories about children in the inner city eating the crumbling paint on their apartment walls. But now scientists are warning us of a "silent epidemic" of lead poisoning that is affecting hundreds of thousands of children, and not only those in urban areas.

The information I would like to share with you in this column came to me through MECCA: Minnesota Environmental Control Citizens association. It is frightening information, because it reveals that there is so much lead in our atmosphere from burning gasoline, that none of us can escape it through the air we breathe, the food we eat or the water we drink.

Research has proven that children absorb this lead at a much greater rate than adults, and this poisoning of our children is leading to impaired learning and physical growth.

Now before you think I am an alarmist, let me share the facts from MECCA. It said physicians are estimating that four per cent of all American children between six months and five years of age have lead poisoning. In the center of our major cities, that figure is closer to 20 to 30 per cent.

The problem, as I said earlier, is mainly leaded gasoline. Each gallon of gas presently containing 1.1 gram of lead, is toxic enough to affect 500 children. The tetraethyl lead in the gasoline is obsorbed by the earth, and in turn, the earth's inhabitants.

USDA guidelines for lead in our soil say levels above 500 parts per million lead is potentially dangerous, and levels above 1000 ppm require remedial action — replacing the soil. A recent testing of soil in Minneapolis' inner city showed 35 per cent of the yards have lead levels above 1000 ppm. Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth all qualify as hazardous lead waste areas.

The United States is not alone in this serious problem. Japan has already banned leaded gasoline. England is pushing for a European-wide ban on leaded gas. West Germany is pushing for lead-free fuel by 1986. And Sweden and Switzerland are tightening up allowable emission levels.

While the problem of lead in our environment is national in scope and one over which the state had little control, I wanted to share these concerns with you and invite your comments and suggestions on the issue. It appears to me that the only immediate solution is to eliminate the lead which is poisoning the environment.

Thief River Falls fall sports programs are completed, except for the Lincoln high school swimming team. The Prowlers will compete in the 1983 Section 3 swimming and diving championships, scheduled to be held Friday and Saturday, at Bemidji State University.

Winter sports schedules start later this month, beginning with a pair of jamborees on Sat., Nov. 26.

Section 8 high school hockey jamboree will be held in the Thief River Falls sports arena that day, with an invitation going out to all 17 Section 8 teams to compete here, the site of the 1984 Section 8 hockey tournament Feb. 24-March 2.

Nov. 26 will also find the Lincoln high school basketball team involved in a jamboree at the University of Minnesota-Crookston where Bemidji will play Stephen at 6:30 p.m.; Thief River Falls vs. Warren at 7:20; East Grand Forks vs. Fisher at 8:10; and Crookston vs. Argyle at 9. Those will be two eight-minute quarter outings.

First Thief River Falls regular season opener will find the Lincoln girls basketball team hosting Marshall County Central on Tuesday, Nov. 29.

Northland community college men and women's basketball teams will begin their 1983-84 seasons by participating in the Red River invitational Dec. 1-3 in Winnipeg. Both the Northmen and Northwomen will host their Red River counterparts in their home openers Fri., Dec. 9.

Lincoln hockey season opener will be a Sat., Dec. 3, game against Grand Forks Central in the sports arena.

Two road games start the 1983-84 season for the Lincoln basketball team, including a Tues., Dec. 6, trip to Roseau and a Sat., Dec. 10, visit to Detroit Lakes. The Prowlers' home opener will be Fri., Dec. 16, vs. Moorhead.

Northland hockey team starts play Wed., Dec. 7, vs. the University of Minnesota-Crookston in the sports arena.

Schedule for the Lincoln boys' swim team has yet to be announced.

HS Basketball Tournament Set

Pairings have been announced for the first Lincoln high school Northwest Christmas Classic, an eight-team basketball invitational tournament scheduled to be held Dec. 27, 29 and 30 in the Lincoln gym.

First round match-ups on Tues., Dec. 27, will feature Middle River vs. Argyle at 1 p.m.; Marshall County Central vs. Roseau at 3; Fertile-Beltrami vs. Mahnomen at 7; and Thief River Falls vs. Kennedy at 9.

Games Thurs., Dec. 29, will include consolation round games at 1 and 3 p.m., with semifinals planned for 7 and 9 that night matching the Middle River-Argyle winner vs. the Marshall County Central-Roseau winner, and the Fertile-Beltrami vs. Mahnomen winner vs. the Thief River Falls-Kennedy winner.

Final portion of the 12-game tournament package will be played Fri., Dec. 29, with the seventh place game at 1 p.m.; consolation final at 3; third place game at 7 and championship game at 9.

Lincoln officials are putting a great deal of effort and energy into this first time event with hopes of making it a top-notch offering for the Prowlers, and area teams, to complete under tournament-type situations. Team and individual awards will be the incentive. There will be a school sportsmanship award presented; team trophies will go to the first, second, third and consolation championship teams; each member of the title-winning squad will receive medals; and a 10-member all-tournament squad will be selected by an appointed committee.

TRF Opponents Fare Well

Strength of the Lincoln high school football schedule is once again underlined by the fact that four 1983 Thief River Falls opponents have reached state playoff semifinals.

Grand Forks Red River was a semifinalist in the North Dakota Class A state playoffs, while three Thief River Falls opponents will be involved in Minnesota state playoff semifinals Friday when Moorhead will play Coon Rapids in Class AA action at Parade Stadium in Minneapolis while Breckenridge visits Mahnomen in a Class B semifinal featuring two Thief River Falls opponents.

In addition, Crookston was a post-season playoff qualifier and Fergus Falls was 8-1 but shut out of post-season play, meaning six of the nine opponents on the 1983 Thief River Falls football schedule were playoff-caliber teams.

Other Minnesota semifinal games Friday drawing northwestern Minnesota interest will be in Class A, where Park Rapids hosts Albany, and in Nine-Man, where Norman County West-Climax entertains Hill City. All Friday night games have 7:30 starting times.

Prowlers Swim In Section 3 Meet

Ninetten Lincoln high school girls have qualified for the 1983 Section 3 swimming and diving championships, scheduled to be held Friday and Saturday at Bemidji State University.

Competition begins with the swimming prelims Friday at 6 p.m. Saturday's schedule includes the swimming semifinals and diving prelims at 9 a.m., with the swimming and diving finals scheduled for 1 o'clock that afternoon.

Top two finishers in each swimming event, plus the top six divers, will qualify for the 1983 Minnesota state swim swim meet Nov. 18-19 at Cooke Hall pool on the University of Minnesota campus in Minneapolis.

Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney said the Prowlers are looking forward to the Section 3 meet.

"We're excited about it," he mentioned. "We're bringing a lot of kids; it's a pretty healthy contingent to bring to the sectional meet."

Alexandria, ranked high in the state polls, is the pre-meet favorite, with Moorhead and Fergus Falls figured to be the Cardinals' chief threats in the 11-team field. The Prowlers' season-long goal, revealed Forney, has been a fifth place Section 3 finish, and if things fall into place Thief River Falls could move into fourth, he figures, behind those top three rated squads.

In addition to the team goals, the Prowlers will be shooting for individual marks, trying to turn in their best performances of the year, and for some, a state meet berth is in reach.

"We could bring anywhere from one to six kids to the state meet," pointed out Forney. "They had a good shot at making it," he said, without naming names.

Thief River Falls Section 3 qualifiers throughout the course of the 1983 regular season include seniors Kathy Reuter and Denice Anderson; juniors Shelley McGann, Connie Geatz and Teri Klopp; sophomores Michelle Puetz, Janelle Smidt, Tammy Gunderson, Kim Kenville, Rochelle Sandstrom, Kaylyn Espe, Jill Lusignan and Cindi Russell, who will accompany the team as an alternate after having qualified as the team's fifth fastest backstroker, but just four entrants per team are allowed at the meet; freshmen Gayle Borchert, Laura Beito, Brenda Russel and Marci Turenne; plus eighth graders Jenny Nelson and Pete Kuyath.

Thief River Falls finished the 1983 season with a 6-2 dual meet record. The Prowlers also won a triangular meet at Bemidji and at home in the Prowler Relays; and finished fifth in the season-opening 13-team Fargo Shanley invitational.

DNR NEWS

A new director of the DNR Fish and Wildlife Division has been named by Commissioner of Natural Resources Joseph Alexander.

Appointed to fill the post is Larry R. Shannon, Sacramento, California, who has been employed by that state's Department of Food and Agriculture for two years.

Shannon, 50, is a graduate of Iowa State University with a Ph.d. degree in fishery biology and his most recent position was as an environmental hazard specialist with the responsibility of identifying hazards to fish and wildlife resulting from the use of pesticides.

"Shannon comes to Minnesota with superb credentials as an administrator," said Alexander. "We were prepared to hire the best person for the job, whether or not that person came from Minnesota or from another state."

Fish and Wildlife Director position has been vacant since the retirement of Charles Burrows in April, 1981.

Alexander said a study by the Wildlife Management Institute, recently completed, indicated that the Fish and Wildlife Division was in need of a director with strong administrative abilities.

"I believe we have found that person," said Alexander.

Shannon holds a BA degree in biology from Florida A. and AM. and a masters degree in science education from Atlanta University in addition to his Ph.d. from Iowa State.

Prior to his employment with the State of California, Shannon held a position as staff biologist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Earlier in his career he taught biology at the high school and college level, he was assistant to the Dean of Graduate College at Iowa State and directed planning, institutional research and goverment relations at Livingstone College, North Carolina.

Later he served as director and senior consultant to Educational Development Associates at Salisbury, North Carolina, where he advised institutions on planning, budget preparation and managerial training.

Shannon said, "I am looking forward to serving with the dedicated professionals in the Fish and Wildlife Division who have acquired a national reputation through their accomplishments.

"I pledge to continue the direction which Commissioner Alexander has established to seek and promote the input of sportsmen and other conservationists into management decisions."

Shannon is married, has two children and says he is a fishing, hunting and camping enthusiast.

State Land Sales

Public auction sales of certain state trust fund lands will be held in 10 northern Minnesota counties during November, the Department of Natural Resources announced.

All of the sales will be conducted in the courthouse of the respective counties at the times, places and dates listed on the following schedule: Wadena county, Wadena, Thursday, Nov. 17, 10 a.m.; Hubbard county, Park Rapids, Thursday, Nov. 17, 2:30 p.m.; Cass county, Walker, Friday, Nov. 18, 9 a.m.; Itasca county, Grand Rapids, Friday, Nov. 18, 2:30 p.m.; Koochiching county, International Falls, Monday, Nov. 21, 9:30 a.m.; Lake county, Two Harbors, Tuesday, Nov. 22, 9 a.m.; St. Louis county, Duluth, Tuesday, Nov. 22, 1 p.m.; Carlton county, Carlton, Wednesday, Nov. 23, 9 a.m.; Aitkin county, Aitkin, Wednesday, Nov. 23, 1 p.m.; Mille Lacs county, Milaca, Wednesday, Nov. 23, 3:30 p.m.

Information on the lands to be offered, including the terms of payment, can be obtained from the county auditor's offices at the above counties or from the DNR Bureau of Land, Box 31, Centennial Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Included among the terms is the requirements that the purchaser pay the appraised value of the timber at the time of sale.

In addition, at least 15 per cent of the purchase price, exclusive of timber, must also be paid at time of sale and the balance in no more than 20 equal annual installments, with interest at eight per cent.

All mineral rights are reserved to the state.

State Parks Open

Many people are under the impression that after October 1, state parks close down for the year, says Don Davison, Director of State Parks for the Department of Natural Resources.

"Quite the contrary," he said. "State parks remain open to the public year around. Sanitation buildings and faucets in campground and picnic grounds must be shut down to avoid freezing pipes, but water is generally available somewhere in the park.

"Pit toilets are always available for the convenience of park visitors. Specific information on current water supplies can be obtained by calling the park."

Banquet Is Set For Blue Devils

A reminder that tickets are now available for the Grygla-Goodridge cooperative high school football program post-season team banquet, scheduled to be held Tues., Nov. 15, at 7 p.m. at the Grygla Community Center.

Tickets, priced at $4 per person, are available at the Goodridge Farmer's Co-op Creamery, Steak Knife 2 in Grygla and at the two schools.

Senator Seeks Reduction Of Acid Rain

Senator Dave Durenberger has introduced legislation designed to reduce acid rain by taxing major air polluters for their missions and using the revenues to finance pollution control measures.

The 40-billion-dollar program is aimed at reducing the airborne emissions that cause acid rain by 10 million tons, or 40 per cent, over 10 years. It focuses on reductions in the part of the nation where the acid rain problem is most pronounced: the states east of, or bordering on, the Mississippi river.

The national acid deposition reduction act would levy a per-ton tax on emissions of sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxide by major industrial polluters, including utilities, nationwide. Revenues would subsidize various types of emission-control steps at plants where such projects are most needed and most cost-effective.

Speaking today at a Capitol Hill news conference, Durenberger said his emissions tax is a fairer approach than alternative proposals to tax utilities for the electricity they generate.

"Under my bill, those who have already invested in pollution control technology — like the consumers of Minnesota who have already spent $300 million on 'scrubbers' that reduce sulfur dioxide emissions — will be able to avoid high taxes because their emissions are lower. A tax on electricity gives no credit for the efforts we have already made."

Durenberger also noted that since his emissions tax means "the less you pollute, the less you pay," it has a "built-in incentive" for plants to reduce their emissions.

In addition, Durenberger's program would raise one-sixth of its revenues from taxes on mobile sources of pollution: sales taxes on new cars, and registration fees on other mobile sources such as trucks, aircraft, locomotives and heavy construction equipment.

The senator called the taxes "minimal," estimating that they would average $17 per new car, and between $8 and $10 yearly per truck. Average nationwide electric rates would rise by less than two per cent as a result of the program, he said.

"Compared to our other options this legislation is more equitable, more cost-effective and more effective, period," Durenberger said. "It is the best way to break out of our paralysis on acid rain policy."

Durenberger is a member of the environment and public works committee, and chairs its subcommittee on toxic substances and environmental oversight.

Toothpicks Are Used To Teach Design Skills

Toothpick engineering contest was conducted by the engineering department of Moorhead state university on October 19, with 63 participants designing and building 33 structures.

Among the winners was Stephenie Habedank, Thief River Falls, who received an "F" award for the structure designed and built by herself and teammate Cassie Huesmann, St. Francis, which sustained a load of 3.6 pounds without breaking.

Contest rules required that the structures bridge a clear span of 20 inches, and be constructed using a maximum of 500 round wooden toothpicks and an undetermined amount of glue.

Overall winner of the 14th annual toothpick engineering contest supported 102.8 pounds, and was designed and built by Robert Saethre, Grand Marais, and Brad Carpenter, Schroder. All time record for the contest is held by Allen Schmitt, Watkins, whose bridge supported 331 pounds.

Contest is designed to foster understanding of the relationship between strength of materials, design, contraction and the engineering approach to problem solving, while creating involvement with other people and within the university.

U of M Home Ec Leader Focuses On The Family

Enabling families to function and to call upon their own strengths is the mission of home economics, says Shirley Baugher, newly appointed assistant director for extension for home economics and family living and assistant dean for extension in the University of Minnesota's college of home economics.

She places family-oriented programs and research as a priority for statewide home economics activities through the agricultural extension service. "Healthy, happy families are the cornerstone of society and are never more important than in these complex and changing times," she adds.

Baugher stresses, however, the interdependence of the main needs of all families — nutrition education, resource management within the home, and family members' strengths and abilities. "Regardless of the topic area within home economics, the emphasis is always on quality of life for individuals and families," Baugher says. "All factors affecting the family are interdependent and important as home economics-family living extension programs assist families toward the goal of healthy, productive living."

Because it studies and deals with the many factors affecting the family, home economics will be one of the disciplines that individuals and agencies turn to for answers and guidance in the years ahead, Baugher predicts. "The more that change and technology toughen us, the greater is our need for human touch — relationships and a feeling of belonging and fitting in. Extension programs in home economics reach out to assist families in meeting these basic needs," she says.

What goes on in the home sets the tone for much of society. This, says Baugher, is a mandate for innovative programs and stepped-up research efforts. She adds, "If the values in the home are confused, we see the results in heightened stress, crime rates, shattered support systems and unhappiness throughout society."

Magrath Objects To Regulation By Federal Agency

Scholarship cannot thrive in secrecy and research cannot be advanced under wraps, University of Minnesota President C. Peter Magrath told a subcommittee of the House judiciary committee recently during a hearing on freedom of research and security controls.

Magrath asked that congress examine various Reagan administration regulations that restrain the free flow of information among scientists, researchers and engineers. "The majority of restraints upon scholars and scientists appear to be unilaterally imposed by the executive branch," he said.

"This is not to imply that the protection of genuine technical secrets is an inappropriate concern of our government," Magrath said. "However, what is questionable and alarming are the means by which such objectives are pursued. To attempt to plug national security leaks by muffling those who pose no security risks makes little sense. It amounts to caulking the wrong part of the wrong ship, and in the end, the efforts prove to be unnecessary, intimidating and counterproductive."

Magrath pointed to presidential directives that authorize prior governmental review of any publication by persons — presumably including university researchers — who have had access to classified information as part of the conflict between openness and secrecy that has occurred during the Reagan administration.

From his personal experience with the conflict, Magrath cited two defense department directives: to limit the access of certain foreign students and scholars to college classrooms and laboratories and to conduct "gumshoe" surveillance of international visitors across the campus and the community.

Magrath said his experience with those restrictions stems from the visit by Qi Yulu, a scholar from China who came to this country under a U.S. policy that encourages the training of Chinese scholars in modern technology and science. "Subsequently, the policy seemed to change, for the university was asked to curtail the academic program of our visitor," he said.

Through letters, phone calls and visits, federal agents issued instructions that were "confusing to say the least," Magrath said. Federal agents told the university that Qi was to have no access to classified government-funded research even though the University of Minnesota — as most colleges and universities — conducts no such research. University was told to "provide Qi with minimal involvement in applied research" even though "minimal" and "applied" were never defined, Magrath said.

University was also instructed to report in advance any visits Qi might make to industrial or research facilities. "Ironically, within those constraints, we were told to offer Qi as full an academic program as possible," Magrath told the subcommittee.

"Even more disturbing than the confusing nature of the state department's directives were their chilling implications," Magrath said. "They struck at the very heart of a free university, if not a free society, for they advocated secrecy and surveillance, the restraint of expression and the disregard of academic freedom. Scholarship simply cannot thrive in secrecy; research cannot be advanced under wraps.

"Scientific progress flourishes best in the free competition of ideas," Magrath said. "It is that openness and competition that explains why the United States is preeminent in most scientific fields. And it is the absence of openness and competition in the Soviet system that confirms the observation of Nobel laureate P.W. Anderson that, 'Security and secrecy impede scientific technical progress. . . tending to cloak inefficiency, ignorance and corruption more often than it hides genuine technical secrets.'"

To resolve the conflict between freedom of research and government security measures, Magrath suggested that only in the most exceptional and limited cases should the communication of unclassified scientific information be restricted. "Any other avenue. . . would impede the very avenues for scholarly communication that are so vital to national security," he said.

Magrath also suggested that if there are reservations about the activities of foreign scholars, the state department should resolve those reservations before the scholars are allowed to enter the country. "It is not the function of the academy to be a surrogate surveillance agency," he said.

CHAMBER AMBASSADORS Dwight Tangquist and Jess McCabe were among the many people who stopped in to offer congratulations to Walt and Elinor Wiskow on Tuesday morning, as they opened their new Ben Franklin store in Thief River Falls. Along with their congratulations, the Ambassadors presented a first dollar of clear profit to the business. Wiskows are long-time residents of the area, and have remodeled the former Red Owl building on the corner of Second Street and Main Avenue, with about 6,000 square feet of sales area. They presently have about nine employees, and all were kept busy on Tuesday as the store filled with excited customers, glad to have the variety store back in the community.
